FARMER EXPERT PROVES CHOICE CALGARY MEET

New Leader Will Consult With Conservative, U.F.A. and Other Party Leaders to Unite Forces Against Present Government

By Bulletin Staff Writer

CALGARY, June 5—E. L. Gray, better known as Leslie Gray, for ten years a member of the Alberta civil service, during the latter part of which time he was deputy minister of Municipal affairs, and now manager of the Eastern Irrigation Project at Brooks, agricultural expert and keen business man, is the new Liberal leader for Alberta. Given a unanimous nomination after six other prominent Liberals had withdrawn in his favor, deeming him to be the outstanding choice of the party in Alberta, Mr. Gray was given an ovation from the delegates from all parts of the province who crowded Victoria pavilion on Friday afternoon.

Jamming the floor of the Pavilion and reaching almost to the roof in tier after tier, the delegates surged to their feet as chairman Roy Edmanson, K.C., of Calgary announced the choice of the convention.

CHEERS BREAK

Cheers rocked the Pavilion as Mr. Gray came forward and it was almost ten minutes before the uproar subsided and gave him a chance to be heard. Even then the delegates were not satisfied and a fresh storm of cheering broke out as he stepped to the microphone to accept the nomination in one of the shortest and most dramatic speeches ever heard before a political convention in Canada.

Although it was unexpected and its frankness almost took the breath away from political warhorses of the old school, there was no doubting the manner in which it was received and approved by the delegates who heard the new leader caution them to hold their enthusiasm in check until he had finished.

"Before closing the door on the leadership choice I want to make a fairly frank statement and you should consider fully what I have to say before you make your decision," he warned.

HONOR NOT SOUGHT

"I did not seek this honor", he added quicty and in earnest seriousness, "but after ten years in the public service in Alberta and seeing what has been done to that service I feel that a crisis is here in the affairs of Alberta and that if I can be of any assistance I should not step aside.

"At the same time I must say this, and in saying it I am making my position clear and plain—if you are nominating today the leader of a narrow political party with an inflexible platform and a limited membership of only the followers of that party I warn you not to consider my name at all. I have neither the time nor the inclination to go

CONSERVATIVES READY ANSWER MERGER CALL

D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., Favors Proposal of New Liberal Leader

The Conservative party is wholeheartedly behind the movement to co-ordinate the various political groups in Alberta with a view to charting a course to sound business government in this province, D. M. Duggan, Conservative M.L.A., declared Saturday when commenting on the announcement by E. L. Gray, newly-elected Alberta Liberal leader, that he planned to call a conference of the several groups with this object in view.

"The Conservatives have been in the van of this movement since last year when the party declared its position at the provincial conference. We are ready to join other groups for the purpose of obtaining a good business administration for the people of Alberta," Mr. Duggan said. "We take that stand unconditionally."

RECEIVED INVITATION

The M.L.A. recalled that last May the People's League had invited the Conservative party to assist in a co-ordination of political bodies for the purpose mentioned. At a meeting in Calgary on May 15 the Tory executive had appointed a co-operating committee.

R. G Reid, former U.F.A. premier of Alberta, said he had no announcement to make yet on Mr. Gray's plan. He indicated his organization would be prepared to meet the Liberal leader and discuss the question.

Prominent in the C.C.F. movement in Alberta, Elmer E. Roper said he did not care to comment on the proposal until "we have some rather definite intimation of the kind of program upon which we would be asked to co-operate." He said representatives of his organization were willing to confer with Mr. Gray on this point.

RED MARSHAL OF MOSCOW IS UNDER ARREST

BERLIN, June 5.—The official German agency reported today from Moscow, Marshal Mikhail Tukachevsky of the Red army had been arrested.

The dispatch, which came via Warsaw, said that an "absolutely reliable source" reported the Marshal's arrest five days ago.

Moscow, it said, was trying to keep his detention secret.

(Marshal Tukachevsky, whose name was brought into the "Trotskyist treason trial" last January, was reported arrested several months ago.

Finland Uncrowned King Is Honored

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 5.—All Finland joined today in celebrating the 70th birthday of Field Marshal Justus Mannerheim, the grizzled warrior who is often called Finland's uncrowned king.

Festivities honoring the general credited with saving Finland from Bolshevists during the Russian revolution lasted throughout the day. Helsingfors was gaily decorated.

Elected Moderator

FLORIN, Pa., June 5.—Bishop E. J. Walm, of Duntroon, Ont., was today elected moderator of the Brethren in Christ Church of Canada and the United States.

3000 Spinsters Parade London: Demand Pension

LONDON, June 5. — Three thousand determined spinsters, demanding pensions for themselves and their more retiring sisters, streamed into London for a big demonstration today.

Members of the National Spinsters' Pension association, want "pensions for spinsters at 55."

At present they cannot claim government pensions until they are 65.

French Act Would Abolish Tipping

PARIS, June 5—The chamber of deputies voted today to abolish tipping.

A government bill, which goes now to the senate, survived a heated debate in the chamber over whether such a deep-rooted practice could be wiped out by law effectively.

The bill is part of the popular front program which considers tipping "contrary to human dignity"—and less remunerative than fixed wages.

HEAVY OFFENSIVE STARTED AGAINST FORTS OF EL GALLO

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, June 5—The insurgent army of Spanish North began a heavy artillery offensive today against Bilbao's "El Gallo" fortifications, coincident with unconfirmed border reports the plane crash which killed General Emilio Mola was caused by a time bomb.

Intensive insurgent bombardment of several points on the "iron ring" of forts that encircles the regional Basque capital broke a lull that followed the death of Mola and four of his staff officers in Thursday's plane crash between Burgos and Vitoria.

Legislature Will Reconvene Monday To Finish Session

Adjourned since April 14 the Alberta legislature will reconvene at 3 p.m. on Monday to complete the third session of the eighth legislature elected in the province, a session which commenced on February 26 and which, by the time it is prorogued, will be the longest in the province's history.

The session will be preceded by a Social Credit party caucus at 10 a.m. on Monday, all members having been called by Premier William Aberhart.

Main item confronting the legislature when it meets will be the completion of the budget debate, which was left unfinished at the time the house adjourned. A. W. Flamme, Social Credit member for Cypress will continue the debate.

OTHER PLANS

Other items on the sessional program are the future plans for Social Credit, arising from the visit to England of Glen L. MacLachlan, chairman of the Social Credit board, and his bringing here of G. F. Powell of London as a representative of Major Clifford H. Douglas; the disposition of debt reduction and settlement legislation left on the order paper when the house adjourned and the future of the party as a whole, depending on whether the insurgent and loyalist members can get together.

If this breach is not healed the probability of an early provincial general election looms large.

TERROR PILED ON TERROR IS SPAIN THREAT

VALENCIA, Spain, June 5.—The Valencia-Madrid government threatened today to put "terror against terror" by launching air raids on insurgent-held cities in retaliation for aerial attacks on government strongholds.

Minister of Defence Indalecio Prieto announced that "in the face of the terrible arm of aviation there is but one recourse—aviation employing the same methods as the adversary, in greater proportion if necessary.

"That is to say—terror against terror."

Prieto said the government previously had desisted from aerial attacks on Spanish cities because it considered itself the government of all Spain and did not wish to spread havoc among its own cities.

The defence minister made his statement at the same time that Jose Giral Pereira, foreign minister in the cabinet of Premier Juan Negrin, declared the Spanish republic held the London non-intervention committee and the 27 participating nations "responsible to a degree" for the German bombardment of Almeria.

Ted Horton Is Named Head of Young Liberals

By Staff Correspondent

CALGARY, June 5—Ted Horton, of Vegreville, was elected president of the Alberta Young Liberals executive Friday night at a special meeting of Young Liberals attending the party convention here.

The meeting, attended by more than 100 delegates from over the entire province, was marked by repeated and hectic clashes.

Outnumbered four to one by southern delegates at first were hostile to the plan of unifying the two existing regional federations in one central executive, the northern group finally succeeded in gaining enthusiastic ratification of its proposal. Only one dissenting vote was cast.

The present executive, whose eight members are divided equally between the northern and southern Alberta federation, comprises: Ted Horton, Vegreville; Bruce Whittaker, Beth Livingstone, Mrs. W. A. Lamb, all of Edmonton; Marie McCaffery, Richard Watson, James Pogue, all of Calgary, and L. S. Turcott, Lethbridge.

In addition, the councils of the present regional federations are to be added to this provincial executive. Elections were held on a pro tem basis, pending ratification by the two associations.

R. W. Watson, head of the southern Alberta Young Liberal Association, was chairman of the meeting.

OTTAWA, June 5.—The department of national revenue announces the value for duty purposes has been fixed at an advance of one cent per pound on beets and cabbage, and two cents on cauliflower, effective today.

Nightingale Medal For U.S. Woman

WASHINGTON, June 5—Miss Ida F. Butler, director of the American Red Cross nursing service, received today the Florence Nightingale medal awarded to outstanding nurses throughout the world. She organized two hospitals in France during the war and dispatched 3,600 nurses to the Ohio-Mississippi flood zone in January.

GARDINER LAUDS PARTY CHIEFTAIN

LIBERALS WILL NOT MERGE TWO ORGANIZATIONS

Keel Laid For New Weekly Newspaper For Alberta

FLASH—

CALGARY, June 5.—A merger plan to unite Federal and provincial associations of the Alberta Liberal Party into one organization was approved at the provincial convention here today. The plan was discussed Friday and a resolution urging its adoption was tabled but it was reintroduced at this morning's session and adopted.

CALGARY, June 5.—The federal and provincial associations of the Alberta Liberal party will not amalgamate, it was decided at the provincial convention here yesterday.

Members of the federal association approved of a fusion plan, but speakers for the provincial organization were opposed. Finally, after a long debate, the plan was tabled.

Delegates attending the Alberta Liberal convention Friday afternoon placed the keel for a new enterprise — a weekly newspaper devoted to Liberalism.

The project, to be financed primarily by sale of stock, opened its books for business when the convention gave hearty approval to the suggestion introduced by George H. Ross, K.C.

DAVIDSON EDITOR

Motivating force behind the "newspaper" idea was said to be the fact that the Liberal party has no weekly paper in Alberta and that W. M. Davidson, former editor of the Calgary Albertan would be willing to return to the city to edit the publication, without recompense until such time as it became established.

Printing costs, office requirements, staff, cash reserves necessary and other details were dealt with in communication received by Mr. Ross from the former Alberta editor.

ULTIMATE DECISION

Ultimate decision was that the newspaper should be established and that a tentative committee, set up some weeks ago, continue with plans. That committee consists of Mr. Ross, Senator W. A. Buchanan, publisher of the Lethbridge Herald and E. G. Collier, president of the Mackenzie King Young Liberal club.

Subscription books for both stock and the paper were opened Friday afternoon at convention quarters.

Man Loses Bet, He Is Forced To Eat His Own Hat

MELBOURNE, June 5.—D. K. Thompson, Melbourne business man, declared he could answer correctly 95 per cent of the general knowledge questions broadcast by the local radio station.

If he failed, he said, he would eat his hat. He failed. He ate his hat in public. Police were required to regulate the crowds. Hat-eater Thompson arrived wearing a tin panama. He chopped it into small pieces, mixed these with roast beef and vegetables, and ate the lot.

Then he reported home, fit and well, for dinner.

DR. VINER MAY BE ENGAGED ON TAXATION BRIEF

Dr. Jacob Viner, one of the most noted economists in the United States, and a professor at Chicago University, may be engaged by the three prairie provinces as expert to prepare briefs for submission to the Dominion government Royal Commission on taxation, according to Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, who returned on Saturday from Regina, where he attended a meeting of the three provinces representatives.

Hon. Mr. Low said that negotiations with Dr. Viner were now in progress, but while hopeful of obtaining his services, the governments had reached no definite decision as yet.

D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader, who accompanied Hon. Mr. Low to Regina, also returned on Saturday.

Saskatchewan's Debt Adjusting Found Effective

Gardiner Condemns Slowness Of Adjustments By Review Boards Under Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act—Immediate Action Is Necessary

By Bulletin Staff Writer

CALGARY, June 5—Debt reduction methods used in Saskatchewan, which successfully reduced the debt burden in the drought areas of that province by $100,000,000 in the past two years, could easily have been applied in Alberta if the provincial government had so desired, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture, told 3,000 persons at a Liberal rally held in conjunction with the provincial Liberal convention in the Victoria Pavilion here Friday night.

The Saskatchewan method was far more effective than the ultra vires methods attempted by the Alberta government, said the former Saskatchewan premier.

Mr. Gardiner reviewed the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act and its operations in the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan in detail. In Saskatchewan only some 1,600 cases have been finally dealt with, and only 1,300 cases in Alberta. The method, he said, was too slow and would take 25 years at the present rate to have adjusted the drought area cases which were settled in Saskatchewan in less than one year.

Referring to criticism of the 6 per cent. interest rate allowed in the Saskatchewan settlement, Mr. Gardiner said, "I am not particularly interested in low interest rates, in fact I wouldn't mind them going higher, as it would be a sign of more prosperous times."

TRIBUTE TO GRAY

The aggressive federal cabinet minister paid several stirring tributes to the wide knowledge and qualifications of E. L. Gray, newly elected Alberta Liberal leader, who also briefly addressed the mass meeting which was a feature of the provincial Liberal convention here.

The addresses were broadcast over Calgary and Edmonton radio stations.

Besides giving a detailed outline and history of the Saskatchewan Debt Adjustment method, which he said had become the federal Liberal attitude on debt reduction, Mr.

IF WAR COMES BLAME BRITAIN, ITALIAN WRITES

ROME, June 5—If a European war comes it will be Great Britain's fault, Francesco Coppola, prominent Italian journalist and sociologist, declared last night in the Gazeetta Del Popolo.

Coppola, professor of international politics at the Rome school of journalism since 1930, said Britain's prestige, "though diminished," was recognized throughout the continent and that Europe's smaller states looked to London for guidance.

"If, despite all efforts, a warlike and subversive catastrophe should afflict Europe sooner or later, the greatest responsibility in the eyes of history and humanity would be borne by Great Britain—ingenuous, pacifistic and conservative," he declared in a featured article.

Fire Aboard TNT Ship Is Smothered Before Explosion

COLON, Panama, June 5.—Smoke pouring from a hold crammed with 690 tons of explosives aboard the United States army transport Ludington was smothered today, shortly after the ship reached port with an uneasy crew of 63. Authorities said the smoke probably came from a chemical bomb and that there was no fire at all.

BLOZAK TAKES POISON PILLS IN DOCK, DIES

Convicted Man Makes Dramatic Statement Before Taking Life

Dramatically pointing to his throat while standing in the prisoners' dock in supreme criminal court Friday afternoon, Stanley Blozak, 58-year-old Ukranian, convicted at attempting to defraud insurance companies of $6,000, told Mr. Justice W. R. Howson when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him in a voice laden with emotion and trembling with excitement: "There is the poison Mr. Howson, you have killed me body and soul. I will not go to the penitentiary. You have got it in for me because I was Social Credit and you were Liberal." Blozak died in an Edmonton hospital late on Friday evening from strychnine poison.

Directly sentence was passed on the accused he was seen to pass a tablet to his mouth. Police officers and court officials immediately closed with the prisoner and succeeded in getting a portion of the tablet from his mouth. It is believed, however, that Blozak had taken a dose of poison directly he heard Mr. Justice Howson pronounce the guilty verdict.

STRUGGLED VIOLENTLY

The accused struggled violently with the police, his cries being heard throughout the entire court house building. He was rushed to police headquarters in an ambulance, and from there to the Edmon-

MISSING FARM GIRL ASSERTED KIDNAP VICTIM

GRANDVIEW, Man., June 5.—Police today investigated the alleged kidnapping of Bernice Bell, 22-year-old farm girl.

While 125 men combed the bush four miles northeast of Grandview, 40 miles west of Lake Dauphin, Miss Bell returned exhausted and told a story of being blindfolded, kidnapped and forced out of a strange automobile 10 miles from home.

She had started out to bring the cows home, but the horse she left with returned home riderless about 4.45 p.m.

"I dismounted to assist a man sitting beside a fire in the pasture. He said he was injured. But he seized me, blindfolded and carried me to a car where two other men were waiting," she told searchers as she walked from Bushland around midnight.

Mayor Opposes Action On Ground Tenders Should Not Be Restricted

City council Friday night authorized "invitation tenders" by three Canadian power equipment firms for a $225,000 boiler and auxiliaries for the Edmonton power plant. Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, K.C., scored this action on the ground that the proper procedure had not been taken in placing the question before council and claimed that bids should not be limited to three firms but should be open by advertisement to all companies desiring to bid.

Power firms invited to forward tenders on the equipment are Bancock and Wilcox, Foster Wheeler and Combustion Engineering. Decision to call for bids from these three was made on the advice of Supt. R. G. Watson, head of the city plant, and the recommendation of the civic power committee.

Mayor Clarke's opposition to this recommendation was made on two grounds: First, that the commission board had not submitted a report to council dealing with the tenders; second, that it was not advisable to restrict bids to three companies.

He took the stand that council was violating a city bylaw by authorizing the invitation tenders without first receiving a report from the commission board on the advisability of this step.

In this connection City Solicitor Thomas Garside quoted the bylaw

Mine Workers' Plea Denied By Supreme Court

OTTAWA, June 5.—Mr. Justice P. Kerwin of Supreme court of Canada has refused the application of the United Mine Workers' for extension of the time in which it could appeal to the supreme court in the Springhill, N.S., blacklisting case. The effect of the decision will be to prevent the appeal and the decision of the Nova Scotia supreme court which awarded damages to four miners blacklisted stands.

ROADS PROGRAM LOOMS LARGE IN LIBERAL PLAN

CIVIL SERVICE RESOLUTION DRAWS FIRE

Dr. Morrish Sponsors Motion Adopting Health Insurance

By Bulletin Staff Writer

CALGARY, June 5. — With the election of a leader concluded, Alberta Liberals in convention here set about the completion of the platform on which they will go to the electors at the next election and although many of the main planks of that platform are still to be evolved enough resolutions passed the convention on Friday to indicate that a forward and progressive policy will be evolved.

Earmarking gasoline tax revenue amounting now to $2,000,000, annually was recommended in a resolution sponsored by Dr. J. G. Hope, Edmonton, for the highways committee, the proposal bringing unanimous endorsation from the convention.

ALL WEATHER ROADS

The resolution further pledged the Liberal party to construct all-weather roads connecting main centres in the province as rapidly as possible, with linking Alberta to neighboring states and provinces with hard-surfaced highways and actively pushing forward a province-wide system of good roads.

Efforts were made by some northern delegates to have Peace River and St. Paul areas specifically mentioned for the extension of all-weather highways, but the convention agreed with Dr. Hope and others that with the Liberals committed to a progressive road-building policy with motor revenue funds earmarked for the purpose details might be left to the coming Liberal government.

HEALTH INSURANCE

Approval of a workable and equitable scheme of state health insurance in co-operation with the professions concerned, was voted by the convention after hearing a resolution to this effect moved by Dr. W. Morrish, M.L.A., Edmonton.

Another proposed by Dr. Morrish in behalf of the committee also got unanimous approval. This pledged support to the principle of equal educational opportunities being given to all children with special emphasis placed on the child as the pivot in the system, that adult education be encouraged and extended that vocational training be promoted, and that the basis of taxation for educational purposes be widened to receive the present unfair burden on real property.

Opposition developed to a resolution presented in the name of Joseph T. Shaw which condemned the dismissal of civil servants without cause, and which advocated the establishment of a non-partisan commission appointed by the legislature to have full charge of appointments and promotions in the public service, and that special courses be provided to fit young men and women for the civil service.

RAISES LAUGH

Objections were taken to having power taken out of the hands of the ministers in charge, and when it was mentioned that more than 500 civil servants had been let out by the present government and 900 new appointments made, one delegate roused storms of laughter when he asked.

"Does this resolution mean that when the Liberals get in they will have to keep all the 900 Social Crediters that have been given jobs?"

The resolution was tabled.

Resolutions of appreciation for their services in the Liberal cause were endorsed in behalf of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, James A. MacKinnon, M.P. for Edmonton, J. J. Bowlen, M.L.A., and staunch loyalty was voted for Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King.

First in the list was a resolution of fealty to King George and Queen Elizabeth. George H. Van Allen, M.L.A., of Edmonton, who has been seriously ill in a U. S. hospital for many weeks, wired his good wishes to the convention and delegates in turn cheered a proposal that a message be returned wishing him a speedy recovery and return to the legislature.

Alberta Women's Liberal association was launched after a luncheon to Hon. J. G. Gardiner at noon. Mrs. J. P. Ferguson, of Trochu, being unanimously elected president with Mrs. R. L. Nicholson, Calgary, withdrawing from nomination.

Mrs. Ferguson, a barrister by training, has for several years been president of the Alberta Women's Institute, only retiring from the position ten days ago.

Coronation Book Not Under Ban

WELLINGTON, June 5—The New Zealand government today decided not to ban entry into the country of Geoffrey Dennis' much-discussed book, "Coronation Commentary."

Nothing is contained in the book to warrant such a ban, it was announced.

The book, dealing among other things with the abdication of King Edward VIII, was withdrawn in England at the Duke of Windsor's request.

General Smart Is Dead In East

MONTREAL, June 5.—Brig. General C. A. Smart, former Conservative M.L.A. for the neighboring city of Westmount, and newly-appointed to Quebec's legislative council, died suddenly today, aged 69.

In feeble health almost since his return from the Great War, General Smart, who sat in the legislature consistently since 1912, died at his home in Westmount.

Nazi Target For Spanish Bomb

Twenty members of the crew of the German pocket-battleship Deutschland (above) were reported to have been killed in an aerial bombardment by Spanish loyalists planes at Ibiza, in the Balearic Islands. BLOZAK TAKES POISON PILLS IN DOCK, DIES ton hospital where he died late Friday evening.

Accused had been out on bail and had surrendered for the trial. It is not customary to search prisoners who have been admitted to bail before they enter the dock.

Chief Coroner Dr. A. E. Braithwaite, announced Saturday morning that there would be no inquest, as Blozak's death was one of intentional suicide.

He had been convicted of attempting to obtain $6,000 from six different fire insurance companies by false pretences, and was jointly charged with Dora Flora and George Kuprenas, both of whom were also found guilty. Blozak, whom the court considered the master mind in the fraud, was sentenced to serve 36 months in the Prince Albert penitentiary. The court imposed a more lenient sentence on Kuprenas because he was a cripple, giving him a term of 18 months. Dora Flora, who was described by the court as Blozak's tool, received 12 months with hard labor in Fort Saskatchewan.

BLOZAK'S STATEMENT

The full text of Blozak's statement to the court on conviction is as follows: "My Lord, I am not guilty. George Kuprenas paid me the money. Dora Flora had nothing to do with it, absolutely nothing. Your Lordship, I know I am going to be sentenced, I knew it before I came into this dock. I knew it. Your Lordship you are taking my soul, and it is gone already. I knew I was going to be sentenced before I got in front of you. I told my solicitor I was going to be sentenced and that I wanted trial by a different judge. You have no use for me. I have the poison right here.

"You have taken my soul, because I am an innocent man. I got the money from George Kuprenas. There is the poison."

Here the prisoner pointed to his throat.

"You have it in for me because I was Social Credit and you were Liberal. You have killed me body and soul."

COURT CLEARED

Few in the large crowd of spectators who had attended the five-day session of the hearing knew the dramatic events enacted in the court room after the passing of sentence. As Mr. Justice Howson left the court Sheriff John Rae and court orderlies cleared the spectators from the precincts of the court house. Only relatives of the three accused, Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers, court orderlies, and officials, and counsel engaged in the case remained in the court room.

Immediately Mr. Justice Howson left the court room the accused was seen by court officials and mounted police officers to pass a pellet into his mouth. Police officers immediately closed with the accused, and succeeded in getting most of the poison from his mouth. It is beieved however, that the accused administered a prior dose of poison directly he heard the guilty pronouncement by Mr. Justice Howson.

Counsel for Blozak, R. Fred Jackson, stated Saturday morning that "At no time previous to the commencement of the trial had Blozak taken objection to being tried before Mr. Justice Howson. He had said in casual conversation that it appeared the judge was against him as the evidence was unfolded during the hearing."

IGNORED BEHAVIOR

Telling Blozak he was ignoring his behavior in imposing sentence Mr. Justice Howson stated "You were chiefly responsible for this crime, the sentence of the court is that you be sentenced to 36 months in Prince Albert penitentiary."

Events leading up to the arrest of Blozak, Kuprenas and Dora Flora were: In August, 1936, Blozak, under the name of John Pura, purchased the Commercial Hotel, St. Paul, from the municipality for $400, giving an undertaking to make renovations and alterations to a value of $1,500. This work was done, and Blozak sold the hotel to Kuprenas for $7,000. This sale it was alleged by the crown was a fake. Immediately after the sale Kuprenas and Blozak took out $6,000 insurance on the hotel and shortly afterwards the structure was destroyed by fire.

PRIESTS ANSWER GOEBBEL CHARGE OF IMMORALITY

BERLIN, June 5—Priests in the Berlin diocese received orders today to answer from their pulpits Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' charge the wave of German Catholic clergy immorality is the worst in history.

Less than one-fourth of one per cent of the German Catholic clergy are on trial on the immorality charges, it will be said in a church announcement to be read by priests at masses tomorrow.

SPAIN MAY BUY $25,000,000 ARMS OF CANADIAN MAKE

ROME, June 5—The Fascist writer Virginio Gayda charged today the Spanish Republican government had $16,250,000 on deposit at Perpignan, France, with which to buy foreign war materials, supposedly in Canada.

The money, he wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia was to be paid to a bank through a New York intermediary in exchange for 25,000 rifles and 25,000,000 cartridges. These materials, he said, presumably were to be bought in Canada by Mexico.

Gayda, who sometimes speaks for Mussolini, charged that Mexico, France and Russia were "sharing honors" in sending arms to the Spanish government.

Wild White Goose Noticed In Flock

CHARLOTTETOWN, June 5.—Among 50 to 100 wild geese seen feeding on the stubble of Joshua Ballem's farm every day at Mt. Albion, P.E.I., is one pure white goose with the exception of the primary feathers.

Sometimes known as Wavery or Laughing geese, white geese are bred in the Arctic along the Arctic coast, Coronation Gulf, and migrate to the interior of the continent. There are two species of the Snow Goose in Canada, the Lesser and the Greater, their only difference being the size. The name Wavery is the Indian word for Wild Goose.

White geese are seldom seen in Prince Edward Island and are quite noticeable among the Canadian geese. Ballem's white goose is often seen in the Ernscliffe, Irving's Bar and Mt. Albion districts.

Body Of Entombed Miner Recovered

ELY, Minn., June 5—B. O. Strachan, superintendent of the Pioneer "A" iron mine, announced recovery today of the body of Tony Kromar, one of two miners trapped 1,300 feet underground in a cave-in last night.

Hope has been abandoned, Strachan said, for the life of John Kavach, the second miner entombed.

quite proper in this particular case, he said.

Commissioner Gibb declared that he had authorized Supt. Watson to invite the three tenders, which are due June 14. He said this procedure had been adopted in the past.

No tenders should be called for dealing with the powers of commissioners, a section of the bylaw empowering them "to prepare specifications for and recommending the awarding of all contracts and for that purpose to call for tenders for works, materials and supplies, implements or machinery or any other goods or property required which may be lawfully be purchased for the use of the corporation, and to report the same to the council at its next meeting."

While the power committee had recommended that tenders be called for, commissioners as a board had not, the mayor declared.

SEEMED ADVISABLE

Explaining this point, Commissioner R. J. Gibb, commissioner of utilities, told council that he had conferred with Supt. Watson and had agreed with the plant official that the interests of the city would be better served by inviting only three bids. It was only through an oversight that he had not communicated his decision to the mayor, he said.

Giving his position on the question, Supt. Watson stated he had thought it advisable to call for only three bids because the companies in question were the only ones in Canada which could supply all the required machinery of the type needed. Any one of them would guarantee the equipment, he said.

Solicitor Garside informed aldermen there was no provision in the bylaw making it incumbent on the city to advertise the calling of tenders so that all firms desiring to bid could make an offer. "Invitation tenders" were until commissioners had had a chance to investigate and place a report before council, Mayor Clarke claimed.

IS PRECEDENT

The invitation bid plan had been adopted in the past, Ald. Walter Cleveley reminded him.

"Mayor Clarke has a right to be consulted and is justified in resenting this action. If any mistake has been made the two commissioners should get together and settle it," suggested Ald. Guy Patterson.

"There is no sharp difference between myself and the mayor," declared Commissioner Gibb. "It's just a case of whether they should be invitation bids or whether they should be advertised."

Three motions were then made in order to arrive at a decision on the question. Ald. J. W. Fry moved that the recommendation of the power committee be adopted and that the action in calling for the three tenders be confirmed. Ald. A. Bisset moved that council concur in the recommendation of the committee and confirm and ratify the method in which tenders were called for. Ald. J. H. Ogilvie moved that commissioners be authorized to invite tenders from the three firms by wire.

On an unanimous vote by aldermen, council passed Ald. Fry's motion, Mayor Clarke declining to vote.

LEGISLATURE IS CONVENING NEXT MONDAY

general election is called, it is likely to be in September.

NOT MUCH NEW

It is unlikely that any new legislation will be brought down.

Some action on the budget will have to be taken at an early date.

The interim supply bill under which the government is functioning, expires on June 30, and further supply will have to be granted by that time or the wheels of government will cease to function.

Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, states that there may be some revisions of the budget, dependent upon any report or recommendations of the Social Credit Board.

Strong probability of the healing of the breach was seen here on Saturday, it being felt that the insurgent members will feel that the government in negotiating with Major Douglas, has made sufficient progress to merit their once more supporting the government. Three bills now before the legislature, the marketing, licensing and price fixing bills, may be dropped if the experts advise they are unnecessary.

Leadership Urged By Lloyd George

LONDON, June 5.—David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister, last night urged the British empire to take the leadership among the nations.

Speaking a broadcast series of talks on the responsibilities of empire, the veteran Welsh statesman appealed for a carefully pre-concerted foreign policy among the constituent nations of the empire.

NEW LEADER'S FRANK SPEECH MAKES LIBERAL HIT

GRAY BRINGS RARE GIFTS TO HIS POST

into such a party. If on the other hand the movement you are asking me to lead is a movement of wide liberalism—and I use wide in the fullest sense of the word—with only one object—the establishment in Alberta of a good business government run on good business lines I will go into public life again.

"Alberta today, as I see the situation, is divided into two classes, the people who want a business government and those who think we can carry on as we are carrying on the affairs of government at the present time.

MAJORITY SINCERE

"The sincerity of the majority of the supporters of the government when they returned that government to power cannot be doubted. They believed what they were told by their leaders and they believed that the policies then enunciated could be carried out in the best interests of the people of Alberta.

"They were led astray, and many of them now see their error and they want a sound good business government. As I see it the future of the Liberal party and of any party in Alberta lies in its ability to bring together now all those who believe in good business government and to weld them into one solid whole, and I want you to listen carefully to what I have to say now.

CALL LEADERS

"I warn you that if I am elected your leader today I will, in the immediate future, maybe in a very few days, call into conference a prominent Conservative, a prominent U.F.A. leader, and prominent leaders of other groups, and ask them to sit down with me around a table and attempt to devise with me ways and means of bringing about sound business government in Alberta.

"I think we can do this with credit to ourselves and all those other parties and leaders concerned and I intend to do it if I am elected your leader. Please consider that point well before you make your decision."

CHEERS ANEW

But there was no hesitation on the part of the eight hundred odd delegates who heard the serious and frank statement. Even before Mr. Gray suddenly ceased and quietly stepped back from the microphone the cheering broke out afresh.

On the platform and all over the big building groups of delegates sprang to their feet and another tumult of enthusiasm swept the pavilion. Cheer after cheer crashed out and then the big audience spontaneously broke into "For he's a jolly good fellow," ending with another burst of cheering which made the windows rattle.

Previous to the dramatic speech of the new leader the delegates had heard six other names submitted for their approval.

They heard Dr. F. W. Gershaw of Medicine Hat, former member of the Federal house, nominated by fellow Liberals with whom he had been through many political battles of the past.

DECHENE REFUSES

They heard the many friends of Joseph T. Shaw, K.C., of Calgary, former Liberal provincial leader, again nominate him for the leadership, closely followed by the nomination of J. J. Bowlen, M.L.A., present Liberal house leader in the legislature, Walter S. Campbell of Edmonton, Joseph M. Dechene of Bonnyville, a former member of the Alberta house, and Roy Edmanson, K.C., of Calgary, president of the Provincial Liberal Association, and they heard the six nominees, one after the other, decline to stand against Mr. Gray whom they lauded as the outstanding choice for leadership.

Warm praise was given each nominee when they were being nominated. Every name was received with enthusiasm, but as one after another they rose to declare their satisfaction with the choice of Mr. Gray and to pledge their full and undeviating support to the new leader they drew even greater applause from the enthusiastic delegates who packed the pavilion.

GREAT DAY FOR PARTY

"It's a great day for the party," declared one grey haired enthusiast. "They said we had no leadership material and here we have had seven men, any one of whom we could have supported.

"No, we have chosen the one they all feel they can follow, and we have chosen well. His acceptance speech was the finest thing I have ever heard in politics in my life."

New Liberal Chief Is 41, Was Overseas

CALGARY, June 5.—E. L. Gray, the new Liberal leader who succeeds Mr. Justice W. R. Howson, who resigned 15 months ago on his elevation to the supreme court bench, was born in Grey County, Ontario, but came to the west as a boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Gray, pioneer homesteaders in the Weyburn, Sask., district.

TAUGHT SCHOOL

Educated in the public schools of Weyburn and Regina, he taught school in Saskatchewan. He is 41 years old.

After serving overseas during the Great War, Mr. Gray attended the agricultural college at Guelph, Ont., graduating in 1924. He joined the Ontario department of agriculture, being stationed at Chatham until he returned to the west in 1925.

He joined the Alberta department of agriculture in 1927. Three years later he was promoted to the position of provincial field crops commissioner and in 1934 deputy minister of municipal affairs for Alberta. He resigned in 1935 after the Aberhart government took office.

TIME NEEDED SAYS PREMIER IN CALGARY

Aid of Douglas Experts is Counted On, Says Mr. Aberhart

CALGARY, June 5—"I don't think the time will come when we will be obliged to tell you we cannot introduce Social Credit," Premier Aberhart declared at a Social Credit rally here last night.

He warned, however, the government would have to be given more time. "As we go along with the aid of Major Douglas' experts."

PUBLIC WILL HEAR

If the time arrived when the government found itself unable to introduce its plans, the public would be informed immediately, the premier added.

Mr. Aberhart denied he had ever treated "visiting experts" unfairly.

"Many experts think they know so much, you can't work with them," he said. He declared six experts had either offered or presented plans to the government.

"One fellow said if he sent us his plan and we kept it, it would cost $5,000. Another had a plan, but he wanted $50,000 first," said the premier. "We told them we didn't want to buy a 'pig in a poke.'"

FROM NEW YORK

Mr. Aberhart said there had been "Canadian, United States and Old Country experts." One, he added, had a plan to create purchasing power by taking one per cent from everybody's bank account; another was sent to Edmonton by a wealthy New York woman and, after a stay in an Edmonton hotel, he reported "his plan" had been stolen.

The Premier recalled that, in a speech here a few years ago, Major Douglas had declared constitutional authority might prove a bar to Social Credit's introduction. He said the people might not get anywhere with the theory until after a revolution in which soldiers would be called out to fight it, Mr. Aberhart stated.

"Now," said the Premier, "Major Douglas says he could have put in Social Credit in from three to six months with the tremendous support given the movement in the province. I don't know why fellows change that way."

Shoe Prints Help Convict Man Of Assault On Girl

TORONTO, June 5. — Plaster moulds of narrow-pointed shoe prints in a back yard were used today in convicting George Lawrence, 21, of assaulting Doris Hamer and stealing $2 from her at her home here May 2.

Miss Hamer awoke early in the morning to find the strange youth leaning over her bed. Her screams frightened the intruder out the window.

Court would not accept Lawrence's evidence he had been on a party until 5 a.m. and was drunk.

Gardiner explained the federal drought rehabilitation program and dealt with the success of the federal government's Liberal trade policies.

Commencing with a brief review of the Alberta situation, Mr. Gardiner said, "No one is quite sure what Social Credit is," raising a general laugh from the audience.

STATE SOCIALISM

Only by State Socialism could a monthly dividend be paid to Albertans, he said, and the Social Crediters had emphasized that they were not Socialists.

Explaining the possibility of a dividend, the federal minister said $220,000,000 worth of new wealth was produced in Alberta every year. This meant approximately $320 per year for every inhabitant. Since total cost of government and education was $100 per year per person, this left $220 per year per person, or approximately $1,200 per family thus almost $20 per month could be distributed, but only under conditions of complete State Socialism. "The only way such dividends could be distributed would be by application of the principles of Karl Marx," he said.

Mr. Gardiner thought the Alberta debt reduction measures ineffective, because they really only applied to those who settled their debts in court, which would be less than one individual in every 100. "The only way you can get debt relief in Alberta is to have yourself haled into court", he said.

Tracing some of the conditions which led up to the drastic debt situation in Saskatchewan's drought area, Mr. Gardiner, a former premier of that province, told how a program of conciliation between creditors and debtors had been gradually evolved since 1914.

ALL WIPED OUT

Finally, in the 157 municipalities of the drought area a blanket adjustment had been effected by which all mortgage company interest prior to January 1, 1935, all federal government relief loans, had been wiped out entirely. This reduced debt in the area by $100,000,000 in two years, he said.

"All this time it has been within the power of the Alberta government to take advantage of this policy—but it hasn't been done," the minister charged. "Relief and taxes are not a party thing—and they shouldn't be so regarded.

"And after listening to Mr. Gray, I can't think of no man who could understand a policy of this kind better than the gentleman you chose this afternoon as leader of the Liberal party in this province!" said Mr. Gardiner, as the crowd cheered.

ON TO VICTORY

"With such a leader you should go on to victory in this province—and after victory to real debt adjustment."

Turning to rehabilitation of drought areas, the agriculture minister stated that the present drought area comprised one-fourth of all the occupied land in Canada, one-fifth of all the farms, and one-tenth of all the population. He outlined the new extensions of the Federal drought rehabilitation program, including the establishment of community pastures and small irrigation projects.

"And I don't know any man in Canada who has a better grasp of rehabilitation problems than Mr. Gray."

The minister dealt at some length with Federal Liberal trade and tariff policies, emphasizing the need for expanding markets. He pointed out that Prime Minister King was at present in London seeking trade agreements and widened markets.

PEACE, CONFIDENCE

Depressions were caused by lack of confidence, he said. This frequently led to war. "Only with peace and confidence will prosperity return," he said. "And when that prosperity comes I hope you have a government in Alberta headed by Mr. Gray, and with a Liberal government in Ottawa we will press forward," he concluded as another burst of cheering broke out.

Mr. Gray, who also spoke briefly, emphasized the necessity of re-establishing the confidence of the people in Alberta.

"The optimism which carried Alberta through its pioneering stages no longer exists," he said. "Many Albertans look upon relief as their natural right and an unearned dividend as their natural heritage."

He deplored attacks by the government upon the press, the church and the business interests.

Bonds of Alberta at present stood at 35 per cent. discount, he said, citing several specific instances of how this had injured ordinary citizens in modest circumstances. "Capital is leaving the province at a time when the government is pledged to institute an industry a week," he said.

Mr. Gray reiterated his statement upon his election as party leader emphasizing that he had no desire to lead "a narrow political party." "I do not believe such a government could establish confidence in Alberta," he said. "We must establish a business government in this province," said the new leader, concluding with an appeal to the pavilion and radio audiences to help him establish "a real business government for Alberta."

Roy M. Edmandson, president of the Alberta Liberal association, was chairman of the meeting.

The United States now has more than 18,818 motion picture theatres, an average of 510 more than in 1935.

Rome Propaganda In Holy Land March

LONDON, June 5.—Inscriptions in Italian and Arabic, reading, "O most sacred heart of Jesus, save us from wicked British imperialism!" were carried at the heads of processions through Bethlehem streets in Palestine's celebration of the Feast of the Sacred Heart, a Reuters News Agency despatch stated today.

Italian and Arab nationalist flags and the Papal colors were born in the van of the religious parades, the despatch added.

Why Taxes High

OTTAWA, June 5.—More than one-third of assessed property in Ottawa is tax-exempt, says the assessment commissioner's report. The capital has 90 churches. The federal government has property assessed at $43,549,234.

EXPLOITERS OF STRIP TEASE TO SUE IN COURTS

NEW YORK, June 5—The Minsky brothers who described themselves as patrons of a "great, living American art," to wit, the "strip tease," or "art" of publicly undressing in burlesque theatres, lost another round with the law today.

Undismayed by the biting excoriation of License Commissioner Moss in denying their application to reopen their emporium on Broadway, the Minskys announced they would "take action."

A month ago, after a storm of denunciation by church and civic leaders, Moss refused to renew the Minskys a license to conduct a burlesque show at the same theatre.

Undaunted, the Minskys asked permission to operate a "colored revue and motion picture show" at the same theatre. But Moss said they probably would make it a burlesque and refused.

The sweat glands of a pig are located in its snout, the only point where the animal perspires.

PROVINCE WIDE YOUNG GRITS TO BE ORGANIZED

CALGARY, June 5.—Formation of a provincial Young Liberal Association for Alberta, to replace the present set-up of a north and south district organization, was announced here last night.

Four representatives from each local association will be named to form a provincial one. They will act as a temporary executive until the new association can elect officers.

Earlier, Hon. James G. Gardiner had urged the necessity of young people joining political clubs.

"The most successful politicians," he said, "were men who engaged in politics by the time they were 30."

Ox-Cart Mishap

KENTVILLE, N.S., June 5—Lawrence Rockwell of nearby Cornwallis is recovering in hospital after his leg had been broken when an ox-cart passed over it. Lawrence had been attempting to climb on the cart when he lost his grip and fell beneath the wheels.

Fire Destroys Home In West End Area

Fire which started in the house owned and occupied by Leo Moret, at 14405 103 avenue, shortly after 1 p.m. Friday completely destroyed the interior of the three room frame building. There was no one in the house at the time and the cause of the fire is as yet undetermined. Firemen from No. 2 and No. 8 fireballs, personally directed by Chief A. Dutton, responded.

Man Can Now Talk With God, Says Noted Psychologist

MOSCOW, IDAHO.—"A new and revolutionary religious teaching designed to show how we may find, understand and use the identical power which Jesus used, is attracting world-wide attention to its founder, Dr. Frank B. Robinson, noted psychologist and author.

"Psychiana," this new scientific teaching, believes that it is today possible for every normal human being, understanding spiritual law as Christ understood it, "to duplicate every work that He ever did."

Dr. Robinson has prepared a 6000 word treatise on "Psychiana," in which he tells about his long search for the Truth, how he finally came to the full realization of an Unseen Power or force "so dynamic in itself that all other powers and forces fade into insignificance beside it"—how he learned to commune directly with the Living God, using this never-failing power to demonstrate health, happiness and financial success, and how any normal being may find and use it.

SATURDAY, JUNE 5

A NEW LEADER

Ten years in a responsible position in the civil service of Alberta, followed by business experience in the management of a large irrigation enterprise, should give any man a good working knowledge of conditions among many classes of people in the province, and as well a valuable training in administrative work.

This background no doubt had something to do with the selection of Mr. E. L. Gray as leader of the Alberta Liberals. And along with these advantages he has the essential political assets of an excellent reputation and good platform ability. The new leader was chosen by a large and representative convention, his selection being unanimous and evoking a great enthusiasm.

If he is handicapped for the time by being less widely known than men who have been in the political limelight for years, this is offset by a more than usually large opportunity for service. With confusion, uncertainty and apprehension prevailing everywhere, Alberta is badly in need of clear-headed, strong, confidence-inspiring leadership, and this Mr. Gray seems to be well qualified to give.

THREE IN A ROW

Since—according to Hon. W. A. Fallow—the Dominion is willing to assist in building park-to-park highways but has only found one road, that from Calgary to Waterton, which falls properly under this heading, why not remind Ottawa that there are three parks in this part of the province none of which is approachable by a highway of the type being built to connect the parks in southern Alberta?

Jasper, Elk Island and Wainwright are all National parks, each possessing attractions all its own and sufficient to draw tourists in vast numbers when made reachable by motor car in safety and comfort. If a highway from Wainwright to Elk Island to Jasper would not be a park-to-park highway, just how would it be described? It would tax the resources of official evasiveness to find reasons for excluding it from that category.

All these National parks have been systematically neglected, in comparison with the money spent to provide hard-surfaced dustless motor roads to the Banff park. Since the Waterton park is now to be given highway access similar to that enjoyed by Banff, there can be no justification for refusing to give these three central Alberta parks the same opportunity to fulfil their purpose. A highway linking the three would be in the strictest sense of the term a park-to-park highway, and a federal grant toward the cost of constructing it would be entirely warranted on that ground.

THE WARRIORS RETURN

The members of the legislature are heading back toward the city, theoretically to take on where they left off six weeks ago. The majority come back as warriors returning from the battle.

In the interval the majority group have been engaged in the liveliest kind of an election campaign, though of a variety not before seen here. The object has been to find out whether the rank and file of the party want them to support the present Government or vote it out of office. The result will be seen later.

But the returning gladiators are bringing back something besides verdicts from their several party executives. They are bringing also some memories of the fray which seem fairly likely to start echoes flying when the debating gets under way. And some of which relate to incidents which in the public interest should be discussed.

Mrs. Gostick, for instance, has gone on record with some remarkable platform utterances, which should be verified, withdrawn or qualified. She has easily won the laurels as the hottest campaigner of them all, with the guessing about even as to whether she has done more to damage the Insurgents or embarrass the Government. Here are a few of the contributions Calgary's lady member has been reported as making to the enlivenment of the recess proceedings:

That some Insurgent members would be on relief if the Premier had not got them elected to the legislature;

That financial interests have tried to buy the Premier;

That financiers have subscribed from three million dollars to three hundred millions to unseat him;

That pressure brought to bear on some members of the Government resulted in conspiracy meetings last winter in Edmonton and Calgary.

These are serious statements. They allege attempted bribery on the part of the financial interests. They involve the honor of members of the legislature. They raise questions of vital interest to the public if they are true. Are they true? Are they statements of fact or mere expressions of suspicion? The legislature should find out.

MUNITION PROFITS

Some weeks ago an English munitions firm, that of Messrs. Ransomes and Rapier in Ipswich, startled the House of Commons by volunteering to fabricate arms for the country without profit. Labor members applauded the proposal as a definite advance in the campaign for taking the profits out of war. After due analysis of the offer, however, the ministry decided it would have to repay the company for any losses sustained in forging arms strictly at cost price. The offer was rejected, with thanks.

But the incident has left echoes behind it. That eloquent Liberal editor, J. A. Spender, has rebuked the cabinet and urged that its aversion to co-operation marks a betrayal of its own principles. The royal commission on the private manufacture of armaments provided for a ministry of supply to regulate all profits in the industry. Spurning the invitation of Messrs Ransomes and Rapier seemed to throw a huge question mark on the Government's sincerity.

Strangely enough, the Government's most convincing justification came from the then Chancellor of the exchequer, not from the national defence department. Mr. Chamberlain's last budget put new taxes and added restrictions upon firms making excessive profits by manufacture of war materials. The cabinet had rejected state participation in armament making. Instead, it was content to let munition men make money and then take much of it back again by special taxation, rather than become partner with any private munitions firm in the latter's losses.

But the munitions men had another idea. What they make out of the rearmament business they want to keep. They engineered a revolt among the Government's Conservative supporters in the House of Commons. These said they would upset the Government if they were not afraid of precipitating a general election, and they are numerous enough to do it. Finally Mr. Chamberlain, now Prime Minister, withdrew the bill and said he would get the money by some easier method. Meaning perhaps from the general public, who are less able to stir up rebellions in parliament.

So another scheme, and a very proper and promising one, to "take the profits out of war" has gone by the board.

Saving Your Eyesight

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

Of all the five senses, the sight is the one most valued by the average person. It has been estimated that about half of the population has poor vision because of eye defects. Fortunately, with the science we now have of fitting glasses accurately, many of these defects may be corrected with the result that normal vision is restored.

Dr. F. McCoy

In most instances, this poor vision is due to the fact that the individual is born with an eyeball simply not normal. When the eyeball is too short, then we have the far sighted eye. By the length of the eyeball being too short, the eye has to exert extra effort with consequent nerve strain in order to focus and maintain clearer vision.

Or, an individual may be born with the type of eye in which the eyeball is too long, produsing the nearsighted eye. The nearsighted person sees objects close to him much better than objects far away and may complain of blurring when he tries to use the eyes in seeing any object in the distance. There is another nearsighted condition called false myopia, which is usually caused by an excessive strain on the focussing apparatus of the eye.

Or, the defect may take the form of astigmatism.

We like to think that we were born with perfect eyes, but close study will show that this is far from true and that it is frequently the case that people have defective vision from the eyeball not being shaped right.

It is perfectly true that modern conditions may tend to encourage eyestrain, which in turn may aggravate any eye trouble already present. Many people undoubtedly abuse their eyes at close work, either during the day when they are at their jobs, or during the evening, by being under a light which is too dim, being under a glaring light, reading fine print, or doing handwork of a type which strains the eyes. When in the first place, you have an eye which is having a hard time to see clearly and when this is added an unnecessary strain in the second place, trouble develops more rapidly than otherwise and the individual complains of failing vision.

Sometimes the eyeball is normal and there is present a muscular imbalance of the eyes. The eyes are moved in various directions by sets of muscles. For example, you have eye muscles which turn the eyes inwardly when you want to look toward your nose, and you have opposing sets which turn them outwardly when you wish to look toward the side. These pairs of muscles are supposed to balance each other in such a way as to hold the eye in its normal position.

However, one set may become stronger than the other and the strong ones will then take the ascendancy. Such muscular imbalance may pull the eye in toward the nose and thus cause an undesirable condition. I mention this because it is extremely interesting to know that eye specialists have worked out special instruments which may be used to strengthen and correct weak eye muscles.

There appears to be considerable reason to believe that good vision also depends to some extent upon vitamin A. For a long time it has been known that lack of this vitamin produced among other conditions, the condition of night blindness. Recent discoveries have demonstrated that if the eye is to be a good seeing organ, the retina must be supplied with the vitamin, which is obtained from foods.

I can not too strongly impress upon you the advisability of taking care of your sight while you still have it. It is a good plan to have the eyes examined, and to wear glasses if you are advised that they are needed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. W. H. J. inquires: "My husband has developed an ache in the back right over the kidneys. I think it is caused by the fact that he eats Cream Cheese. Do you publish an article giving the acid-forming foods?"

ANSWER: I recommend Cream Cheese and consider it wholesome. I suggest that in eating this type of cheese your husband eat it in place of meat and not in addition to it. Because of its concentrated food value, use this type of cheese with raw and cooked non-starchy vegetables. However, I see no reason to believe that your husband's backache is due mainly to eating Cream Cheese and the best advice I can give him is to secure a doctor's examination to find out what is causing the ache in the back. Yes, I have prepared an article giving the names of some of the common foods which are acid forming, also those which are alkaline forming. I will be glad to send the article to any reader. Ask for Acid-Alkaline Balance and enclose one large self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

QUESTION: "Curious" wants to know: "Is paralysis considered contagious?"

ANSWER: Most forms of paralysis are not contagious. However, Infantile Paralysis is classed with the contagious disorders.

Poems That Live

ONLY

Something to live for came to the place,
Something to die for maybe,
Something to give even sorrow a grace,
And yet it was only a baby!

Cooing, and laughter, and gurgles, and cries,
Dimples for tenderest kisses,
Chaos of hopes, and of raptures, and sighs,
Chaos of fears and of blisses.

Last year, like all years, the rose and the thorn;
This year a wilderness maybe;
But heaven stooped under the roof on the morn
That it brought them only a baby.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

It isn't the fields of waving grain or the crimson sunsets of Alberta that drive its people to poetry. It's the roads.

One "Barentoft" sends me the following poem inspired by the road between LaBiche and Boyle:

I'm up in God's country—
So I have heard tell;
It may be God's country—
But well—Oh just well!
When I look it over
To see what it's got,
Well—somehow I'd call it
The land He forgot.
With mud and with snow—
With frost and with hail—
Do you wonder that most
Of the farmers would fail!
Do you wonder I grouch
As I sit here alone,
With mud to the bumper—
I think you would groan!
God's country they call it—
Oh how they malign!
The devil he made it
And thought it was fine—
Or else some poor help—
While the higher one slept—
And when He awoke—
How He must have wept!

Robbie Burns wrote some lines on the roads between Kilmarnock and Stewarton that might have been written in Alberta in the spring of 1937:

I'm now arrived, thanks to the gods!
Thro' pathways rough and muddy—
A certain sign that making roads
Is not this people's study.
And tho' I'm not with Scripture crammed,
I'm sure the Bible says
That heedless sinners shall be damned
Unless they mend their ways.

The Bible was brought into evidence when the Turgeon Grain Commission sat recently at Calgary, because of its dicta on rents, farm leases and grain storage.

William Denton, for 27 years a wheat-grower in Alberta, was on the stand. His complaint was that following several lean years, the Alberta government had taken his farm for taxes, municipal government having been abolished in his district. He told the Commissioner that he now pays the Aberhart government one-fifth of his crop as rent.

Somebody thought that had a Scriptural ring. When Joseph was Premier of Egypt, you may recall, he put the government into the grain business, making the first recorded corner in wheat. Search in the book of Genesis about the renting arrangement unearthed the following in Genesis 47:24 (Joseph speaking):

> "And it shall come to pass in the increase that ye shall give the fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your household, and for food for your little ones."

That seems to put the seal of Scriptural approval on the government's renting arrangement, although Mr. Denton demurred at being a government tenant, saying "The only privilege we have left is cleaning out the barn."

Following Mr. Denton to the stand came Alfred Rawlins, one of the moguls of the Grain Exchange. He too quoted Joseph as a precedent for grain exchange operations. When Mr. Pitblado, K.C., one of the counsel, objected to Mr. Rawlins' version of Scripture, a Bible was requisitioned.

"Don't go too deep into that book. I'm quite a student of it," warned Mr. Rawlins as he handed the Bible to Mr. Pitblado.

From chapter 41 in the book of Genesis, recording the story of Joseph's dream of the fat and the lean kine, Mr. Pitblado made the point that Joseph had heavenly revelation in advance on the course of the wheat market. Unlike the Grain Exchange, he was betting on a sure thing.

"Give me the Book and I'll read YOU something," said Mr. Rawlins. More in anger than in sorrow, as he gave a significant look in Mr. Pitblado's direction, he intoned, "Go to, ye rich men, weep and howl!"

Mr. Pitblado neither wept nor howled as directed, but he was sufficiently thrown off balance to forget to cross-examine the witness on the point.

"Lone Eagle" Lindbergh and his mate seem to have found in England the privacy they desired. A third young eaglet has been born to them—and nobody knew till Lindbergh himself disclosed it a week later.

Being a hero in a land without history can become a peace-shattering existence, as Lindbergh learned. After the first glut of acclaim it is pleasanter to live in a land where heroes and personages are so plentiful they go un-noted, and their wives can perform their biological mission without being hounded by news photographers and special inquisitors.

While the British people hold large appreciation for Lindbergh's lone flight, they recall that the first non-stop airplane crossing of the Atlantic was performed while Lindbergh was a schoolboy. It was done without publicity just over seventeen years ago by two British airmen, Alcock and Brown. Without special training or much experience in long distance flying these two naval airmen flew a wartime bombing plane—a veritable old crate it would be regarded today—from Newfoundland to Ireland, capturing for Great Britain the honor of the first non-stop Atlantic crossing.

No subsequent crossing in special built and specially equipped planes can compare with this first crossing by Alcock and Brown.

Has this chap a sense of humor, or is he just plain dumb?

A meeting of the German-American Bund was held in New York at which Fritz J. Kuhn, leader of the Amerika-Deutscher Bund undertook to reprimand Mayor LaGuardia for making disrespectful remarks about Hitler. Herr Kuhn is reported as follows:

> "We will fight like our forefathers for this country. If LaGuardia doesn't like us he can get out of the country. We don't need him here."

That's clever satire, but Herr Kuhn probably didn't know it.

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

Today is practically the centenary of Cobourg, Ont., as a town, for it was on June 5, 1837, that the first town officers were elected, although the royal assent to the act of incorporation was given on March 4 preceding. The town had been divided into three wards, east, west and south, the two former electing two to the police board and the south only one. The first board entered upon an ambitious program, including fire protection, "a supply of pure and wholesome water", lighting, paving and "flaging" streets, but care was taken not to interfere with the vested rights of the Cobourg Harbor Company which had been the prime developer of the town. The centenary of Cobourg will be celebrated by a reunion the last days of July and civic holiday, the first Monday in August, when old scenes will be revived in a colorful pageant.

A year later, on this date, the loyal folk of Cobourg, always in the majority, were stirred to great indignation because "some of the militiamen had carried their politics on to the parade ground" and had not only dared to voice sympathies with Bill Johnson and his marauders from "York State," but had "actually flown a red flag on the parade ground." Some of the ultra Loyalists demanded legal action, but none was taken, it being found that the incident was less harmful than it appeared. A private in the ranks had a grudge against his captain and when the company was passing the saluting point he flung to the breeze his wife's red petticoat to anger the officer. He did. He also angered his comrades, who broke ranks, tore the offending "flag" to ribbons, and mauled the culprit who fled the country. A few weeks later a stranger called at his home with a parcel which contained a very large red flannel petticoat which served both the good lady and her children for many years. Whether it was a testimonial from Bill Johnson or from the fugitive husband the record does not tell.

This date is important for Canadian Jewry because it was on June 5, 1831, that the royal assent was given to the bill of the Lower Canada legislature giving Jews full political equality, the French-speaking Roman Catholic province thus ante-dating Jewish emancipation in England by many years.

The Mail Bag

GREATEST FOOD

Editor Bulletin: In an item showing "an increase of $112,000,000 in the 'value' of Canada's farm products' and a grand total of $1,061,000,000 for the past year, I was glad to note the West's share of 37 per cent.

Doubtless a general valuation is placed on total production and a considerable fraction of the final figure remains "on the farm" and can be translated into coin of the realm only inferentially and by some very circuitous routes?

It would be very interesting, for example, to see the contributory proportions of the various field crops to Saskatchewan's total of $181,750,000 and to the aggregate of $143,650,000 in Alberta.

At what point, I wonder, is the wheat crop "valued"? In this reader's opinion one of the basic faults in the general economic structure of the Dominion, lies not alone in the fact that the wheat farmer gets "world valuations" for what he sells, and pays "North American valuations" for what he buys—but in the later fact that the various rates, charges and tariffs, for services rendered in connection with the movement and marketing of the grain, are all more or less stabilized. The unorganized farmer takes it on the chin all the time from his tightly regimented urban brother. It should teach him, surely, the imperative need of meeting organization with organization.

After hearing a round "100 farmers" testify before the Turgeon Grain Inquiry Commission a columnist in your contemporary (Free Press, Winnipeg) concludes jubilantly: "As the U.G.G. brief said near the start, there is no concensus of farm opinion. . . . No one, after this, should be dogmatic about what the farmers want. They're not unanimous, or close to it, on a single detail."

That looks suspiciously like someone whistling to keep his courage up. Why do we always look for things to be "unanimous" in rural life, Mr. Editor, when we know that we don't call for unanimity in urban life. I think "the greatest good for the greatest number" would be sound procedure on the farm, or off it.

BRITISH COLUMBIA IS LIBERAL

The people of British Columbia went to the polls yesterday and recorded two very momentous decisions:

1. That they continue to demand progressive and active political leadership, and
2. That they are determined to seek progress and action along Liberal and evolutionary rather than along Socialistic and radical lines.

Yesterday's poll should leave no doubt in the minds of observers from Victoria to Halifax that the trend in this country is still decidedly Liberal and that Liberal thinking still dominates the political plans of the Canadian people.

It was this irresistible force of Liberalism that shattered the hopes of the newly-furbished Conservative party in British Columbia rather than any lack of calibre in the men who represented that party.

It was the same force that gave a negative answer to the proposals of the C.C.F. in spite of the idealistic and attractive doctrines of that party.

The people of this province have determined that for the time being at least they will have no part in any experiment with short cuts to Utopia.

Similarly, having set their faces towards recovery and progress, they will not look backward to seek that retrenchment which is the role of the Tories and only has a place on the political stage in times of hardship and depression.

While yesterday's result was a convincing victory for Liberalism, it was not without its tragedies within all parties. Some very excellent candidates have been temporarily crowded out of the political picture.

The Pattullo government has promised certain very specific performances which are in accord with the best tenets of Liberalism.

It has promised to pursue its demands for better terms with the East and with the Dominion.

It has promised to extend its program of road building.

It has promised to expand and develop foreign trade.

These are Liberal policies and policies which the Liberal-minded public has endorsed.

It is well that the Pattullo government should be fully aware, on the eve of its second term in office, that as completely as the electorate has returned that government by endorsing those Liberal policies, it will just as readily and just as easily turn that government out of office should it depart from those Liberal policies.

For there is a vital truth involved here that politicians frequently forget.

And that is that the people vote for principals rather than for men.

This is a victory, not for any man or group of men, but for Liberalism.

The Pattullo government will survive just as long as it continues to be truly Liberal—and no longer. —The Vancouver Sun.

PRISON PROBE HEARS FARM TRAINING PLEA

Dominion Bureau to Co-Ordinate Provincial Efforts Also Suggested

WINNIPEG, June 5—Two plans for rehabilitation of prisoners discharged from penal institutions were proposed at the royal commission investigating the Canadian penal system yesterday.

Co-ordination of private and public organizations engaged in this work was urged by Rabbi Solomon Frank, who suggested one Dominion bureau be established to enable the provinces to work through a central agency.

Establishment of homes or "farm centres" to take care of prisoners immediately following their discharge until they could readjust themselves to normal living, was recommended by Dr. J. H. Riddell, principal of Wesley College.

He said the Prisoners' Aid Association ranked crime prevention and treatment of discharged prisoners as two of the most important problems facing the commission. He felt more attention should be given education of convicted persons during their imprisonment.

ON WOMEN LIES WORLD'S PEACE

MONTREAL, June 5.—Hope for world peace rests with women, says 79-year-old Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, founder and first president of the National Council of Jewish Women.

If all women in all their organizations are united firmly, the aged crusader for peace declared in an address, "we really may hope for a peaceful world." Men, she said, were too busy with other things; and besides, many of them looked on war as a rather stimulating adventure.

"It is the women who are going to bring peaceful settlement of difficulties," she said.

Mrs. Solomon did not see why peaceful countries should be afraid of dictators. "I am not," she declared, "and I don't think there is any cause for the democratic nations to worry about those dictators."

When The Doctor Retired

By Nellie McClung

DR. GIBSON had retired. He was through with sickness, and nerves, and broken legs, tonsils, and infants. Through with them forever. Thirty years is a long time to serve your fellow men on a 24-hour shift, and this he had done faithfully. He had ploughed through snow, mud or dust, according to the season; rode horseback, walked, gone on snowshoes, and of late years driven a car, but it was all over now. Young Dr. Hunter was installed in the little red office on Trent street, and a carefully worded announcement had appeared in the Times telling of Dr Gibson's retirement and the young doctor's promotion.

NELLIE McCLUNG

Too active to settle into idleness, Dr. Gibson had bought a farm, 50 miles nearer the mountains, and on the very day of his retirement he drove out to take possession. His wife would follow in a week. But the doctor could not wait any longer. He wanted to go to sleep in peace, in a quiet room where no one could call him,—a long night's sleep. How he craved one peaceful uninterrupted night, away from the clang of a telephone bell.

GREAT CONTENTMENT

As he drove over the mellow harvest fields a great contentment came over him. It is a fitting time, he thought, for a man to retire. After the harvest,—rest. Even the fields have rest. Leaves fall, and grass dies down. So it would be with him after his 30 years of practice. Thirty years in the midst of alarms!

His little bag lay beside him on the seat of the car. He had unconsciously thrown it in as usual. He put his hand on it affectionately. "We're through," he said, "you and I. Let the young fellow carry on from here. We've done our bit—I'll take out all the instruments, pack them in an iron box and use the little bag to carry eggs to town, for I am a farmer now—with hayseed in my hair. Eggs to town! No—I won't go near the town—some one would ask me to look at his tongue. I don't want to see anyone's tongue, I don't want to see people."

When he arrived at his new farm he found the people had not vacated the house, which was just as well, he thought, for he did not want to get his own meals. His room was ready for him, and the high feather bed looked comforting and secure. He was glad to hear there was no telephone in the house, for he knew he would spring out of bed at the first peal.

He went to bed early and had just closed his eyes when he heard a commotion in the yard. A man on horseback had arrived in haste. He heard excited voices downstairs and a delightful feeling of this being no concern of his, came over him. He could sleep no matter how loudly they talked!

Then a heavy knock sounded on his door, and a strange voice said, "Say, doctor, can you come with me? We're in terrible trouble. Just heard you were here, and came right over."

The doctor was on his feet in a moment, getting dressed.

TEAM RAN AWAY

The man went on talking outside the door. "My team ran away and threw out the old man when we were on our way to town, and then Grace took bad—and my sister is subject to fits. She always gets them when she's excited."

Over five miles the doctor drove his car, five miles of terrible road—deep ruts and muskeg. "A man just happened to see you go by with your little bag beside you," his companion was saying. "We knew you had bought this place but did not know when you would be moving out. It seems like Providence is looking after us, even in our bad luck . . . We live pretty far out and the roads are bad, but still it seems we always manage somehow to get help when we need it. The Lord always provides."

What about me, the doctor thought to himself. Who is looking after me?

When he reached the house of trouble, he found the misfortune had not been exaggerated. The old man lay unconscious from the fall from a wagon; the daughter-in-law, Grace, was in labor pains, and another woman whom they called Maud, was having nervous spasms from the excitement. The contents of the little black bag were hurriedly put into action, and all night long the old fight went on—from one to the other of his patients the doctor went calming their fears soothing their pain.

Just as the morning broke there came a lull. Grace lay at peace, with her first born beside her; the old man had quietly breathed his last and thus rounded out his eighty-five years of active service. Under a hypodermic, poor Maude was released from her fears and phobias.

Outside in the shivery dawn the doctor washed his hands at a basin which stood beside the door on a packing box. He looked at the sun edging up from the horizon bringing in a new day. The smell of coffee came to him pleasantly Grace's husband, his companion of the night before, was cooking his breakfast.

There was a great weariness in his bones, now that he had time to think of it, but a sense of elation was on him too. The muddy car stood before him accusingly—one tire had gone down in the night. The doctor splashed the cold water over his face, finding fresh vigor in its coolness. Then he spoke to the car.

"Cheer up, you old stager. What's a tire more or less on a night like this? Have you no professional pride? Don't you hear Grace's baby crying? That little fellow is more important than either you or me. We are only incidents. Life's the thing, and it goes on, regardless. Like the Sunrise!"

WOMEN PROTEST PENSION RULES

LONDON, June 5.—The storm raised by women M.P.'s of all parties because men earning up to $2,000 a year may qualify for a state pension, whereas women may qualify only if their total income is under $1,250 is finding an echo all over the country.

The London and National Society for Women's Service held a meeting when objections to the Contributory Pensions Bill were voiced.

"If this bill is passed," said Mrs. H. B. Tate, Conservative M.P., "not only will a great injustice be done to women, but a new standard of inequality will be set up. I hope that women will organize protests against this measure in every conceivable way."

Dr. Maude Royden spoke of the hardship she had seen among single women living on a pittance in their old age. These women, she said, had contributed to the support of their parents and other members of their family, and were now left to shift for themselves in loneliness and poverty.

Lady Astor, M.P., said the salary discrimination between the sexes under the bill was grossly unfair. The meeting was supported by nearly 20 women's organizations.

FARMER OPERATES BIRD SANCTUARY

DAVIDSON, Sask., June 5.—Reuben Lloyd, farmer, businessman and naturalist, has built up the bird and animal sanctuary he started here 30 years ago until now it is the home of virtually every type of bird known in Saskatchewan and many game animals.

Although well known as a realtor and farmer, Mr. Lloyd is still better known as a naturalist whose knowledge of the bird life of the province is unexcelled by any ornithologist in Canada. He is known as the Jack Miner of Saskatchewan.

Beginning with a small flock of Canada Geese, he has bred in captivity many varieties of wild geese and ducks. By damming a creek flowing across his land and fencing 40 acres for his feathered friends, he has provided an ideal habitat.

His geese include Canadas, Blue Geese, Snows, White-fronted and Cackling geese and several interesting crosses. Among hybrids are crosses between Blues and Lesser Snows, two species very closely related.

Mr. Lloyd has kept eight whistling Swans for 20 years but has not succeeded in inducing them to breed. They are quite tame and evidently well content with their surroundings. He has some white wild ducks, cross between an Albino Mallard and an English Call Duck. Many of these have been banded and freed, much to the mystification of sportsmen who have shot them at widely separated points on the continent.

The sanctuary also affords homes to anteiopes and white-tailed deer.

Less Unemployment Shown In Australia

CANBERRA, Australia, June 5.—Official returns released by the Commonwealth Statistician Dr. Wilson, reveal the lowest percentage of unemployment in Australia since February, 1929. Of 443,446 members of 388 trades unions, only 44,004, or 9.9 per cent, were without jobs during the March quarter.

DOGS

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

AILING DOGS

In a letter I received recently a woman states that she would be interested in reading about home remedies and nursing care of dogs, also how to recognize symptoms of illness, fever; how to avoid pneumonia, and where is the best place for a dog to sleep at night. She writes that her dog caught pneumonia last winter from going out into the cold after sleeping in a very warm house where the air is so extremely dry is causes the whole family to have colds all winter. "Until I read your column I was absolutely ignorant of the needs of a dog." I want to help this reader, and it also occurs to me that there may be others who might be eager to get such information.

Now as to giving advice on so-called home remedies, generally speaking I do not believe in them. Very frequently, not only in the case of dogs but of people, they can do more harm than good. By this I do not mean that if your dog should cut itself or appear to have strained slightly a muscle or tendon that you should not use common sense and apply a standard antiseptic after first cleansing the wound, or use an accepted remedy like arnica for a strain or bruise. What I do wish to convey is the fact that in my opinion, it is often dangerous to endeavor to make a diagnosis, and then try to cure the ailment one has determined upon.

WRITTEN ABOUT REMEDIES

This does not mean that one with years of experience with dogs cannot know from such experience when an animal is suffering from some minor ailment which he knows and understands how to correct without calling in a veterinarian. But a person would be bold indeed to write in the columns of a newspaper a list of house remedies to be used under certain conditions and at certain times! I am a dog-man, and beyond what I have written about remedies, based upon common sense, I can say no more than perhaps to explain how to know if one's dog is not well—barring illness resulting from injuries.

If a dog shows any sign of being "off its feed," watch it. If this condition persists, call a veterinarian. If the animal's bowels do not function pursue the same course. A dog coming down with any sickness usually gives signs of it some days in advance, although not always. These symptoms are usually listlessness, failing appetite, dry nose, coated tongue, and a general air of being out of sorts. The presence of fever can be determined usually by the feel of the skin, the nose, etc., just as the old-fashioned grandmother needed no clinical thermometer to convince her that baby was running a temperature. If, however, one wants to make sure, a veterinarian's clinical thermometer can be obtained in almost any drug store, and incidentally, no one owning a dog should be without one.

VARY SOMEWHAT

The dog's temperature is taken in the rectum, and runs usually about 101½ degrees, but it should be remembered that dogs vary somewhat, and, therefore, it is well to assure oneself exactly what a dog's normal temperature is when in perfect health. It should also be borne in mind that such test should not be made after violent exercise or excitement, when the temperature is liable to be higher than usual. At the slightest sign of increased temperature, unless accountable in a normal way, call your veterinarian, and follow his advice.

Mr. Goodsell will be glad to answer letters about dogs, exclusive of those dealing with sickness, if you will write him at Tenacre, White Plains, New York. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

ENGINEERS HAVE TO KNOW MUSIC

SAINT JOHN, N.B., June 5.—Engineers aboard the British motor-vessel Queen Anne which docked here have to know their music.

With diesel engines developing pressures as high as four tons a square inch, engineers must know when pressures reach the safety limit.

So, when pressure in the air-lines goes past this limit a whistle blows and in order that mechanics may know in which part of the apparatus the danger lies, the whistles have different pitches for each part.

One may emit a high C, another a low B, while rising pressures in another part of the engine-room will bring a mellow middle A.

It takes a bit of practice to get onto it, but the music takes the monotony out of the engine-room, says Chief Engineer A. Keans.

BRILLIANT FILM COMEDY

Amazing Magic Performed In Rialto's Feature Show

Roland Young Stars In "The Man Who Could Work Miracles"

London Films' eagerly awaited production "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" begins its three-day run at the Rialto theatre today.

The brilliant partnership of Alexander Korda and H. G. Wells, which scored such a triumph with "Things to Come," has now turned its attention to comedy. The plot briefly concerns what happens when, through the whim of the gods, a human is given the power to work any material miracle he desires. The man chosen is George McWhirter Fotheringay, a draper's assistant. This role is taken by Roland Young, who is very popular in this country and in America. He is supported by a brilliant cast which includes Joan Gardner, Ralph Richardson, Ernest Thesiger, Edward Chapman, Sophie Stewart, Lady Tree and Wally Patch.

TRICK DEPARTMENT

The principal problems of filming "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" were, of course, in making the miracles look convincing, and they were effectively overcome by the highly organized trick department of London Films under the direction of Ned Mann, principally assisted by Laurence Butler and E. Cohen.

This is one of the first films to be made almost entirely at the new Denham studios, and the exterior scenes were shot in the grounds surrounding the estate. Lothar Mendes, who will be remembered for "Four Feathers," "Payment Deferred" and "Jew Suss," directed "The Man who Could Work Miracles."

GENE AUTRY MUSICAL

A new Gene Autry musical western, "Rootin' Tootin' Rhythm," is the second Rialto feature.

Gene needs no introduction to local fans. His long series of Republic westerns has entrenched him firmly in the hearts of his public who find that Autry grin, and that pleasant Autry drawl, antidote for almost any kind of tribulation.

"Rootin' Tootin' Rhythm," as the name implies, takes Gene and his pal "Frog" into intriguing adventures in which his mellow tenor hill-billy crooning plays an important part. The two of them are mistaken for bad men, who in turn are mistaken for sheriffs. When the pseudo sheriffs pursue the pseudo bad men, that's when the fun and excitement begins.

The Rialto's free dinnerware offer to lady patrons will continue as usual from Monday to Thursday of next week.

PRIZE-WINNING FILM TO PLAY AT PRINCESS

Rosalind Russell and John Boles, as Mr. and Mrs. Walter Craig, will be seen in the picturization of George Kelly's famous Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Craig's Wife," which opens next Monday at the Princess theatre.

The stars are supported in lesser roles by an imposing cast, including Billie Burke, Jane Darwell, Dorothy Wilson, Alma Kruger, Thomas Mitchell, Robert Allen and Raymond Walburn. Dorothy Arzner foremost woman director in Hollywood, guided the film transcription during its production, based on the screen play by Mary McCall.

"Craig's Wife," as drama lovers will recall, is the story of an implacable wife who subjugated her every emotion to attain what she considered the most important factor in every woman's life—complete independence. She sweeps so relentlessly towards her goal that finally she wins her independence but loses everything else in life worth having.

Miss Russell essays her first important emotional role in films in "Craig's Wife," having thus far gained her greatest fame as a charming, subtle comedienne.

Capitol To Show Sensational Film In Natural Color

"A Star Is Born", the sensational natural color production is definitely booked for the Capitol theatre and will play a week's engagement commencing Saturday, June 12. Janet Gaynor and Fredric March are the featured stars and it is said that in this masterpiece they both do the best work of their entire careers. Assisting these stars are May Robson, Adolphe Menjou, Andy Devine and Lionel Stander.

"A Star Is Born" is the glamorous story of a little country girl who came to Hollywood to face the odds of 100,000 to one and scaled the heights of stardom, marks the first up-to-the-minute story to be filmed in technicolor.

Temperamental? This Hen Snares Celluloid Honors

The height of Hollywood temperament has been found.

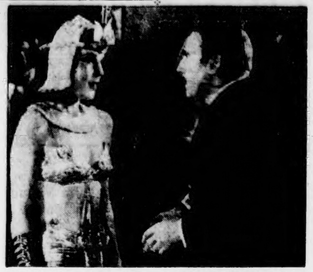
A hen, working with Billie Lee and Esther Dale in "Wild Money," starring Edward Everett Horton, refused to cackle in long shots. Director King worked with the fowl for half an hour, finally gave up, and moved in to do close-ups.

The hen cackled furiously when three feet from the camera. So King fooled her. He kept the camera close while he made a sound track. The sound track will be dubbed in the long shots.

Station Library

PETROLIA, Ont., June 5.—This town's former C.N.R. station has been remodelled into a public library.

He Performs Real Magic



Joan Gardner and Roland Young in Alexander Korda's production of H. G. Wells' comedy, "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," which opens at the Rialto theatre today for a three-day run.

At Empress

BOB BURNS,

who is co-starred with Bing Crosby and Martha Raye in "Waikiki Wedding" which opens at the Empress theatre on Monday.

Rialto Patrons May Complete Dinnerware Sets Under New Plan

Starting on Monday and for four days each week, matinee and evening, ladies who have been saving "Aristocrat" Dinnerware will now be enabled to have a choice of the pieces that they need to complete their set. Those who wish to complete their set immediately can buy as many tickets as they require pieces to complete their set, and these tickets can be used for subsequent shows.

"BANJO ON MY KNEE" DRAMA WITH MUSIC

A drama with music, deftly relieved by comedy and enlivened by several new song hits, combine to make "Banjo on My Knee," the Twentieth Century-Fox picture which opens Monday at the Dreamland theatre, a hit screen production. Add to this a story that is distinctly different in theme and plot construction; with the locale of Tobacco Road and for characters the shanty-boaters who live, love and die on their ramshackle barges on the lower Mississippi, and the sum total is something new in movie entertainment.

Fighting — loving — laughing — weeping, the tempestuous emotions of these picturesque children of the mighty river stir the blood and intrigue the interest of everyone, from opening scene to thrilling climax. The selection of a cast to delineate these difficult roles was little short of inspired, with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea co-starred, supported by such talented and popular players as Helen Westley, Buddy Ebsen, Walter Brennan, Walter Catlett, Anthony Martin and Katherine de Mille.

GINGER ROGERS DOES RHUMBA

Ginger Rogers temporarily "goes Latin" in "Shall We Dance," new filmusical in which she is co-starred with Fred Astaire. The peppery Ginger dances the rhumba in early scenes of the production.

Miss Rogers' rhumba partner is Pete Theodore, dark and handsome dancer well known to Broadway stage and eastern night club audiences.

The rhumba is only one of several dances by Miss Rogers in the new picture. Her other numbers are all danced with the nimble-footed Astaire.

GAY MUSICAL COMEDY FILM FOR EMPRESS

"Waikiki Wedding" Stars Bing Crosby, Bob Burns, Martha Raye

High comedy, music and romance in glamorous Waikiki, enacted by a splendid cast including some of the best known names of the radio and screen, and splendidly conceived and directed, make "Waikiki Wedding," which opens a three-day showing at the Empress Monday as brilliant and thoroughly enjoyable an evening's entertainment as could be hoped for.

The cast is headed by Bing Crosby and includes Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Shirley Ross, George Barbier and Leif Erikson in the main roles, with back ground and atmosphere provided by two hundred and fifty native dancers, drummers and musicians. Among the latter are Miri Rei, the dancing girl who proved the sensation of the Ziegfeld Follies a few years ago, and Kuulei and Nalani De Clerq, Honolulu dancing girls.

OUTSMARTS HIMSELF

"Waikiki Wedding" is the story of a smart publicity man, played by Crosby, who outsmarts himself. As the representative of a pineapple cannery, he organizes a contest for pineapple recipes, the winner of which is to receive a vacation in glamorous Waikiki. Miss Ross wins the contest, comes to Waikiki, becomes bored with the place and decides to return home, ruining the publicity campaign.

Much of the rest of the picture is taken up with Crosby's attempts to keep Miss Ross thrilled. He succeeds but falls in love with her. When she learns he had provided a synthetic Waikiki for her she leaves him but he wins her back by employing the unique methods which made of him the great publicity man he is.

At Strand

GEORGE BRENT,

who appears at the Strand theatre today in "Mountain Justice" co-starred with Josephine Hutchinson.

Winchell, Bernie Renew Feud In Capitol Picture

"Wake Up and Live" Eclipses All Former Swelegant Musicals

In "Wake Up and Live," which opens a three-day engagement today at the Capitol theatre, with Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie and Alice Faye in the featured roles, Twentieth Century-Fox believes that it has the sweetest, hottest, most galamorous and galorious musical ever turned out by that studio.

Eclipsing even such swelegant musicals as "On the Avenue," "One in a Million" and "Sing, Baby, Sing," this new filmusical brings the famed Winchell-Bernie feud to the screen in an eye-filling production that lays strong claim to being the hotcha-topsa of them all.

"Wake Up and Live" offers not only the intriguing spectacle of the MM. Winchell and Bernie feuding face-to-face, but also the singing, dancing and emoting of Alice Faye, lovelier and more affecting than ever; the laugh-provoking antics of Patsy Kelly, Ned Sparks and Jack Haley; and nine smash song hits by those kings of songwriting, Gordon and Revel.

The rioters imbroglio involving Winchell and Bernie is the background of "Wake Up and Live," which tells the story of a small-time vaudeville performer, Jack Haley, who muffs his big radio opportunity when, at an audition, he gets "mike fright" and faints away. Grace Bradley, his partner, deserts him for Walter Catlett, a booking agent who gets her a night-club job.

Haley's sister, Patsy Kelly, is Walter Winchell's "Girl Friday," and through her he gets a job as a uniformed guide at Radio Centre. There he meets and pesters Ben Bernie, selling him an occasional "gag," and there also he meets the "Wake Up and Live Girl" of radio, Alice Faye, who sets out to help him overcome his mike fright.

SINGS ALONE

While listening to the Bernie radio program one night, Haley is inspired by the music to step boldly to a microphone in a deserted control room. He sings alone with the orchestra, unaware that he is on the air, and the station is deluged with a flood of fan mail from wildly enthusiastic listeners.

Unfortunately, however, no one knows the identity of the "Phantom Troubadour," and Haley even joins in the search himself.

By accident, Alice Faye discovers Haley's part in the commotion. But Catlett and Grace Bradley have also suspected, and they kidnap the uncomprehending Phantom. There ensues a whirlwind chase, winding up in a gala floor-show finale at Bernie's night club, where Winchell, in a rapid-fire news broadcast, flashes the hectic developments in the situation to his radio audience as fast as they occur.

"Mountain Justice" Co-Stars Josephine Hutchinson and Geo. Brent

It remained for a young girl secretary at the First National studios, Luci Ward by name, to turn out the most pwerful melodrama of the year in "Mountain Justice," which is at the Strand theatre. Miss Ward had never written a scenario of her own before, but she is said to have made a smashing debut with this one, and, of course, she is a scenarist from now on.

STUDY OF LIFE

"Mountain Justice" is a study of life and love, combating ignorance, fanaticism and backwardness in a hill-country community. It co-stars Josephine Hutchinson and George Brent, and was directed by that professor of realism, Michael Curtiz, whose most recent triumph was the sensational "Charge of the Light Brigade."

Miss Hutchinson is a young mountaineer girl who has a chance to live in the outside world for a time, and returns with ambitions to improve the conditions of the native people. In this she is opposed by a cruel, bitter father, played by Robert Barrat.

COWER UNDER LASH

Time and time again, she and her young sister, played by Marcia Mae Jones, cower under the lash of their father's whip. They live in constant fear of his terrible anger, and his threats to marry them off to the highest bidder.

DUKE CARRIES BRIDE OVER THRESHOLD

Royal Bridegroom Honors Time-Worn Custom Reaching Castle

NOETSCH, Austria, June 5.—The Duke of Windsor followed the custom of bridegrooms the world over early today when he carried his bride over the threshold of their new home, fairy-like Castle, Wasserleonburg.

The Duke carried his bride into the castle without stumbling, which believers in the superstition said means their days here will be happy.

PEACE, SECLUSION

Terminating their 24-hour train journey from France at Arnoldstein, the newlyweds sped by motor five miles to the ancient Austrian castle where they hoped to find peace and seclusion for three months.

They reached their temporary home just ten minutes after midnight. Pausing in the forecourt of the chateau, the Duke picked his bride up in his arms, carried her a few steps across the threshold and disappeared inside.

NEWS ARMY

Just what was to become of the battalion of newspapermen hoping to stay here was not immediately known. This village has a total of 180 inhabitants and just enough houses to take care of them.

Officials installed extra telephones and telegraph lines to cope with the increased business, but erecting houses in this Carinthian hamlet was something else again.

PARIS BOMBERS, 'THREE JUDGES OF HELL', BACK

PARIS, June 5.—Three bombs exploded in Paris postoffices today, and police said the mad, mysterious "Three Judges of Hell" were back at work.

The "Three Judges" terrorized Paris in 1934 by mailing a dozen explosive packages to random addresses, selected apparently without design or cause.

Today's bombs were similarly addressed.

They were enclosed in cardboard tubes, seven inches long and filled with black powder. The detonator was placed directly under the stamps.

The postal clerks tapped them lightly with the stamp canceller, and the bombs exploded—one each in three district postoffices. Two clerks were injured slightly.

The addresses were misspelled, typical trick of the "Three Judges."

Nursing Home Baby Starved To Death, Coroner Finds

TORONTO, June 5—A three-months-old baby left at a "nursing ment—occurred in the Portuguese to death," Dr. James A. Bull who performed the autopsy, told a coroner's jury today.

"Its eyes were sunken," he said. "There was no fat under the skin which was drawn tight. You could see its ribs and wrist bones."

Mrs. Linne Bessant, who operated the home, last night was charged with manslaughter.

44 Years' Service

MILFORD STATION, N.S., June 5.—Joseph Howlett, station agent here, has retired after 44 years of service with the Intercolonial and Canadian National Railways.

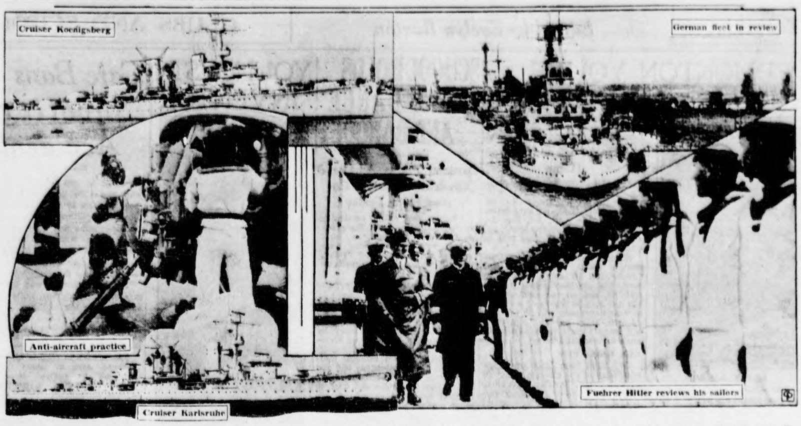
Germany's Might On the Seas — Will It Bring a World Crisis?



Nations of the world are looking with apprehension at the German navy following the sending of additional ships to reinforce their fighting units in Spanish waters after the German destruction of Almeria. The addition of more German ships and Germany's withdrawal from the non-intervention patrol has caused international tension which may embroil many European nations in a general conflict. To guard ships against attack from either of the Spanish belligerents, Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, and German Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop have evolved a plan which is expected to relieve the tension now binding Europe. The plan would have the entire international fleet patrolling Spanish waters to act as protector of any third party ship and would also give patrol vessels the right to enter any Spanish port. This would avoid incidents similar to that which caused loyalist airplanes to bomb the German battleship Deutschland as it lay in a rebel-held port. Some of the vessels of the German fleet—which is not large and of which the Deutschland is one of the larger fighters—are shown above.

British Prisoners To Get Privileges

LONDON, June 5—Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare told the house of commons today the government would institute a system of privileges for model prisoners in Chelmsford, Parkhurst and Dartmoore jails.

He said the system would provide nominal payments for work performed by prisoners with good records to permit them to purchase tobacco, cigarettes and other luxuries.

Suicide Ends Damon And Pythias Kinship

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., June 5.—A Damon and Pythias friendship that could not endure separation, was blamed by Coroner Eaton today for the death of William Robbins, 23, less than 48 hours after the marriage of his brother, Francis.

The brother, the coroner said, ended his life in a hay mow with a bullet, after writing a note saying that "I hope Helen and Francis will have a happy time through life."

What Next?—The Cats Ask Clyde!

Always obliging, famed animal-trainer Clyde Beatty persuaded two members of his jungle chorus to watch the birdie from atop a new Studebaker while the cameras of visiting press agents clicked. Mrs. Beatty joined the party armed with a sturdy pole just in case the "cats" should get temperamental during the interview. Natural enemies, the lion and tiger are seldom found displaying such harmony.

W.I.L. Makes Mrs. McConkey Vice - President

WINNIPEG, June 5.—The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom yesterday formed a Canadian national section after a two-day session here and named Mrs. C. B. Sissons, wife of Professor Sissons, of Victoria College, Toronto, as Canadian president.

Miss Agnes Macphail, U.F.O.-Labor member of the house of commons for Grey-Bruce, was elected honorary president.

Vice-presidents elected are the provincial heads of the movement, including Mrs. Laura Jamieson, Vancouver, for British Columbia; Mrs. W. A. McConkey, Edmonton, for Alberta, and Mrs. W. G. Hutchison, Regina, for Saskatchewan.

I. O. D. E. UNIT PLANS TO JOIN LITERARY CLUBS

Decision to join the Literary Guild and the Book-of-the-Month Club in order to found a library for rental purposes was made at a meeting of the Earl of St. Andrews Chapter of the I.O.D.E. in the Macdonald hotel on Wednesday evening. Plans were made too for a closing party to be held at the Country Club later in June.

Generous sums were voted to Coronation Bursary fund and to the Coronation celebration committee.

Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. G. McLaren were welcomed into the membership of the chapter.

WOMEN ARE NOW GRANTED SYNOD VOTE

REGINA, Sask., June 5.—Women of the Qu'Appelle diocese of the Church of England in Canada gained the right to vote for delegates to synod at the closing session of the 34th Synod Thursday afternoon.

In order to give them this privilege which they have not enjoyed before, it was necessary for the entire conference, both clergy and laity to be unanimous in the vote. It was also necessary that the bishop give his assent. All requirements were complied with.

Local Bride To Make Home In Hamilton

First Baptist church, filled with white lilies and pale pink hydrangea, was the focal point for the interest of hosts of friends both in the east and in Edmonton, when Mary Elizabeth McMullen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McMullen, became the bride of George W. Hamilton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton of Hamilton, Ontario, at a delightfully arranged ceremony there at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Prominently known in social and university circles both here and in Ontario, the bride attended the University of Alberta, later taking a social service course at the University of Toronto. She is also a graduate of the Ontario Ladies' College. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Toronto.

Miss McMullen belongs to the Delta Gamma fraternity, Mr. Hamilton to the Phi Gamma.

Rev. C. G. Stone read the marriage service.

Given away by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in an elaborate gown of parchment-colored lace appliqued in satin, and worn redingote style, over gracefully moulded white satin. A veil of point d'esprit cascaded in soft falls to the floor. Her flowers were butterfly roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mona Kane and Miss Muriel Massie, were charming in similar frocks of white, with touches of blue and coral. They each carried muffs of pink and blue flowers.

Mr. John A. McMullen, brother of the bride, was best man, and Mr. Paul Fuog and Mr. William Blackert ushered the guests to their pews.

More than 80 guests were present at the wedding reception arranged later in the Macdonald hotel, when Mrs. McMullen, to receive the guests, wore a smart hostess gown of beige lace with accessories in brown and a corsage of talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gould of Calgary were among the out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will be at home at their new residence in Hamilton, Ontario, after a motor trip through Banff and Lake Louise and one to Yellowstone Park.

To travel the bride wore a navy costume with top coat of pale blue.

False Alarm

False alarms are nothing new to New York firemen, but even they were a little vexed when they clanged up to the home of Mrs. Sally Graham and learned they had been summoned only to assist the stork in delivering a 7-pound girl. Her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Legault (above) of Washington, explained in court that she had turned in the alarm because she had been advised, when action was wanted in an emergency, to call the fire department.

YOUTH COUNCIL DELEGATES ARE ENTHUSIASTIC

Return From Montreal Impressed By Unity Expressed at Congress

Determined to imbue young people's work in Edmonton with the enthusiasm which marked a feature of the Canadian Youth Congress in Montreal, 11 delegates representing youth organizations are returning soon. These delegates will be heard at a public meeting in the Moose Temple on Monday, June 14.

The establishment of harmonious relationships and unity of purpose among divergent groups was, from reports of returning delegates, the momentous achievement of the Youth Congress.

According to Gilbert Wright, president of the Edmonton Youth Council and delegate from that council to the congress, the understanding of minority problems gained at the congress was of supreme importance. He expresses it in these terms: "Most of these groups are bitterly disliked by some part of the English-speaking Canadians; and yet they are not only Canadian citizens, but taken as a whole form the majority of our population. The Canadian Youth Congress did its best work in helping to bring minorities into equal and informal relations with other groups."

YOUTH UNITED

Enthusiastic tribute is paid to the congress by Reg. Paull, also a delegate from the Edmonton Youth Council, who says: "The significance of the Youth Congress can be realized only by those who were there to feel as well as hear and see it. It is quite evident that uppermost in the mind of youth is the attainment of a better life as a result of gainful employment. This congress is the greatest experience I have had, especially the session in which the whole body rose spontaneously and sang 'O Canada' upon the adoption of the presiding committee's report. I am glad I had the opportunity to attend."

Delegates from the Edmonton branch of the Co-operative Commonwealth Youth Movement have also returned from the congress with a new vision. Paul Carmichael, president of the Edmonton C.C.Y.M., expresses it thus: "A large section of Canadian youth have found a new frontier to explore! In days gone by youth was called upon to give up the comforts of civilization to advance to new geographical frontiers. We, the youth of today, must make sacrifices to explore new frontiers of social progress—to open the way to a new civilization. After my experiences of the last two weeks I am convinced that the Youth Congress Movement will make orderly progress possible."

Eunice Bolton, secretary of the C.C.Y.M., and the other Edmonton delegates from that organization, sum up the Montreal congress in these words: "I think the most important accomplishment of the Youth Congress this year was the unity achieved by all Canadian youth, who forgot their differences to solve their common problems and strive for better conditions for all. The C.C.Y.M. delegates were in full accord with decisions of the congress."

The representative of the Two Plus Two club, Joseph McKenzie, has this to say of the congress: "I was greatly impressed by the oneness of purpose, that determination for good-will and co-operation among Canadian youth. This enthusiastic spirit has bound the young people together in a common cause and has precipitated a co-ordinated effort of all youth in the task of solving the problem that confronts them."

FIRST AID CONTEST HELD

City girl guide companies vied with each other for premier honors in first aid world at the Memorial hall when the annual first aid competition was held under the auspices of the V.A.D. Saturday. Successful members of the many teams competing qualified for their ambulance badge, with officials of the St. John Ambulance association conducting the examinations. Both junior and senior teams competed. District Guide Captain Miss Helen Burns was in charge.

16-YEAR-OLD EDMONTON YOUTH DELIGHTS IN LIFE IN THE NAVY

Frank Savage, Former Calder School Pupil, Joins British Navy

"We joined the navy,
To see the world."

This might be the theme song of a 16-year-old Edmonton boy, John Frank Savage, who always wanted to be a sailor, and who finally began to see his dreams come true when he set sail last September to join the British navy training ship, H.M.S. Ganges at Ipswich, Suffolk, England.

A former pupil of Calder school, Frank had just completed grade eight when he left to join 150 boys from all parts of England and the Empire, beginning the 18 months' period of preliminary training, partly on land and partly on board ship, which would fit them for duty on an ocean-going vessel.

PASSED TESTS

Required to take the strict physical and academic examinations given every recruit, Frank passed with flying colors and has made such excellent progress that the preliminary period of 18 months training may be shortened so that he will be given his first commission, to sail on a real ship to either China or the West Indies, in July.

Interesting details concerning his life in the navy are revealed by Frank in enthusiastic letters to his family and friends.

"We were each given 18 pounds of clothing," he says, "I never imagined a sailor would have so many clothes—six uniforms, two pair of slippers, two pair of overalls, 4 pair of boots, one pair of running shoes, one pair of football boots, underwear, hats, towels—and, oh, yes, all kinds of sewing gear."

WOEFUL PUNISHMENT

"You see," he goes on to explain, "we have to do all our own washing and sewing to keep our clothes in good repair, and woe betide the fellow who leaves a button missing! The punishment for that is to have all the buttons cut from his suit and to have to present it to his superiors with the buttons sewn on again before he can eat."

FRANK SAVAGE

To some, life on the navy training ship might seem a trifle rigorous, and such rules as compulsory saving out of a weekly income of two dollars, gun drill, inspections and marching until the feet ache, might seem a little hard, but Frank delights in it.

LOTS OF GAMES

"The superiors are just grand to us," he says, and the delights of a huge swimming pool, a well equipped gymnasium, healthy out-door games of football, rugby and tug o'war, together with the pleasant companionship of a large and jolly group of boys, more than makes up for the discipline and strictness of the life.

The complete day's routine Frank gives as follows: 6 a.m.: rise, wash, have biscuits and cocoa; 6:30 a.m.: fall in on quarter deck for inspection; 6:45 to 8:30: polish and clean the mess; 8:30: breakfast; 9:15: parade for morning's inspection (in white suits); 11-12: physical training; 12-1 rifle drill; 2-5: free for sport, football or other recreations; 5:30: tea; 5:45: inspection; 5:50 to 6:50: school; 7:50: free.

Looks Forward To First Trip At Sea and Visit Home

Writing shortly before the Coronation Frank had this to say: "Everything is going Coronation mad. We are busy taking special training, and on the night of the big day will be guests at a supper at which everyone will be presented with extra pay and cigarettes, but since I don't smoke I'll trade mine for chocolate bars."

GUN DRILL FUN

"We have been busy practicing with some of our six-inch guns," he goes on to say. "My first experience—and how I enjoyed it. They certainly make a noise. You would think it was an earthquake."

Though life is crowded and exciting, nevertheless he does get a wee bit lonesome at times. "It would be grand to see someone from home," he remarks in one letter, and confesses that the mere thought of upside down cake, "like mother used to make," almost breaks him up.

TO VISIT EDMONTON

However the excitement of the grand new life he has entered upon does not permit him many lonesome moments and besides that, he has been promised that he will be given his first leave to come home after making his first trip in July.

"And then," he says exultantly, "what loads and loads I shall have to tell you."

Expressing his opinion of a sailor's life and telling how much he has grown, Frank says, "Well, the navy life is the best there is. It may be a bit tough at first, but once used to it—it's the grandest and healthiest life of all."

Technical Students Receive Awards for Sports, Scholastics

At a meeting held recently, students with high scholastic standing and prowess in sports, received awards. Principal M. H. Hilton gave a brief outline on the course of studies for next year.

Presentation of a picture of Mr. Gamble to the school, from the students, was made by Susie McColman. Boys from "Tech" that play in the School Boys' Band took part in the program. Other artists appearing were: Don Russell, Bill Dmytry and Walter Bissell.

Miss McConnell, Mr. Davies, Mr. Ross comprised the crest committee, assisted by two student council members.

Those receiving crests were:

Academic Awards—Gold Pins—James McBride, Joe Forest, Audrey Rutherford, Wm. Pirzek, Charles Lobb, William Shore, Ada Rosen, Gertrude Kramer, Gladys McLennan, Beatrice McLay, William Niddrie, Reginald Pettit.

Millionaire

Luckily for young Peter Salm, now 12 years old, he doesn't have to peddle newspapers or shine shoes to pay the inheritance tax on the estate bequeathed to him by his late grandfather, Col. Henry H. Rogers. A court ruling denied him the privilege of appealing from the $1,727,022 tax assessed against his share of the estate.

SCHOOL HOLDS FINAL DANCE AND BANQUET

Garneau Pupils Attend Graduation Party in Corona Hotel Friday

Closing the extra curricular activities for the year, the graduating class of Garneau high school held its graduating banquet at the Corona hotel Friday, May 28, with a hundred pupils in attendance.

After the toast to the King, the toast to the school was proposed by Percy Powers, and responded to by G. W. Robertson, principal, who bade farewell to his '37 class. With the reading of the valedictory by John Brownlee, Miss Mamie Simpson, honorary president of the graduating class gave a farewell message. Mirth, complications and red faces were seen when Jim Dean looked into the future and tried to forecast the lot of many of the school's graduates.

MR. CAMERON SPEAKS

The main speaker of the evening was Mr. D. E. Cameron, librarian of the University of Alberta, who clearly pointed out the freedom the modern youth possess compared to "grandma." He told the graduates to realize their opportunities and make the best of them, clear thought and determination being the requisites for any successful man or woman.

At the conclusion of the dinner, the floor was cleared for dancing.

Those who sat at the head table were Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Robertson, Mr. Graham Campbell, Miss Isobel Ross, Mr. Percy Powers, Miss Dorothy Kaufman, Mr. John Brownlee, Miss Joyce Allen, Mr. Jim Dean, Miss Mary Miller, Miss Leslie Lockerbie, Mr. Bill Drever, Miss Isabel Howson, Mr. John Taylor, Miss Ruth Gilchrist and Mr. Sigurd Balfour. Those at the faculty table were Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. M. Rookwood, Mr. and Mrs. C. Burchell, Miss E. Cato and Miss N. Wood.

C.G.I.T. Honor Mothers at Fete

RIMBEY, June 5.—Under the leadership of Miss Mollie McLees, the C.G.I.T. were hostesses to their mothers at a banquet Saturday. Covers were laid for 36 and guests other than the parents included Mrs. P. Alter, Rev. Father J. Murphy, Rev. and Mrs. Humble and Rev. T. L. Pearson. Tables were decorated in the club colors and centred with bowls of irises and poppies. Tiny ships sailing down a mirror lake were place cards carrying out the theme "the Voyage of Life." Boutonnieres were presented to the mothers. Audrey Cutler, president, presided and others taking part in the program were: Margaret Johnston, Mrs. Harold Veekfind, Patricia Johnston, Rev. Pearson, Mrs. W. E. Johnston, Thelma Eckhart, Patricia Johnston, Gwen Veekfind, Mrs. Atler, Adeline Donnelly, Harriet Bunch, Ruth Simpson, Mary Rolston and Beatrice Eckhart. The evening concluded with a candle lighting ceremony.

YOUNGEST INVENTOR

The youngest inventor ever granted a patent by the U.S., Jordan Bierman, 8-year-old New Rochelle, N.Y., resident, is shown here at work on the back stoop of his home, which he finds is an ideal warm weather laboratory. Jordan is to be honored by a special associate membership in the National Inventors' Congress at their annual meeting in New York. The invention he patented is a collapsible, flexible clothes hanger, by means of which a large amount of garments may be hung in a small space. Jordan was inspired because "everything was so packed in our closet all the time."

CONVENTION WILL PRECEDE CHURCH CAMP

The United church young people's camp at Kasota will be preceded by the convention from July 23 to 25. It will deal with annual reports, define policies for the coming year, and elect a conference executive for 1937-38. Four delegates are entitled to attend from each Presbytery Union, except Calgary and Edmonton, which send eight. Members of the present executive include: Jack James, Calgary, president; John McClary, Edmonton, past president; Marjorie Orr, Calgary, secretary treasurer; Ted Miller, Edmonton, editor of the organ, "The Riveter"; Tom Rutherford, Calgary, debate convenor.

Guides To Study Campcraft At S. Cooking Lake

Provincial girl guide camp, for training guide leaders in campcraft, will be held at South Cooking lake from July 3 to 10. Training will be given in campcraft, hiking and woodcraft. All guiders interested are urged to attend.

The camp is one of a series being held in every province in Canada, with the co-operation of dominion headquarters. It is expected that as a result of this training, camping will be more general throughout the province as more guiders will be qualified to take their own companies to camp. A similar camp will be held near Calgary during the same month.

All applications should be sent immediately to the provincial camp adviser, Miss Betty Forster Martin.

Care Bans Shooting Accidents

Too often two boys going out with one rifle between them to shoot gophers or "just shooting"—a common pastime in the summer months—means that only one boy comes back whole. The other, sometimes his best pal, is brought home in an ambulance or becomes the subject for a coroner's inquest.

"I didn't know it was loaded," says the surviving boy, quite truly, but none the less foolishly.

"I didn't know it was loaded!"—a phrase that is so often the pathetic refrain of most juvenile shooting accidents.

The man who forgets his own boyhood says at once: "Boys shouldn't be allowed to have guns." Indeed, there are laws against boys under certain ages being allowed to handle lethal weapons, but like other laws which run contrary to human nature, however desirable they may be, it is a law which is more often disobeyed than observed.

So the combination of boy and gun must be handled like any other juvenile problem, by education.

Many prominent Edmonton sportsmen—men like Dr. R. A. Rooney, the late L. E. Wize and the late Norman Fraser — have taught their offspring the art of shooting as soon as they were old enough to learn how deadly a rifle really is. For a rifle was made to be a deadly weapon. Yet, under proper control, it can be rendered harmless as any other instrument of regular use.

Boys should never be permitted to handle guns alone. They should be taught the proper use of guns by their parents or other qualified adults.

Three cardinal safety rules to remember are: A gun is always loaded. Never point a gun at anyone, even when "you are sure" that it is unloaded. Empty your gun before crawling through a fence or entering a car.

Consumption of silver by the arts and industries in the United States and Canada during 1936 totalled 26,500,000 ounces, an increase of 3,000,000 ounces or nearly 15 per cent over the 1935 figure.

CHECKER AND CHESS CHAMP GIVES ADVICE

Gordon Pretty Wins Double Title, One For the Second Time

For the second time in the annals of Victoria High school the chess and checker championships have been held by one person, Gordon Pretty of 9551 106A avenue. This feat was performed only once before in the history of the school when Walter Holowach, now city chess and checker champion, cornered both titles.

Playing purely for amusement for five years, Gordon really got down to the serious business of chess last year and succeeded in winning the chess championship. He believes that to learn enough about checkers to play the game with enjoyment is easier than to play chess, but that when the games are studied seriously, there is really very little difference between them.

WANTS RECOGNIZED COURSE

Gordon hopes that sometime in the near future chess and checker playing will be added to the course of studies in Alberta High schools. In several schools of the United States they have become recognized courses and in Russia the games have swept through the schools until last year special trains were chartered to take the 70,000 contestants to the city for tournaments.

"I think possibly the games are a little too intellectual to become as popular as others," said Gordon, "but there is a certain satisfaction in learning the various openings which every serious player employs. I would advise every player who studies the games seriously to make use of Staunton's handbook and Lee's guide to learn the various openings essential to the game."

JOIN CLUB

"I would also advise any beginner to join a club, either at school, if there is one, or in their town or city.

"If you have the chance, play with different persons as much as you can, because if you stick to one player you learn all his openings and he has nothing further to teach you.

"That is all I can say about how to learn to play chess or checkers, except to work hard at it. It's a skilled game and requires technique just like any worthwhile sport."

Tenth Guides Enjoy Overnight Hikes and Camping Expeditions

Tenth Girl Guides of St. Stephen's church are proving themselves to be outdoor girls in very effective fashion. Holding two hikes over last week-end and similar outside expeditions on other occasions they are acquiring a keen sense of the wonders of wood, field and stream.

Under the captaincy of Miss Betty Martin their outings have taken them to Capitol Hill, Dawson Bridge and other points of interest near the city.

COOK AT CAMPFIRE

Cooking meals at campfires, playing, tracking and stalking games, watching the frolics of the birds and enjoying other phases of nature study, the girls are enthusiastic about their week-end jaunts through the woods.

Another feature of recent interest to the girls was a visit to the home of Cyril Wates where they made astronomical observations through Mr. Wates' telescope.

Guide Rangers of the 10th have had several joint meetings with the Christ Church Rangers and on one occasion made a most interesting visit to the telephone building.

Girl Guide Shirley Burton recently received her second class badge and also the swimming and life saving badges. Rangers made their own company flag during the winter months and are justly proud of their handiwork.

The Bulletin Junior Authors' Club

An interesting group of letters arrived this week. The editor knows that all the pals are going to like them.

Here's the first from 13-year-old Mary Heather, of Bashaw. Welcome back to the club, Mary—with the pretty-name:

"Dear Author:

"Here I am again. Have you forgotten me? Well, to bring back remembrance I'll tell a little story of my own.

A GOOD DEED

"Ann had a new dress and she was very proud of it. She walked to school, hoping that the rest of the girls would like it. When she reached the old red schoolhouse she saw Betty and Sylvia standing by the gate. Sylvia came up to her, took one sneering look at the dress and remarked, 'Look what the cat brought home.

"Tears of anger sprang up in Ann's eyes, but Betty came to her, patted her shoulder and said kindly, 'Never mind, dear, I LOVE your dress,' and arm in arm, the two walked into the school, leaving Sylvia gazing foolishly after them.

"There pals, did any of you go to sleep? I hope not.

"O, I do hope that someone will write to me! I love writing letters.

"Well good-bye pals, and let's hope the editor receives more letters than can be handled this week.

"Your pal,
"MARY HEATHER."

Thank you very much for your letter and story, Mary. The editor is certain that your bright and interesting letter will bring forth more replies from pen pals than you, too, can handle. So come along, pals, Mary is waiting for a letter, and her address is Bashaw, Alberta. Let's see who will be the first to write.

Mary's letter also contained a suggestion which the editor considers worthwhile. It was this: "Let's see which town in Alberta can send the most letters to the Junior Authors' Club during the month of June."

So get your friends together, Junior Authors, and see if your town can head the list for representation in the Junior Authors' Club during the next few weeks. The editor will be score-keeper, and all that the pals will have to do is write and write and write. The contest will count from next week, so get your letters in early.

Next comes a letter from James Bennett of 9856 74 avenue, Edmonton. You, too, are welcome to the club, James. The editor has an apology to make for changing a line in your letter. That Latin! We were afraid the pals wouldn't understand it. And the editor—well—we studied French. Comprenez-vous?

Here is the letter from James:

"Dear Editor:

"It is my desire to become a fully privileged member of the Junior Authors' Club, and with this thought in mind I submit the following for your inspection:

'TIS FALL I LIKE BEST

In summer's fair cradle,
All the world likes to rest,
But of all the seasons,
'Tis fall I like best.

The silence is brooding,
As the world goes to rest
'Tis one of the reasons
Why I like fall best.

When red leaves are falling,
And nature's at rest,
'Tis the time of the year,
That I like the best.

The bright sounds of spring,
By some called the best,
Leave me quite untouched,
'Tis fall I like best.

"Yours truly,
"JAMES BENNETT."

Thank you very much for your letter and your verse James. The poetry is quite good but the editor thinks that it could have been improved by avoiding repetition such as "rest" and "best" in two places, and also "best" rhyming with itself in the last verse. To repeat a word like that makes the reader feel that you didn't work very hard to find another suitable rhyme. Don't think the editor is being too harsh, but sometimes a reader discovers mistakes that an author tends to overlook, and the editor only wants to be helpful. So don't be discouraged, but keep writing and send in more of your work, as there is much that is very good in it.

Now comes a very neatly written and well composed letter and story from Marjorie Smith, of 11312 52 street, Edmonton. Marjorie says:

"Dear Editor:

"I would like very much to join your club, but I have not had enough confidence in myself before to write or send in my stories. I am a 14-year-old girl. Will you please send me a membership card and one of your attractive buttons. The other day we camped out, and I am sending you an account of my feelings in choosing a camp location.

A CAMP LOCATION

"We passed from the noisy city into the quiet surroundings of the country. As we left behind the cries of happy playing children and the continuous hum of cars, we went deeper and deeper into the heart of the rolling hills.

"On each side of us green meadows stretched in never ending lines before our eyes. The cool breeze blew against our faces, making the walk a pleasant one indeed.

"We walked on, never noticing our sudden approach to the weeping willows, with beyond them the tall whispering pines. Here the path divided. We took the trail which led into the interior of the thick woods. Our comments on the magnificent scenes of beauty were at once broken, for we heard the trickling of a tiny waterfall. We soon found a babbling brook and by following along its course we reached the object of our hunt—the lake!

"It was bathed in the glory of the golden sun, and its surface was like a huge mass of sparkling gold. The tranquil water, a boat with a pair of idle oars, set against a background of beautiful tall pines—this was the scene which we chose to be the location of our camp.

"This descriptive story is quite long but I hope it is good enough to publish.

"Yours truly,
"MARJORIE SMITH."

Well, Marjorie, any girl who can write as well as you have done above, need have no hesitation about sending her work to be published. The editor was more than delighted to receive the lovely description of your camping site. Do write again, and a thousand welcomes to the Junior Authors' Club.

* * *

The last letter this week is from Joan Neal, who sends in a lovely picture of herself with her big dog, Rex. Thank you, for the letter and the picture, Joan. Now, if enough pals will send in their pictures as the editor requested, perhaps we will be able to print them on the page some day and see what all the Junior Authors look like.

Here is Joan's letter:

"Dear Editor:

"Enclosed is my picture with my dog Rex. It was taken in front of our house. I am sending a verse too, which I would like to see in print on Saturday. It is called:

THE MOUSE

There was a little mouse,
He had a little house,
And in it he slept and ate.
He played hide and seek,
With the shadows that peek,
And he slept and he slept and he ate.

That's a very pretty little verse, Joan. Write again soon, won't you?

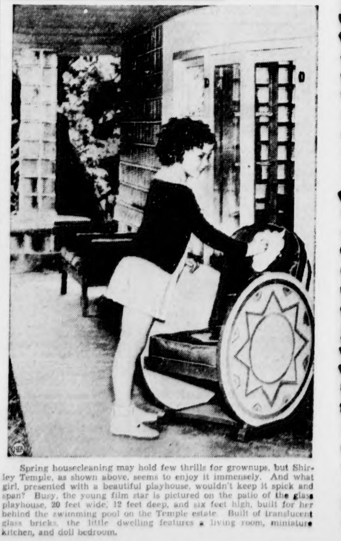
And now pals, that's positively all for today. Just one word of caution. When sending in letters do try to have them posted in time to reach the editor by Thursday, or they may have to be held over until the following week. Until next Saturday, good-bye.

THE EDITOR.

Shirley's Playhouse



Spring housecleaning may hold few thrills for grownups, but Shirley Temple, as shown above, seems to enjoy it immensely. And what girl, presented with a beautiful playhouse, wouldn't keep it spick and span? Busy, the young film star is pictured on the patio of the glass playhouse, 20 feet wide, 12 feet deep, and six feet high, built for her behind the swimming pool on the Temple estate. Built of translucent glass bricks, the little dwelling features a living room, miniature kitchen, and doll bedroom.

India Knows Norma But Not Deity, Says Missioner at Parley

OTTAWA, June 5.—Rev. A. A. Lowther, Jhansi, India, missionary, declared last night before the Presbyterian general assembly, "The name and face of Norma Shearer are familiar to thousands in the East where the name of Christ has never been heard. I wonder if we as a Christian church are proud of that?"

The Christian church in India was regarded the fastest growing church in the world but at the present rate it would take 3,300 years to Christianize the country completely, he said.

DRINK SCOTCH TOO

Already even in darkest India, the natives were being educated to smoke English cigarettes, drink Scotch whisky and see American movies. It was here he made his allusion to Norma Shearer.

Rev. Allen Reoch, of Manchuria, described the lawless conditions in the district he served. While distributing pamphlets one day he encountered the murder of a faithless wife, a mass attack on her betrayer and murderer, his suicide and later a bandit raid on an opium den.

SALARY ROWS

Dr. John Inkser, Toronto, told the assembly "the minister's salary is the cause of more bickering, worry and trouble than anything else in the church."

Dr. J. S. Short, Barrie, Ont., a former moderator, said the committee examining policy and surveying activities, favored a retirement age of 70 years except in rare cases when a year might be added.

HONEYMOONERS JOURNEY LIKE TRIUMPH TOUR

Great Crowds Greet Duke As Train Halts At Wayside Stations

ABOARD THE WINDSOR HONEYMOON EXPRESS, June 5—The honeymoon trip of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor became a tour of triumph yesterday. Messages of congratulations from royalty and diplomats deluged their private car.

Great crowds gathered at stations along the route from France to Austria to cheer the Duke and Duchess. They appeared at the window to acknowledge the acclaim for the first time when the train halted at Milan. The Italian press sent 100 Riviera carnations to the car.

FASCIST SALUTE

They walked through lines of Premier Mussolini's black shirts and received the Fascist salute at Venice. Then they rode down the Grand Canal in that city of canals before resuming their trip to Wasserleonburg where they will spend the next few months.

Married but a day, the Duke quickly assumed the comforts of a domesticated husband by sitting about in the coach in shirtsleeves. It was a blue and white striped shirt, noted through the window as the Windsor train pulled into the Venice station.

Between Milan and Venice, the Duke sat at a table and wrote replies to some of the congratulatory telegrams and letters.

ANSWERS LETTERS

Signing himself alternately David or Edward, he dispatched these telegrams:

"The King, Sofia, Bulgaria: We thank you both sincerely for your good wishes. David."

"Italian Ambassador, London: We thank you sincerely for your good wishes. Edward."

"Perier, Surete, Paris: Our sincere appreciation to you and all concerned for arrangements during our stay in France and for our wedding. Edward."

The Duke printed the telegrams in broad firm pencil strokes, despite the rocking express. He used paper of heavy block linen, bearing the Duke's crest, the unicorn rampant over two towers, at the upper left corner, with the motto, "Fide virtute et labor."

After lunch, the Duke sat watching the rolling hills of northern Italy unfold until he reached Venice.

RODE WITH CONSUL

There the newlyweds took the speedboat "Ca-Lorendan" from the Grand Canal just outside the railroad station, and rode with British Consul Allen Napier, until train time.

Their car was switched from the French Simplon express to the train for Udine Tarvisio and Arnoldstein, whence they are to drive to the honeymoon castle in Carinthia.

For the most part during the journey, the Duke and Duchess spent their time alone, talking and reading with pleased smiles the messages of congratulations.

HAT IN HAND

At Venice, the Duke marched briskly from his car, carrying a straw hat in hand and wearing a light grey suit, blue shirt and tie with red and green stripes and dotted with white.

The Duchess wore a belted dark blue and white printed travelling dress with white straw hat. Two gleaming brooches were fastened about her neck.

The first honeymoon appearance at Milan was after numerous cries from the crowd: "The King."

Shouts, and clapping at first were ignored, but as they persisted the duke's hand fumbled with the corner of a curtain. Then he yanked up two blinds at the centre of the car, and the couple waved acknowledgement of the cheers.

He pulled the shades again as the train left for Venice.

NO HIRED HELP FOR THIS FARM

STRATHMORE, Alta., June 5.—Owners of an 800-acre wheat farm, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keeler, who recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary, don't have to worry about any hired help problem. There are 13 children in the family—eight girls and five boys—ranging in age from six to 24 years of age.

"They all do their share of work," Mrs. Keeler told an interviewer. Seven of the younger children attend school and it takes an hour each evening to put up lunches. Forty-two slices of bread baked in the Keeler kitchen go to make up those lunches.

Forest Fires Bad Vancouver Island

VANCOUVER, June 5.—Three forest fires on Vancouver Island were menacing millions of feet of standing timber in wide-spread areas, District Forester R. C. St. Clair reported late Friday.

St. Clair said 2,000,000 board feet of felled logs had already been destroyed on the Kapoor Lumber Company's holdings 35 miles north of Victoria. The blaze was reported under control last night but a fresh westerly breeze had fanned it to the danger point.

In China, the folding fan is considered the last word in fans because of the convenience in carrying them.

HOARDED GOLD FREED TO SEND TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 5—A stampede of gold out of depression storm cellars abroad kept a tide of the metal moving toward New York today, bound for the United States treasury's already bulging vaults, as another day passed without word of any official action that might halt the rush to sell.

The London market was flooded with a record offering of £4,200,000 in gold (about $21,000,000). Hoarders, nervous over the possibility of a lowering price, were believed mainly responsible for the yellow deluge.

President Roosevelt told a press conference in Washington there would be no change in the United States government's gold policy. He told questioners "Not to worry too much about the gold situation."

However, the New York Post reported demands persisted the treasury place a higher service charge on gold shipments here in an effort to halt the tremendous inflow of gold which has reached approximately $47,000,000 this week.

PARIS LEARNS PORTUGAL HAS NEW REVOLUTION

PARIS, June 5.—A Havas news agency despatch from Gibraltar last night said rumors of a new revolutionary movement in Portugal were current at the British fortress.

A previous revolt—by elements sympathetic to the Spanish government" in suburban Weston "starved navy last September, when the crews of two warships in Lisbon harbor mutinied.

It was suppressed by prompt action of Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar and President Antonio Oscar Fragoso Carmona. Subsequently measures were taken to prevent any recurrences.

GIRL TO CAPTAIN COASTWISE SHIPS

QUEBEC, June 5.—Next autumn, 22-year-old Francoise Lemay, pride of her seafaring father, will try her examinations for a river captain's certificate. Then, the girl who was born at St. Jean Deschaillons on the St. Lawrence River, hopes to take command of one of her father's coastwise schooners.

And there's little reason why she shouldn't realize the ambition that has been hers and her father's since she first shipped as a child with Captain Joseph Lemay. Francoise has been sailing as one of her father's crew since she was 16. Before that she usually was aboard ever since she was able to toddle around the wide-seamed decks.

At present Francoise is second mate aboard the motor schooner, Adelphie, one of her father's craft carrying oil between Quebec and Montreal. The crew describe her as a "first-rate seaman." Crews of La Francoise, St. Georges and St. Jean Deschaillons all agree. And they know, for she has sailed with them—despite the common belief of the sea that a woman aboard means ill-luck to a schooner.

Francoise has no thoughts of marriage—at least not just yet. First, she wants to stand at the wheel and order a crew, with a full ring of authority, to "step lively there."

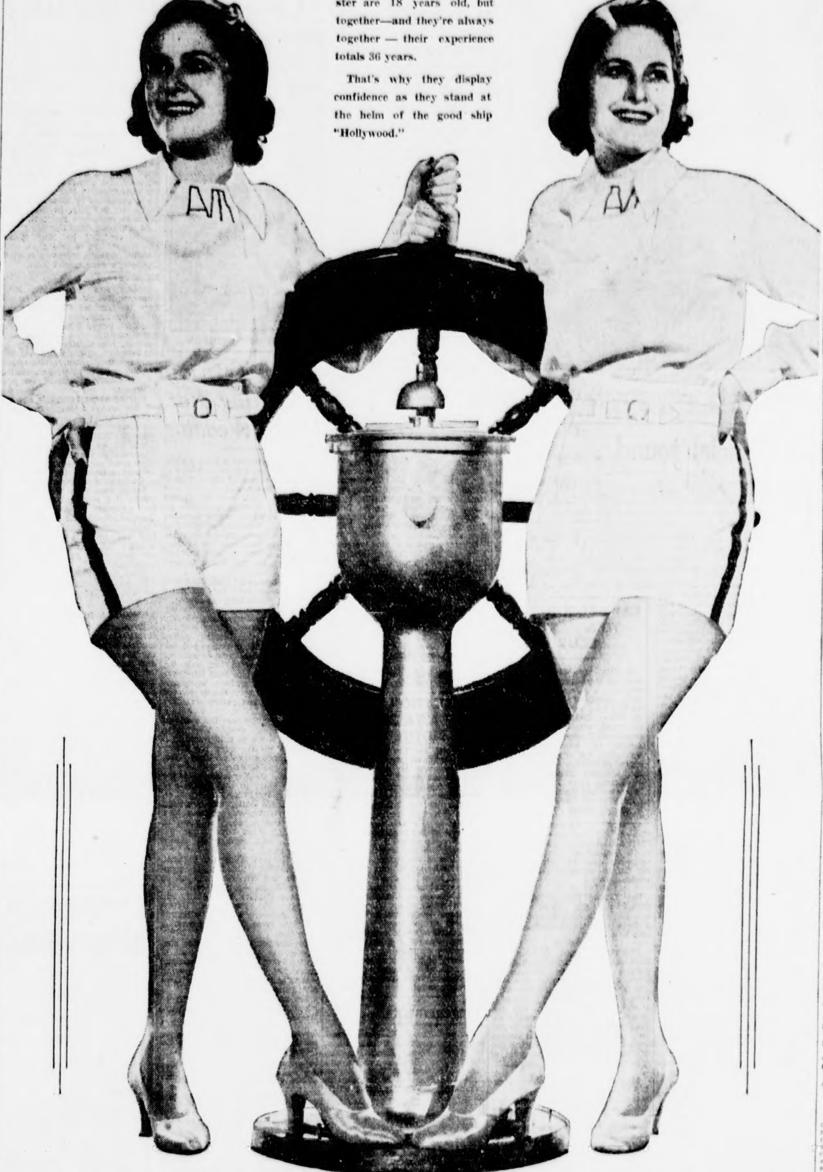
Reginan Killed In Dairy Plant

REGINA, Sask., June 5—James B. Rutley, 58-year-old Reginan, died in hospital here last night less than an hour after he was crushed between a truck and a loading platform in a dairy company's yard. He was aiding in loading a 700-pound ice cream freezer.

They're Hollywood's Latest 'Twin Bill'

Barbara and Gloria Brewster are 18 years old, but together—and they're always together — their experience totals 36 years.

That's why they display confidence as they stand at the helm of the good ship "Hollywood."



HERE'S a double feature that ought to please film fans.

The Brewster twins, Barbara and Gloria—or vice versa—will soon be making you blink your eyes and look twice as they appear in 20th Century-Fox productions.

Their studio says they are the first twins ever given a film contract, so they—and the fans—are due for an unusual experience.

When Gloria gets a headache, imagine how handy it will be to send Barbara down to the studio as a substitute, and there won't be any need to look about for stand-ins, either.

And what a break for the wardrobe seamstresses; they'll take one measurement and snip out costumes for two.

Everything won't be so easy, however. It'll be rather puzzling for the makeup man when, just after finishing a two-hour job on Gloria, he'll find Barbara strolling in, and he'll wonder if Tuesday hasn't suddenly become Wednesday, or even Monday.

And then when the director shoots a closeup of Barbara—he thinks—and turns around and finds her just entering the set—he thinks—well, you can see the possibilities.

There'll be plenty of opportunities for tricky shots.

For instance, there'll probably be one of Barbara looking at Gloria as in a mirror and powdering her—Barbara's—nose.

It will be a bit confusing, too, when the crowd at the premiere sees Barbara arrive in a limousine with somebody resembling Clark Gable, and two minutes later the same girl—apparently—will pull up at the curb with an escort who looks something like Jack Oakie.

Then will be the proper time for someone to shout: "Is there a Dr. Dafoe in the house? Maybe he could tell them apart!"

MAJOR AND MINOR NOTES

By John Oliver

Audrey McKinney was elected president of the Edmonton Piano Class Teachers' Association, at its annual meeting held recently. Other officers elected were: vice president, Beatrice Crawford; secretary treasurer, Mrs. A. E. Wright; executive committee, Blanche Thornton, Mrs. M. L. Wright, Helen Barbour, Miss A. Michael and Mrs. D. Airth. Catherine Marshall was appointed public relations officer.

The meeting passed an appreciative vote for the retiring officers, Miss Marshall and Mrs. Baker, each of whom had served two years as president and vice president and to Miss Kinney, retiring secretary treasurer, who had served for five years.

It was reported that guest speakers during the year were Carman H. Milligan and J. Norman Eagleson, the latter giving an outline of the new music course in the lower grades in the public schools of the cities and province as a whole. It was also decided to continue to hold monthly meetings at 1 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month.

Pupils of Maida Lewis were heard in recital on Friday evening at the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium. Guest artists were: Cathryn Zender, mezzo soprano and William Smith, tenor. At the close of the program, a presentation of flowers and a gift were made to Miss Lewis.

Pupils participating in the program were: Dorothy Carter, Lynetta Cairns, Enid Flesher, Norma Olensky, Emily Swan, Christina Ritchie, Sybil Thorne-Leach, Joan Neal, Doreen Ockenden, Joyce Russell, Gwen Lawson, Ted Zimmercan, Sydney Carter, Gordon Greenwood and Gordon Ockenden.

During the last week Horace Stovin, western program director of the CBC was a city visitor. His visit was of the "flying nature." He arrived in the morning and departed in the evening. In the interim he had a busy day. He conferred with H. Milton Martin and Sheila Marryat, members of the Alberta advisory board to the CBC regarding programs. He conferred with Tom Gardner, leader of the "Clair de Lune" and "After Twilight" programs and heard a couple of groups of musicians.

He was on his way to Ottawa for a meeting of the program heads of the CBC to prepare for the supplying of programs when the CBC increases its time on the air in October.

Mr. Stovin was hopeful that the increased amount of time would mean more representation for this part of the country on the CBC, although at this long distance he could not definitely commit himself. He arranged "spots" on the hook-up for the Male Chorus and a program on Saturday evening for a dance band.

Church Interference in Marriages Is Slammed

OWEN SOUND, Ont., June 5—Resolution urging the Dominion government to enact legislation to make it impossible for any church to interfere with any marriage performed in accordance with the law was passed at the grand lodge of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent association here yesterday.

The resolution also suggested that a Dominion law be enacted to guarantee the sanctity of any marriage performed by any licensed person within the limits of the marriage law.

The resolution read in part:

"Whereas, so many cases of interference by Roman Catholic priests, and French-Canadian judges have come to our attention, we feel it is our duty to urge the Dominion government to make it impossible for any church to interfere with any marriage which has been performed in accordance with the laws of the land.

"Therefore, we ask the government of Canada to provide a law that cannot be violated by Roman Catholic priests or judges to suit their religious convenience or prejudices."

Ross Wilson Wins Canadian Net Final

TORONTO, June 5.—Ross Wilson, second ranking Canadian player, won the singles in the Broadview invitation tennis tournamet finals last night by defeating Graham Verley of Vancouver. Verley, third ranking in British Columbia, flashed a fine backhand to win the first two sets, 6-8 and 4-6, but tried before the speedier play of the Toronto lad, dropping the last three 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

POLICE MASS AFTER RIOTING FATAL TO ONE

Governor Acts After Strikers Attempt to Close Michigan Plant

NEWBERRY, Mich., June 5—Governor Frank Murphy last night ordered a concentration of members of the state police force in this vicinity to preserve order following a riot which left one man dead and several injured.

Sheriff Ernest Shaw had asked the Governor to send national guardsmen here, but in Detroit Murphy expressed confidence local authorities could maintain order.

Capt. O. E. Demaray of Marquette was placed in charge of the state police detachment and the governor directed Joseph Ashmore, secretary of the State Labor Commission, to attempt to arrange negotiations between the timber workers and sawmill workers' union and the Newberry Lumber and Chemical Company.

The union men were routed in an attempt to close the company's plant. Sheriff Shaw expressed apprehension the workers would return from Munising, where they held a meeting, and that the fighting might be renewed.

GRATEFUL OLD SAILOR SENDS PLENTY MONEY

LONDON, June 5.—A brown paper parcel—far from clean and tied up loosely with string—was received at the Seamen's hospital, Greenwich, addressed to P. P. Cole, the senior surgeon.

Cole opened the parcel and found inside a further wrapping of much used paper. Finally, the contents were revealed as 200 £1 notes with the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Cole: I ham sending two hundred pounds for use of the hospital for the kindness you don for me. I had operation three years ago.

"Yours truly."

The donor was an old seaman, aged 74, who was treated in the Dreadnought hospital and then went to the convalescent home in 1934.

Centrals vs. Eatons, no report.

FLASHES

Junior A.Z.A.'s bowed to the British Consols at Coronation Park last night but the 21-11 score was not so bad compared with the 13-0 defeat the Consols slapped on them in their first encounter. Consols blew up badly in the eighth with the Jewish lads getting six runs there. Then they came back to life and ran in nine counters before the last man went out.

Swift Canadian remain unbeaten as they won from W. W. Sales by 15 to 9 in a loosely played game at the Exhibition grounds. The Packers are a bit too heavy for this circuit but even so the other teams make them hustle at times.

Two games were played in the Golf Links section as Westmount entertained Royals and Indians defeated Two Plus Two Club in a postponed fixture. The West Enders are another powerful club and should make a good showing in the playoffs.

CARDSTON ATHLETIC MEET

An opportunity for junior track and field athletes to take part in the Cardston Golden Jubilee celebration is offered. Following the Canadian junior championships in Calgary on Dominion Day, the Cardston athletic meet will be held on July third. Entry forms are to be had from Fred Youmans at the local Y.M.C.A.

Social Circles Buzz With News Of Engagements

Heard above all other sounds this month is the whirring of Cupid's wings as he flits about from home to home, bringing happiness to many hearts—and exciting news to the social columns!

Among the interesting engagements announced today is that of Marion Eugene (Mae) Massie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Massie, to Matthew Sinclair Adam of Montreal, son of Professor and Mrs. James Adam of Edmonton. Miss Massie, a charter member of the local chapter of the Delta Gamma fraternity and a member of the Junior Hospital League, is popularly known in university and club circles and the attention of many friends is focused upon the wedding which will take place toward the end of June.

Of moment in social circles, too, is the announcement received from Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Hicks today of the engagement of their daughter, Jeane Elizabeth Hicks, to Hugh Beverely Mann, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mann of Edmonton. Their marriage will be one of the lovely ceremonies of late June.

Best wishes of the many friends she has made during her long association with the staff of Victoria High school go with Dorothy Louise Cliff, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cliff, whose engagement to Walter Poulsom, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Poulsom of Edmonton, is announced. Early July is the date set for the wedding.

Maisie Chatters, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Chatters will be another summer bride. Her engagement to Robert Cyril Southall, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Southall of this city is announced today, the wedding to take place in All Saints Cathedral on the evening of Saturday, July 3.

MISS MAE MASSIE

High School Dinner, Dance, Is Gay Affair

Saying not goodbye, but "au revoir", for they will be meeting again in the wider membership of the alumni association, Victoria High School graduates dined and danced gayly at their final school-day party in the main dining room of the Corona hotel on Friday evening.

PRINCIPAL SPEAKS

Presiding at a most enjoyable after-dinner program, Mr. C. O. Hicks, the principal, cautioned the graduating students against the natural attribute of youth—impatience—reminding them that the ladder of success is climbed slowly, rung by rung.

"You have a strenuous fight before you—and you have our best wishes for victory—we shall watch your careers, and be proud of you" . . . thus in behalf of the staff, Mr. D. L. Shortliffe bade farewell to the graduates.

In reply, Mr. Gordon Larson likened himself and his colleagues to seeds of a full grown flower parting from the stock. "It's all up to us now," he said, "whether we thrive or fall by the wayside. We have our foundation . . . now we must build our own castles of achievement."

"THE ARGOSY"

Miss Freda FitzPatrick paid warm tribute to the staff of the school paper, the Argosy, and their advisor, Miss Lorena Maguire, Mr. Donald McKay making a delightful response.

Expressing her wish that the graduates "all make many home runs in the game of life" Miss B. Ness spoke briefly in congratulation to Victoria's athletes who this year captured the city championships for the boys' and girls' track team, senior rugby and senior basketball. Mr. Bill Cuddie responded fittingly.

TOAST TO ACTORS

Glowing in his praise of Victoria's dramatic stars, and their director, Miss Eva O. Howard, Mr. Alan Johnson made a charming little speech about "Vic's school play," Miss Gwen Seller, president of the dramatic club, replying.

In a witty toast "To the ladies" Mr. Gordon Burton made several very sensible remarks about what he termed "a senseless subject." Captain Towerton entertained with one of his recitations which are so popular with the students.

Another pleasant part of the program was the presentation of alumni prizes—for academic achievement and general student service, to Miss Margaret Hughes and Mr. Tom Mason. Miss K. Tesky made the presentation address. Academic cups, for prowess in grade XI and grade XII examinations were presented to Miss Sybil Fratkin and Mr. Joe Loomer, Mr. Larue Smith speaking briefly in this connection.

SING SONG

Jolly sing songs, led by Mr. W. Baker and Mr. Jim Hermiston interspersed the speeches.

Seated at the long tables which were graced with colorful bowls of tulips were:

Mr. C. O. Hicks, Miss K. Tesky, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Shortliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Larue Smith, Miss Helen Love, Mr. Gordon Burton, Miss Freda Fitzpatrick.

Mr. Robert Thompson, Captain H. Towerton, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Baker, Mr. M. Scarborough, Miss L. E. Maguire, Miss A. F. Robinson, Mr. Joseph Loomer, Miss Betty Ness, Dr. G. D. Misener, Mr. Thomas Mason, Mr. D. Black, Mr. R. H. Dobson, Mr. James Hermiston, Miss Bunty Sutherland.

Mr. L. B. Fratkin, Miss Sybil Fratkin, Miss Gwendolyn Seller, Mr. Meredith Lennox, Mr. Donald McKay, Mr. R. K. Colter, Miss Eva O. Howard, Mr. A. A. Cumming.

Mr. R. E. E. Makovichuk, Miss Lillian Ward, Miss Patricia Reed, Miss Cathryn Zender, Mr. Gordon Wright, Mr. Bill Bristow, Mr. Robert Christensen, Miss Jean Gray, Mr. Lester Foster, Miss Mary Anderson.

Mr. A. Michaelson, Miss Marjorie Magee, Mr. Ian Ramsay, Miss Jean B. Brown, Miss May Kennedy, Mr. J. S. How, Mr. D. A. Johnstone, Miss Marguerite Clifton, Mr. S. Ornest, Mr. A. Martin, Mr. T. Marr, Mr. G. Ball.

Mr. L. C. McBurney, Mr. Jack Oyler, Miss Kay Mitchell, Mr. Gordon Bentley, Miss Myrtle Cameron, Miss Thelma Butler, Mr. William Milroy, Mr. David Laughton, Miss Avis Skitch, Miss Reta Pechet, Mr. Mickey Olin, Mr. Alexander, Podolsky.

Mr. Harry Uretsky, Mr. Allan Young, Miss Margaret Frizzell, Mr. Forbes Hill, Miss Doris Gillespie, Mr. Donald Douglas, Miss Doris Frizzell, Mr. R. W. Hurry, Mr. Pat Fulmisbee, Miss Mary Douglas, and others.

FROM the sublime to the ridiculous—or rather, the matter-of-fact! With all the thrilling talk these days about lace, flowers, and gifts, we were surprised and amused at an eastern newspaper story in which the writer describes the goings-on behind the scenes. She gives a most humorous picture of a household, overhung with the cloud of panic that descends at the eleventh hour in the wedding story. "Father," she says, "starts parading nervously in and out of his daughter's room, not quite sure yet, of his part in the big day's proceedings. Telegrams, letters and gifts keep arriving, and of course the bride must have the fun of opening her 27th salt and pepper shakers and her 13th flower bowl. Her telephone keeps ringing. There are last-minute telephone conversations and much jollying from the bridesmaids. The newspaper reporters call up to get detailed accounts of the whole proceedings and make arrangements for photographs.

"The house is bedlam let loose. The door bell rings constantly all morning. Caterers arrive and take possession of the kitchen and dining-room. The florist deposits large mounds of flowers, ferns, wicker baskets and standards in conglomerate heaps and proceeds to use the house like a work shop. Everyone seems to be shouting directions at once and it's a wonder the chicken pates don't get slung up amid the ropes of smilax in the reception alcove.

"By the time the florist and caterers have got the house almost ship shape, the photographer arrives and messes everything up again by dumping his tripod and camera paraphernalia in the middle of the living-room floor. It is not long before he begins clamoring for the bride and bridesmaids. They rush about looking for their bouquets, which have been stored away some place, no one seems to know where. The time is getting short and there is a feeling of panic in the air.

"At last everyone is ready for the church. The bride's mother leaves the house first, alone, shortly afterwards the bridesmaids and flower girls, and then last of all the bride and her father, or if she has no father, a near male relative. Long before this, the ushers have been at the church, escorting guests to their pews. By the time the bride and her father whirl up in the bridal car, veil and cutaway flying, it should be on the dot of the wedding hour. It is usually later."

AN ARAB LOVE-SONG

The hunched camels of the night
Trouble the bright
And silver waters of the moon.
The Maiden of the Morn will soon
Through Heaven stray and sing.
Star gathering.

Now while the dark about our loves is strewn,
Light of my dark, blood of my heart, O come!
And night will catch her breath up,
and be dumb.
Leave thy father, leave thy mother
And thy brother;
Leave the black tents of thy tribe
apart!
Am I not thy father and thy brother,
And thy mother?
And thou—what needest with thy tribe's black tents
Who hast the red pavilion of my heart?

Pupils Of Peggy Aitken Give Revue

Waterlilies floating up through the circles of light—a white butterfly or "papillon" moving as if on wings through a scented garden—a minature beau and belle, satin clad and graceful, moving in the intricate steps of the minuet—tunic-clad figures going through the movements of a Grecian dance to the lingering strains of Chopin—these were some of the pictures suggested in rhythmic and graceful movement in the cleverly planned recital of the pupils of Miss Peggy Aitken, teacher of dancing, given in the Masonic Temple on Friday evening.

Before an appreciative audience the pupils who were for the most part young children, moved through their routines, acrobatic numbers and dance sketches with a naturalness and enjoyment that is unusual in revues.

Admirably balanced by solo numbers by Miss Peggy Aitken, Miss Mary Aitken and Miss Helen McCarthy, the program had a pleasing variety and scope. Tap dances, waltz clogs, little rhythmic sketches—all were treated by the pupils with precision and beauty of execution.

Whether it was in the colorful and lovely number to the music of Offenbach's Barcarolle from "The Tales of Hoffman" the spirited Russian dances or the smart and snappy routines of the tap dances, there was a happy amount of attention given to timing and showmanship.

Assisting during the program was Miss Catherine Zender delightful soloist who sang a number of appropriate songs very sweetly.

Taking part were also, a number of pupils from the Queensmead school, Andre Smeaton, Diana Jenkins, Rosalie, Ann McHaffie, Mary Field, Ann Field, Emily Doris Kenwood, Eleanor Ann Mitchell, Jane Emery, Lorna Jones, Patty Hale and Ann Debney.

Others included in the program were Jackie McCarthy, Marjorie Ellis, Brownie Brown, Phyllis McCarthy, Barbara Spilstead, Joyce Burger, Arlene Ray, Louis Morin, Billy Long, Jerry Burger, Joyce Wilson, Arlene Jones, Helen McCarthy, Joan Burger, June Murdoch, Royamyne Haynes, Lorna Brown, Margaret Stager, Marjorie Coursier, Betty Kingzett, Betty Campbell, Pam Wildman, Coleen McCarthy, Bob Macbeth and Owen Gray.

Accompanist for the evening was Miss Betty Gutteridge.

LEGISLATION TO BE ASKED BY MOTHERS' CLUB

Requests that the petitions recently circulated regarding Mothers' Allowances be dealt with at the next session of the legislature and that legislation be enacted to ensure the payment of the wage required by the Minimum Wage Act to domestic servants will be brought to the attention of the members at the next session by a delegation appointed from the Edmonton Mothers' Council for the Protection of Youth recently.

Tags will be sold on Saturday, July 10, in aid of funds for their work, members were instructed.

Mrs. Joseph A. Clarke and Mrs. Caroline Riley of the Women's International league will be the guest speakers at the next meeting of the Council in the Moose temple on Tuesday, June 8, and will give an interesting dialogue on peace.

Reports of the recent social evening held at the home of Mrs. J. McKenzie showed the undertaking to be successful.

Talented Edmonton Contralto To Sing At Music Teachers' Convention In Winnipeg

MISS VIOLET CUMMING

Outstanding among Alberta's far-famed choir of song-birds and nationally known through her appearances before the microphone, Violet Cumming, contralto, of Edmonton, has been invited to appear as soloist at the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers' association, at Winnipeg, from July 5 to 8.

ONLY REPRESENTATIVE

Miss Cumming will be sole representative from this province appearing on the convention's program and will sing two groups of numbers, one consisting of songs of her own selection and the other of songs composed by Mrs. F. Barber Smith of this city, as part of a Canadian composers program.

At Winnipeg, Miss Cumming will be accompanied by Miss Helen MacGregor, one of this city's outstanding pianists, who acts as Miss Cumming's accompanist here.

MODEST

Modest and unassuming, Miss Cumming has placed herself in the very forefront of Canadian vocal artists by reason of her naturally beautiful voice, which has grown more opulent with training and practice, her unfailing artistry in the selection of her songs and her mature musicianship, which makes for the most artistic interpretation of the numbers selected for performance.

Talking about herself is not one of the many accomplishments of this talented artist, but one who has won such a bewildering succession of triumphs at musical festivals, on the concert and operatic stages and in the church choir loft, must yield to investigation, as the various activities are chronicled and become a matter of record.

For a time she was contralto soloist at a leading Detroit church and probably would have been there yet, if only those peculiar and unappreciated immigration laws had not interfered to say that artists could not remain more than six months in the country — or something like that.

Then she has captured the hearts of Chicagoans by appearing as soloist with the famous Clan Cameron celebrations.

EDMONTON DEBUT

It was in 1926 that she first loomed large on the Edmonton musical horizon, in that year entering the Alberta Musical Festival and doing what they call the "hat trick" in sport circles winning the gold medal in the contralto class, the Women's Musical Club scholarship and the open contralto competition cup. In 1927 she won the contralto cup in the Musical Festival, held that year in Calgary.

In the 1929 provincial musical festival she won not only the contralto solo cup, but the coveted Stutchbury cup, open to all gold medalists of a current of former festival. Thus did she do the "hat trick" for a second time, by winning the contralto cup three times.

In 1929 and 1930 she studied for several months in Detroit with Cameron McLean, Scottish baritone and also took part with him, in Scottish programs at Detroit and Pittsburgh.

In 1931 she passed the advanced Royal Academy examination with honorable mention and in 1932 obtained her L.R.S.M.

It was only natural that when grand opera productions were being staged here that she should be called upon to sing leading roles. And so in 1933 when the Women's Musical Club produced Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," Miss Cummings was cast as "Lucia."

The following season she was outstanding in the Edmonton Civic Operatic Society's production of "Maritana" singing the role of "Lazarillo." In 1936 she was once more outstanding in the same society's presentation of Verdi's "Il Trovatore" singing "Azucena."

Her artistry and her fluent limpid voice were also soon in demand on the air, and in this respect the CRC and CBC have claimed much of her time. Among the programs on which she has sung, which have gone to the network are "Au Clair de la Lune," "Night Song," "Knights of Gladness," "To an Evening Star" and "After Twilight."

In February of 1935 she was honored by the CRC by being the guest artist in a "Presenting Program" which went to the national network. Last winter she was a member of the noted "Woodland Echoes" program.

For eight years she was soloist at Robertson United church.

An artist and musician first, last and always, Miss Cumming has made a valuable contribution to the musical life of this city and all music lovers will rejoice at the distinction accorded her in being invited as guest artist at the national convention of music teachers at Winnipeg.—J.O.

Holy Trinity Is Setting For Pretty Wedding

Gold of afternoon sunshine shining through the stained windows of the lovely chapel of Holy Trinity Anglican Church and making patterns on the floor was the setting for a pretty wedding ceremony on Saturday afternoon when Kathleen Baird, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Baird, became the bride of Mr. Peter Fimonsen, son of Captain C. I. Fimonsen, and the late Mrs. Fimonsen of Marstal, Denmark.

White lilacs in all their fragrance and loveliness were used as floral decoration throughout the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charmingly lovely gown of white triple sheer with little bolero jacket effect, puffed sleeves, form fitting bodice and full floor-length skirt. From a coronet of orange blossoms in her hair the bridal veil of white with hand embroidery at the corners, fell gracefully to the floor. Tawny colored roses in pink and yellow were her flowers.

Daffodil yellow was the shade of the attractive gown Miss Edna Huntbach wore as bridesmaid, and patterned on it were the lovely mauves and whites of lilacs. Her bouquet was of lilacs.

Rev. G. G. Reynolds read the marriage lines in the presence of immediate relatives.

Mr. George Haslop was best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Baird chose a becoming gown of rose beige crepe with brown accessories and corsage of cream colored roses.

Mr. Herbert Wild was organist.

Immediately following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Fimonsen left on their wedding trip which will take them to Calgary and Banff, and through the north-west United States and back by way of Seattle and Vancouver. They are travelling by motor.

For her going away costume Mrs. Fimonsen chose a smart tailleur of brown, worn with matching hat and accessories. A blouse of jonquil yellow and lovely red fox fur completed the ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Fimonsen will be absent from the city for about two weeks.

MINISTER WHO MARRIED DUKE NOT REGRETFUL

Rev. Jardine Back With Wedding Cake and Gold Cuff Links

LONDON, June 5.—Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who read the religious marriage service for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, returned from Monts last night with a piece of wedding cake for his wife, a pair of gold cuff links from Edward and autographs of the newlyweds in his red-backed prayerbook.

He was glad he had gone and felt his former king was greatly pleased the blessing of the church was bestowed upon him and his bride.

"I thank God that you were here," were Windsor's first words to him after the service, Mr. Jardine said.

"He said it in a tone of deep reverence which showed how much he appreciated my presence."

The poor man's [illegible] of Darlington was confident, too, there would be no discipline from his churchly superiors.

Jekyll-Hyde Mental Quirks Explained to Scientific Conclave

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., June 5.—A psychological treatment for some strange "Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde" personalities who try to be two persons instead of one was reported today before the American Neurological Association.

Dr. C. P. Oberndorf of New York declared he had been able to return to normal a 40-year-old lawyer who had been suffering from such a mental maladjustment since childhood and had succeeded in directing the energy formerly expended by the individual on two lines of thought into a single direct pathway.

WORLD NOT REAL

To such persons the world about them never seems real, he said. They often carry on two separate thinking processes at the same time, and their minds never relax for an instant.

In the individual treated the common emotions of joy, [illegible] rage or disgust had never been felt," the New York physician declared, and his "co-consciousness" made him feel that he was not himself.

In this case and in many others the dual nature of the individual is developed as a defence mechanism to meet some situation which cannot be handled otherwise.

THINK LIKE FATHER

Often a daughter will unconsciously develop the male thinking of her father in order to overcome the dominance of her mother or a son will develop a feeling "that he must be right in all things" to maintain his superiority over either parent. Dr. Oberndorf [illegible] and after the necessity for this defence passes the person continues to exercise it in order to live.

Ministers' Salary Arrears Laid to Alberta Slash

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., June 5.—At the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church yesterday Rev. Dr. S. W. Dean, Toronto, reported the pensions fund was in a dangerous condition. More than half the [illegible] were in arrears [illegible] than $1,000 [illegible] and municipal [illegible].

"We are not," he added, "going to accept the 50 per cent reduction in the interest rate offered" by the province of Alberta.

Dr. Dean predicted theer "will soon be a change in the political life of the province (Alberta) that will alter the situation greatly, with men in the high places who will be interested in the good name and welfare of their province."

LONDON GUARDS ANCIENT RIGHT

LONDON, June 5.—When the lord mayor of this [illegible] city swears to protect the liberties and customs of the city he knows he is committing himself to serious responsibilities and not merely uttering gilded trimmings to an impressive oath of office. Sir George Broadbridge is the present incumbent.

The square mile known as the City guards its ancient customs jealously and rarely is one allowed to lapse. Many of the City's privileges are of unrecorded origin, and those granted by William the Conqueror were merely confirmation of rights enjoyed for years previously.

Among the City's oldest customs is the [illegible] at regular intervals for election of Lord Mayor, Sheriffs and bridgemasters and [illegible]. [illegible] to depart or pay [illegible] punishment. Those who fail to surrender to the sheriffs are declared outlaws.

BERLIN HITS NEUTRALITY PROPOSALS

Inspired Press Gives Hint Of Official Reception Awaiting Plan

BERLIN, June 5—The officially-inspired German press joined unofficial spokesmen today in serving notice that the Reich regarded Britain's proposal for insuring the security of Spanish neutrality patrol units as unsatisfactory "half-measures."

It was understood Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to Great Britain, would arrive here later today to confer with Nazi officials on the situation. Observers were inclined, however, to regard today's press comment as a harbinger of the Reich's eventual reply to London.

The British proposals, approved by France, call for security zones for patrol ships; an undertaking by both sides of the civil war to respect flags and establishment of a consultative system among patrol fleets in the event of new incidents.

German circles listed drawbacks to London's proposals as follows:

1—Germany, while willing to accept the word of General Franco, Spanish insurgent leader, but is fearful of taking Valencia's.

2—The proposal calling for the consultation of neutrality control commanders would prove impracticable. The project was held repugnant here as threatening the Reich's right to defend its own naval units.

Important Step Is Taken By Pope

The importance of organizing the Church in Ethiopia is felt by the Roman Catholic Church to be so great that Pope Pius did what is considered to be most unusual. He not only called the three congregations of the Roman Curia who are in charge but presided over the deliberations. One was the Sacred Congregation of Propaganda; another that of the Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs; and the third the Congregation of the Oriental Church. The session lasted from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., the Holy Father being tired but not exhausted.

An audience was given in the [illegible] to Mgr. Heylen, [illegible] from the International Eucharistic Congress at Manila. He is President of the Permanent Committee. CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

At all Christian Science churches next Sunday, the subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "God the Only Cause and Creator." The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon: "Unto thee, O God, do we give thanks, unto thee do we give thanks: for that thy name is near thy wondrous works declare" (Psalms 75:1). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 331): "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. . . . He is [illegible] He is all-inclusive, and is reflected by all that is real and eternal and by nothing else. He fills all space, and it is impossible to conceive of such omnipresence and individuality except as infinite Spirit or Mind."

URBAN GROUPS TO HOLD 33RD ANNUAL MEET

Convention of Alberta Municipalities in Edmonton June 10, 11

The 33rd annual convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities will be held at the Macdonald hotel on Thursday and Friday next, June 10 and 11. Mayors and councillors, as well as aldermen, will be in attendance as delegates from all sections of the province.

Discussion will largely centre around the brief to be submitted to the Dominion government Royal commission on taxation.

DISCUSS B.N.A. ACT

Mayor D. H. Elton of Lethbridge will discuss "The B.N.A. Act and what can be done to bring it up to date."

Andrew Smeaton of Lethbridge the president, will be in the chair.

Other speakers to the convention will be Mayor J. A. Clarke, K.C., J. E. Fraser, Wetaskiwin; Dr. Malcolm R. Bow, deputy minister of health; Ald. J. W. Fry of Edmonton, A. E. Ottewell, registrar, University of Alberta; Ald. F. R. Freeze of Calgary, and others.

TO ARRANGE PROGRAM

The executive will meet at the Macdonald hotel at 4 p.m. on Wednesday to arrange for resolutions and the general program of the convention.

Many subjects are set down for discussion, all relative to the general welfare of the municipalities.

ALBERTA'S HAIL INSURANCE BOARD FORCED SUSPEND

CALGARY, June 5—Failure to obtain credit from the bank on the promised guarantee of the provincial government has forced the hail insurance board of Alberta to suspend operations. A. H. Tovell, chairman, announced here today.

The hail insurance board was established by an act of the Alberta legislature in 1919. Since its organization it has insured more than 20,000,000 acres, making a risk carried of $176,000,000. Losses paid to farmers for hail damaged crops total more than $15,000,000. Alberta has the heaviest hail loss ratio of any province or state in North America.

SIR ERNEST MacMILLAN, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, who will be in Edmonton June 15-19, to conduct mid-summer examinations of local music students.

Collecting Eggs Proves Expensive To City Juveniles

Collecting eggs, like collecting stamps, can become a very expensive hobby, two city juveniles discovered Friday.

The two youths, who have been collecting birds eggs for several years, suddenly fell upon a big "find" the other day which netted them several Canada goose, China duck, Wood duck and tame duck eggs. They took them, blew them and added them to their collections.

About the same time Jack McGavin, superintendent of the duck pond at the zoo at the exhibition grounds, missed a number of eggs. Investigations showed the two youths had found their eggs in the zoo duck pond. The eggs were valued at $24. The boys have been summonsed for taking the eggs.

109 HOMESTEAD ENTRIES IN MAY

Homestead entries in Alberta during May totalled 109, according to figures released on Saturday by the lands and mines department. This is an increase of eight over the same month of 1936 and of 13 over the previous month of this year.

Of the 109 in May there were 101 first entries; five seconds and three soldier grants, with 40 of the total being entered by women.

In May of 1936 there were 87 firsts; 13 seconds and one soldier grants with 35 entries by women in the total.

In April, 1937, there were 88 firsts; seven seconds and one soldier grant with 32 women filing.

Not Taking Sides In Airport Row

OTTAWA, June 5.—The Department of Transport is not taking sides in the matter of selecting locations for a flying field in Toronto, Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, indicated in a brief announcement issued here today. This, he declared, was a matter for the city itself.

She Found Herself Job In Filmland

ARLEEN WHELAN

Los Angeles manicurist, had a movie career right under someone else's thumb, but she didn't know it until her customer offered her a contract. It seems he was a film director who thought she was wasting her cuteness on the side. Of course, Miss Whelan liked her approval, but because she's only 20, the contract had to be authorized in court.

NOTED CANADIAN MUSICIAN WILL CONDUCT TESTS

Sir Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, will arrive in Edmonton from Vancouver on June 15, to conduct the mid-summer examinations for local music students.

During his western trip Sir Ernest will visit Winnipeg, Calgary, Victoria, Vancouver, Saskatoon and Regina. In each city meetings are being arranged for musical discussions and a number of social functions will be held.

Following Sir Ernest's trip he will go to Chicago where he has been invited as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for July 2, 3 and 4. The summer programs of the Chicago Symphony are held in the open air at the famous Ravinia Park, under the direction of Frederick Stock, noted conductor.

Jose Iturbi, famous pianist, will play a concerto at each of the concerts under Sir Ernest's baton.

The Chicago engagement unfortunately prevents Sir Ernest's conducting the London Symphony Orchestra in London on July 8 since he will be unable to sail for England before July 6.

Sir Ernest has accepted an invitation to adjudicate at the Royal National Eisteddfod at Machynlleth, Wales, from August 2 to 7, a high honor not often accorded to a musician outside the British Isles. Dating back over two thousand years for its origin, this great national music festival is the oldest in the world.

In addition to adjudicating at the Welsh festival it is expected that Sir Ernest will conduct several musical broadcasts for the British Broadcasting Corporation.

PEACE EXAMPLE NOT EFFECTIVE, SAYS MINISTER

DEVONPORT, June 5.—Leslie Hore-Belisha, in his first speech as minister of war, last night said Great Britain had to abandon the effort to achieve world peace by example even as she had to abandon some years ago her effort to get free trade by example.

Other people, taking advantage of Britain's policy of free trade, he said, dumped goods to such an extent the industrial population was forced out of work.

The policy of disarmament did not make for the peace of the world. "On the contrary," he said. "People had thought the British Empire was effete and unprepared to defend its own interests and responsibilities."

The Italian war against Ethiopia, he added, might never have occurred had Great Britain been stronger.

Rockefeller Will Disposes Of His Huge Fortune

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., June 5.—John D. Rockefeller's will, disposing of an estate estimated to be worth $25,000,000, was filed today in Surrogate's court, Westchester County. The will was date June 2, 1925, and appended to it were three codicils.

These were dated May 14, 1930, Nov. 4, 1932, and Oct. 3, 1934, and the last made a radical change in the disposition of the estate.

Under the original will, the capitalist and philanthropist who died May 23 at his Ormond, Fla., home, after disposing of his personal and household effects, left the residuary estate in equal shares to the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial and his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The first two codicils made no special changes in the will.

Robert W. Hedley, Normal School Art Instructor Retires

For many years an outstanding figure in the world of art and education in this province, particularly in Edmonton, Robert Wesley Hedley, M.A., B.Educ., now instructor in art at the Edmonton Normal School, announced his retirement at the closing exercises of that institution, Friday.

Staff and students of the Normal school presented Mr. Hedley with a handsome desk lamp and Mrs. Hedley with a sheaf of flowers at the exercises. Presentation speeches were made by J. Jacobson on behalf of the students, D. M. McDougall of the practice school staff and Dr. Donalda Dickie of the Normal staff.

MEDALS PRESENTED

At the exercises, scholarships and physical training medals were presented and a graduation greeting was received from Hon. J. C. Bowen, lieutenant governor of Alberta, who attended. Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, president of the University of Alberta, also spoke.

Mr. Hedley came to Alberta just before the war, when he joined the staff of the Edmonton Public Schools, as supervisor of art. In midsummer of 1929 he joined the provincial department of education and since that time has been teacher at provincial normal school and the summer school.

One of the founders of the Edmonton Art Club, he has been responsible for the visits to Edmonton of distinguished artists and distinguished teachers of art from eastern Canada and Great Britain.

Receiving his bachelor's degree from University of Toronto in 1900, he proceeded to professional training and in 1901 was granted a first class teacher's certificate, getting his high school professional certificate in 1903 with specialist's standing in mathematics.

In the following year he received a public school inspector's certificate, all of these in Ontario, his native province, where he taught for 12 years.

QUALIFIED AS SPECIALIST

Interested in art all his life he qualified as a specialist in the subject in 1908. After coming to Alberta, he took special training in art, painting and pottery at Columbia University, New York, in 191[illegible].

Retires

R. W. HEDLEY, M.A., B.Educ., art instructor at the Edmonton Normal school, and for many years prominent in the art world of Edmonton, announced his retirement at closing exercises of the Normal school Friday.

In the exercises, the Normal School orchestra played [illegible] tuneful selections and the Practice School pipe band, directed by F. Deverell, gave two numbers. Dr. G. S. Lord, principal of the Normal School, gave the address of welcome.

Scholarships and physical training medals were presented by Dr. Lord, assisted by Sergeant-Major W. Barker. Herbert G. Turner conducted choral singing and an Ukrainian dance was presented by Misses Korolyk, Odynsky, Gulka, Romanchuk and Greckol and Messrs. Faryna, Koziak and Andruski.

Following the program, a reception was held in the foyer of the school.

Gleaned From Today's News

Edmonton school trustees will meet in the Board rooms, 510 Civic block, Tuesday, June 8, at 8 p.m.

Dr. J. P. S. Cathcart, Ottawa, chief of the neuro-psychiatric division of the department of pensions and national health, arrived in Edmonton Friday night on his annual inspection visit. He is staying at the Macdonald.

Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, and D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader, returned on Saturday morning from Regina where they attended a meeting on Friday of representatives of the three prairie provinces to discuss a joint brief for submission to the Dominion's royal commission on taxation.

Returning from the west coast on his annual western tour, D. E. Rogerson, western sales manager for Dunlop Tire and Rubber Company, Limited, finds the public in a "buying mood." Crop prospects are good, he said, on arrival here and the British Columbia lumbering industries are active. He is registered at the Macdonald.

First mail flight to Fort Grahame B.C., which is the first leg of the Edmonton-Yukon mail, was made Saturday by Pilot Grant McConachie, United Air Transport. Colonial Cayuses

U.S. Answer

Ball Helmets

WHILE Perifox was the seventh horse to thunder across the finish line at the English Derby the other day, his performance was probably watched more closely than that of any other horse by owners and breeders in general who did not have an entry of their own in the great classic.

Perifox, son of Gallant Fox, is the United States' latest and strongest argument against the famous (or infamous) Jersey Act. This government measure makes the amazing assertion, by implication, that there is not a native thoroughbred horse in the U.S.A.—that at the best they are only part thoroughbred. If the jolly legislators had known the word, they might have even condemned American animals as colonial "cayuses". This Jersey Act bars U.S. horses from breeding services in England.

You may not believe it, but this act does not even consider such horses as Man O' War, Gallant Fox, or any of their offspring to be thoroughbreds. Edmonton racing men are not just sure how this act affects Canadian horses, but since most of our stock has a cosmopolitan ancestry of English and American animals it is quite likely that they too are considered more or less as scrubs.

English breeders are justly proud of their blood lines and the Jersey Act works no paticular hardship on any Canadian or American owner. It does not bar these horses from racing [illegible] them from breeding service [illegible] horses that their owners and breeders resent to the limit. In fact a little more diplomacy in the drawing of the act would [illegible] hard feelings between the [illegible] easily have been [illegible].

Omaha, Flares and Perifox, sons of Gallant Fox, are among the leading American breds racing in England. Of the three, Perifox is perhaps the best. He was a 9-2 favorite at one time for this year's Derby. He was well up with the leaders until the last quarter mile was reached and then began to fall back. The last 50 yards are uphill and on this grind he weakened rapidly, finishing seventh.

However Perifox's performance [illegible] English and Americans satisfied. The Americans [illegible] Perifox [illegible] enough English thoroughbreds to prove that his blood was just as good as their's—whether blue or just a healthy red. Muttart Pats Win Fourth Straight With Pat Vint Hurling Smart Game

Petite Patricia Allows But Four Hits—Del Paces Team at Bat

WITH Pat Vint twirling stellar four-hit baseball and Del Davidson giving her ample support by thumping out four hits, Muttart Pats scored their fourth straight triumph in the Senior Girls' Baseball League Friday. At Boyle Street Pats clubbed Orange Crush for a 15-4 triumph.

Making her first start for the Pats since she joined them a week or so ago, Pat Vint led by a large margin and twirled smartly all the way. After a poor first inning in which Orange Crush touched her for two hits and raced four runners across, Pat settled down to twirl steadily while her Muttart mates thumped Nellie Rosso for 10 hits and a bigger run margin.

Grads Out to Eliminate Stenos in Game Tonight

Two won—one to go, Grads!

Heavy favorites by taking the first two games Grads will be out to eliminate Tulsa tonight and [illegible] reward [illegible] International basketball for another season. Grads [illegible] both games [illegible] play, looked better in their second game last Thursday. Tonight they will be primed to make it a Grad sweep and are top favorites to do so.

PRACTICE AND PLAY IMPROVED BY EASY START

I have always told my pupils to take it as easy as possible in starting both practice and play. I've yet to see a player do such a thing. Something seems to goad the player to make a [illegible]

Without waiting to loosen up muscles and joints that have in all probability been unused for several days, he takes a cut at the ball, hit or miss. In most cases it means a miss. Hooking, slicing, in fact everything right down to whiffing the ball! And, even though the idea is obviously wrong he keeps on for several holes, often for the entire round.

[illegible] to bring off that long shot they admire so much. If they would start driving with a brassie or spoon, and use a comparatively short and easy swing for four or five holes, they would soon hit their stride and stand a much better chance of [illegible] the desired power. It [illegible] for any player, no matter [illegible] expert, to start off swinging [illegible] very best.

[illegible] easy way to take [illegible] strokes off your score, just take it easy for the first six holes.

Public School Sport News

Playing in the opening game of the public school senior softball finals, Eastwood registered a close 7-6 win over Oliver on Friday afternoon. The game was played at Oliver school before a representative crowd drawn from all parts of the city. The final series was officially opened by Major Hector Kennedy, supervisor of athletics, who threw the opening ball.

OPEN UP WELL

With Captain Harry Ornest of Oliver doing the receiving, and Captain Ken McCauley of Eastwood in the batter's box, the gallant Major burned a few across the platter in a manner what would have put Dizzy Dean in the shade.

Formalities over, both contenders got down to work in earnest. Eastwood batted first and earned two runs as McAra and Jacobs scampered across the plate. The following batters were retired by Bird in rapid order. Oliver succeeded in getting one man home in the last half of the first inning.

EASTWOOD LEADS

The fourth inning was reached without further scoring. At this point each team earned a run, the score standing at 3-2 for Eastwood.

Davie Bird, Oliver pitcher, got into difficulties in the first of the fifth when Eastwood hammered [illegible] Nothing daunted Oliver's batting crew tried hard and succeeded in bringing in two counters to make the score stand at 7-4 for Eastwood, at the end of the fifth.

It was largely a pitcher's duel [illegible] Bird held his opponents scoreless from this point on but his team[illegible] were only able to garner [illegible] two more runs, falling short by one [illegible] a gallant attempt to tie the score.

FORD WAS BEST

Ford, the Eastwood catcher, was [illegible] holding men on bases and pulling [illegible] ability and fine sportsmanship.

Johnson, Oliver catcher, had two [illegible] and one walk in three trips to the plate and performed well behind the bat.

PITCHERS GOOD

Both pitchers deserve plenty of praise [illegible] displaying plenty of courage in pulling out of tough spots.

The second game of the series will take place at Eastwood on Monday. Very little difference in the two teams is apparent and the 7-6 score adequately shows the relative strength of the two contenders. [illegible] store for the fans on Monday.

TEAM LINEUPS

Eastwood: McAra, Jacobs, Cook[illegible], Forada, Chysmina, [illegible], Ford, Mitchell and Sandum[illegible].

Oliver: Ornest, Bird, Krapl[illegible], Johnson, Hogan, Field, Irving, Kennedy, Wharry, Green.

Well Known English Woman Golfer and Magistrate Passes

TURNBERRY, Ayrshire, June 5.—Ursula Bridget Newell, 25, internationally-known golfer and England's youngest magistrate, died here yesterday after an attack of [illegible].

Miss Newell, who was magistrate at Darley Dale Hall, Derbyshire, was runner up in 1936 in the British women's championship to Pam Barton, who also holds the United States women's title. She was one of the favorites for the 1937 title.

Born in Yorkshire, she sprang into golfing prominence in 1935 by taking the Derbyshire ladies' championship. Last year she won the Midland ladies', the "Golf Illustrated" ladies' vase and the Fishwick bowl and played for England against France.

Entry List Closes Friday Ladies' Golf

Entries for the ladies' city golf championship, to be played at the Highlands Golf and Country Club on June 14 to 18, must be received by the officials of their respective clubs by Friday the 11th instant in order to be in for the draw. Mrs. H. A. Lowe is in charge of the draws committee, and it is hoped that the ladies will co-operate and a successful tournament will be enjoyed by all.

Cooper-Smith Beat Shute-Little Pair

TOLEDO, O., June 5.—"Light-horse" Harry Cooper and Horton Smith defeated Denny Shute, United States Professional golfers association champion, and Lawson Little, former "grand slam" amateur champion, 6 up, in the second round of the Inverness best-ball matches yesterday.

Cooper and Smith tore 10 strokes off par with a brilliant total of 61, the lowest ever recorded in the three years of tourney play.

North-End Belmonts Rally Ninth Inning To Deadlock Score

Veteran Players Strengthen North Edmonton Lineup; Pete McCready Knocks In Tying Marker in Ninth Frame

IN a game featured by an extra inning of play, the National Home Furnishers and North Edmonton Belmonts battled to a 6-6 deadlock last night at Renfrew Park, but as far as standings are concerned the overtime encounter means "no dice." Other highlights in the game were the performances of a trio of senior league veterans as Herm Loblick, the Spruce Grove agrarian, Pete McCready and Lorne Harney joined the North Edmonton lineup.

HEFTY HITTING

On, off and then on again as anxious eyes scanned cloudy skies, the game was studded with some hefty clouting, but marred by a dozen errors that accounted for much of the scoring.

Herman Loblick, the big Stony Plain gentleman farmer, came back to his old stamping grounds in a North Edmonton uniform to serve up his high, hard ones and big Herm was in good form. He went the whole way, striking out 14 batters and allowing only seven hits. Only poor fielding beat him.

Ab Grassick started out for Nationals on the mound but was yanked in the third and Conklin sent in. They split six runs evenly, the former allowing four hits, the latter seven.

Pete McCready and Lorne Harney were also in North Edmonton uniforms and for a first game did quite well. Peter pulled some nice catches in the field and got two clouts, batting the tieing run in, in five times up. One of the hits was good for two bags.

Two-base hits were also credited to Red McIntyre, Lorne Harney and Bibby.

Walt Wagner, the old maestro and still at it, was instrumental in racking up the only double play of the evening, when he caught McIntyre at second, with Carlson relaying it to first to beat Lloyd.

WAR ADMIRAL, POMPOON SET FOR TURF TEST

NEW YORK, June 5.—War Admiral and Pompoon bring their rivalry for the three-year-old turf crown down to Belmont Park today for the 69th running of the $50,000 Belmont Stakes, a mile and a half test of speed and stamina.

Five other colts, three of which trailed the pair in either the Kentucky Derby or Preakness, also have been named for the final event of the American turf's "triple crown."

It is the presence, however, of Samuel Riddle's War Admiral and J. H. Louchheim's Pompoon, furnishing the outstanding "natural" of the year, that is expected to draw a crowd of 40,000 and break all recent records for attendance at the beautiful Long Island track.

Jockey Trampled

BOSTON, June 5.—Johnny Deering, 21-year-old D[illegible] jockey, was pitched over his mount's head and trampled yesterday during the running of the fourth race at Suffolk Downs race track. He suffered serious internal injuries.

Lougheed Juniors Defeat Sedgewick

LOUGHEED, June 5.—Lougheed softball team (12 years and under) engaged Sedgewick junior aggregation, Saturday, at Sedgewick and emerged victors, final score being 30-11. Sedgewick shuffled their men about constantly but they didn't click very well in any of the combinations.

Lougheed lineup: Donald Sax, Maynard McCune, Victor McCune, Ted Butcher, Dave Harding, Frank Dixon, Jack Butcher, Arden Dixon, Ed. Peterson.

Maynard McCune made the one home run.

Rev. R. Jorden of Lougheed was the umpire.

Confident U.S. Net Team Sails Today

NEW YORK, June 5.—Conservatively confident they will bring the Davis cup back to the United States for the first time since the French took it abroad in 1927, the five-man American tennis expeditionary force sails for Plymouth, England, today.

The team includes the four men who achieved shut-out victories over Japan and Australia in the North American zone, Donald Budge, 22, Gene Mako, 21, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, 26, and Frank Parker, 21, plus an added starter, Wayne Sabin, 21.

Hubbell Sent to Showers As Giants Split Brace Of Games

CLEVELAND Indians are out to make it a lot tougher for New York's murderous Yankees than most fall fanciers fancy. In two days the Tribesmen have posted victories, taking their second Friday by a 5-3 score. The triumph jumped the Indians two games behind the pacesetters.

Earl Averill, heap big slugger for the Tribesmen, had a field day at the expense of the Yankee pitching stars, Spurgeon Chandler and Johnny Murphy. Averill clouted heavily for a homer, a double and a single, driving in one run and scoring three himself.

TIGERS GO WILD

Detroit Tigers could not be stopped at [illegible] the lowly Senators from Washington by a 10-3 score, while the lowly Brownies and Athletics split a doubleheader. St. Louis won the first game, 7-6 while Philadelphia came back for the second game for a 4-3 margin.

In the National League, Carl Hubbell, making his first start since his record winning streak was snapped, was belted from the box as the Giants and Chicago Cubs split a doubleheader. The Giants pulled up to within one game of the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates who lost out to Boston Bees 9-1.

Brilliant Charlton Athletics Open Soccer Tour Calgary Wednesday

Team Made History In England With Rapid Rise

By PHIL A. WARWICK

TORONTO, Ont., June 5.—Soccer fans throughout Canada and the United States will be treated to some splendid exhibitions of English soccer when the Charlton Athletic club display their form this month. They will play thirteen games on this side of the Atlantic, seven in Canada and six in the land of Uncle Sam.

The Charlton club has written soccer history during the past three seasons, showing some remarkable strength in rising from a third division to the first division or the aristocracy of soccer. The season of 1934-35 saw Charlton winners of the third division which gained for them a promotion to the second division. In their first season in this class they finished as runners-up to the champions, thus promoting themselves again. In the season just ended their first in top-flight football, they led the league during the latter part of the season, but were finally beaten out and had to be content with second place.

Some people are of the opinion that Charlton were just plain lucky in getting where they are. Others say it's just sheer football ability that has carried them to the top. But according to Manager Jimmy Seed, it is neither of these alone but many things. He is convinced that team spirit is a decisive factor in winning games. Without team spirit, he says, a team can do very little even though it might have been players that are known as "stars."

PLAY TO SYSTEM

It is admitted, Manager Jimmy Seed says, that Charlton play to a system or plan. The system calls for full co-operation of all the players and in some cases more work than footballers on many teams are called upon to do. Another big factor in Charlton's success is the fact that they believe that the more men they have back of the ball the harder it is for the opposition to penetrate the defence. Literally speaking the Athletics have only one goalie on the field, but in actual play every player on the team is a goalie. Mr. Seed claims that every player on the team has a definite place in their defensive scheme. As for the team spirit of the English club, it might be worth while to recall an incident in which players have shown themselves unwilling to leave the field although injured. In a game with West Bromwich Albion, a severe collision injured Harold Hobbis. After being doctored up he insisted on going back into the game. Twice he collapsed and twice the Charlton trainer, Jimmy Trotter, tried to induce him to leave the field, but he refused. Just before the end of the match he collapsed a third time and had to be carried off insensible. Charlton won the match 4-2, Hobbis scoring two of the goals.

INSIDE MOVES BACK

Charlton have an understanding that whenever a goalie or back is taken off the field their inside-right, George Robinson, takes his place. In one of their league games that very thing happened; George had to play full-back for the first time in his life. He played an absolute "blinder" [illegible] and team spirit enabled him to play a smashing game.

Here is the Charlton club's Canadian schedule. On June 9 [illegible] open their exhibition tour in Calgary, Alta. From there they [illegible] on to Vancouver where they play on June 12 and then to Victoria June 14. Saskatoon [illegible] glimpse of them on June 1[illegible] Winnipeg on June 19. [illegible] play hosts to the Englishmen on June 23 and they wind up the series in Montreal, June 30.

Dean Wins Major Pop Off Against President Frick

Sensational St. Louis Card Pitcher Still Signed Nuthin'

By ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK, June 5.—Yielding finally to Dizzy Dean's stubborn insistence that "I ain't goin' to sign nuthin'," President Ford C. Frick of the National League Friday declared an armistice in his warfare with the famous pitcher of St. Louis Cardinals and fixed a three-day limit on his suspension.

Frick lifted the ban he imposed on Wednesday, effective in time to permit Dean to pitch against the Phillies at Philadelphia today, as the climax of a stormy two-hour battle of words, the second in as many days.

DENIAL WINS FRICK

The league's youthful chief executive had to be satisfied, however, only with the pitcher's verbal denial he made any of the derogatory statements which he had been accused of delivering.

Dean's refutation took the final form of a series of questions, propounded by Frick, and laconic answers by the pitcher. A dozen newspapermen, together with Manager Frankie Frisch and Secretary Clarance Lloyd of the St. Louis club, signed the stenographic report of the proceedings as witnesses but Dean's autograph — the one thing Frick insisted he must have before restoring Dizzy to good standing—was conspicuously missing.

Dean, replying to five questions from Frick, (1) denied he said the league's balk interpretation rule was instituted as a slap at him or that he said it constituted persecution; (2) and (3) admitted he was warned about enforcement of the rule, in Brooklyn, a week before the riotous battle with the Giants at St. Louis, May 19, and again prior to that particular game, by Frisch; (4) denied he said at a church dinner in Belleville, Ill., that Ford Frick and Umpire George Barr were the "two biggest crooks in baseball"; and (5) denied the accuracy of the story, so quoting him, as published by the Belleville (Ill.) Daily Advocate.

PRODUCES WIRE

Dean not only carried his main point of "signin' nuthin'," after two days of bitter haggling, but stood his ground otherwise. To offset Frick's telegram from the editor of the Belleville newspaper, backing up the paper's account of what Dean said, Dizzy produced a wire signed by nine men, including the minister of the Belleville Presbyterian church, which said:

"We deem it our duty to express our opinion that your talk (on May 25) was not detrimental to the best interests of baseball but on the contrary was well received by an enthusiastic gathering."

The pitcher, continuing to "pop off," disagreed sharply with Frick's statement the "incident was closed," insisted he would carry his protest to Commissioner Landis, and talked loudly about taking his case to "the highest court."

Hi-Ginny Picked Favorite To Win In 'Peg Futurity

WINNIPEG, June 5.—A decisive triumph over a classy band of juveniles Friday stamped Neil McQueen's Hi-Ginny as the horse to beat in the Winnipeg Futurity, richest of Canada's two-year-old stakes. The gelded son of Hey Diddle Diddle-Simon's Glen romped to an eighth length triumph in the Grande Prairie Purse at Polo Park Friday afternoon and over a sloppy track negotiated the half mile in the exceedingly fast time of :50 1-5 leaving in his wake Mac's Best, Kalispell and nine other juveniles.

The Vancouver-owned two-year-old had previously scored a seven length triumph over another juvenile field in the opening days of the meeting.

When Navies of World Paraded Might for King George

In full naval dress with flags fluttering these three [illegible] of two great nations fired salvos as the royal yacht bearing King George VI passed [illegible] the great coronation massed review. In the foreground proudly [illegible] the Union Jack is the H.M.S. Barham and next the H.M.S. Ramillies. Third in line is the French warship Dunkerque, France's latest bid for sea power and the most modern capital ship in the world, with 10,000 of her 26,500 tons in armor.

Some of the million persons who saw this brilliantly colorful night naval review off Spithead, England, following the coronation, may be seen in the immediate foreground, their eyes turned toward the glorious fireworks spectacle, brilliantly displayed in the above picture. One hundred and fifty-eight vessels from 18 nations participated in the review before the newly-crowned king and queen of England. So awe-struck was one British commentator that he blurted out "the fleet is all lit up" and then lost his tongue completely. The huge naval parade, both a night and daylight ceremony, was the conclusion to Britain's coronation ritual.

NORITE BAY MINE SINKS TWO SHAFTS

Properties Are Gold Prospects With Some Silver Showings

GOLDFIELDS, Sask., June 5.—"Properties on Norite Bay, Lake Athabasca, are principally gold prospects with some samples carrying high silver values, the latter being irregular," [illegible] Byrne, M.E., in charge of operations of Fondulac Mining Corporation at Norite Bay.

Mr. Byrne has 20 men in the field. Two prospect shafts are being sunk by hand. Shaft number 1 on Viola 1 vein is down 32 feet. Number 2 is on Packsak 1 vein and is down 20 feet. These shafts are about 2,000 feet apart and are to go down 50 feet.

They are not on the same break but surface work opened up two ore shoots of promise on veins which vary from three to ten feet in width and have been traced from five to six hundred feet. Ore is of high grade with considerable free gold present, three feet being considered a mineable width.

TRACTOR ROAD

Fondulac's main camp is located [illegible] Norite Bay [illegible] Lake. A tractor road has been [illegible] A gold bay to the west about [illegible] A temporary camp is being [illegible]

Men are prospecting veins 3, 4 and 6 of the Packsak group, all of [illegible] samples and also samples brought in by private prospectors in the area.

Mine Plans Own Company Store

GOLDFIELDS, Sask. [illegible] Consolidated Smelting and Mining Company complying with a petition signed by practically 100 per cent of their employees at the Goldfields camp, are arranging for the construction and operation of a company store.

The C.M.S. [illegible] men's needs at 10 per cent on cost and turn the profit back to the men through the athletic association. It is estimated that $100,000 was spent by Consolidated employees and their families in Goldfield stores during the past year.

Athona Mines Limited during the past winter supplied their men with goods at 10 per cent on cost and are considering a similar plan for the coming year.

Almost 14,000 new books and new editions are published in England annually.

Prospectors In Eager Search Of Gardening Earth

GOLDFIELDS, Sask., June 5.—[illegible] North West Territories [illegible] Athabasca [illegible] are prospecting among the granite rocks for patches of soil fertile enough to produce small gardens. Soil of any kind is scarce but good soil is more so.

The valleys seem to be little more than moss covered beds of glacial silt, a white, mucky clay which bakes hard when exposed to the sun. Some, however, are finding thin layers of black soil and packing [illegible] sacks to put [illegible] grow lettuce, raddishes and onions. Patches very in size from 10 by 10 to 30 by 50 feet.

Gus Nyman has a small patch which he has gardened for several years and which produces nearly every variety of common garden vegetables, potatoes, cabbage, peas, [illegible] turnips, onions, lettuce and radishes.

In the Athabasca area strawberries, raspberries, currents, gooseberries and cranberries grow wild and produce well. They grow from cracks in the rocks, behind boulders and in sand.

Caribou Are On Northern Trek

GOLDFIELDS, Sask., June 5.—Long lines of fat shaggy caribou [illegible] east across the [illegible] Lake Athabasca. Cows to the calving grounds 200 miles north on the barrens [illegible] toward the Hudson's Bay.

Last autumn Athabascans saw the greatest migration of caribou in the memory of the oldest resident. In [illegible] stroyed nearly every set made by trappers.

The Chipewyan Indians scattered [illegible] Lake Athabasca have been busy making "dry-meat" to last until fishing becomes easy. The meat is dried over rails, generally known as stages, under which a smudge is kept going to keep away flies.

GOOD PRICES ON PUREBRED BULLS

LLOYDMINSTER, June 5.—Eighteenth annual show and auction sale of purebred bulls, held under auspices of the Lloydminster Agricultural Exhibition association, Tuesday, proved to be the most successful in the history of the association.

Besides a large number of buyers from Western Canada, there were buyers from Washington, U.S.A., who purchased 17 of the choice animals and had them shipped to the United States.

Among the men prominent in the cattle world present were: H. A. Craig, deputy minister of agriculture of the province of Alberta; George B. Rothwell, director of production, federal department of agriculture; John Norquay, Dominion livestock branch, Edmonton. Judges were Dr. P. R. Talbot, provincial veterinary of Alberta and D. A. Andrews, of the Vermilion School of Agriculture.

Top price paid was $250 by T. H. Ayres of Edam, Saskatchewan, for the champion shorthorn bull, Clipper Dann, shown by Claude Gallinger of Tofield. J. W. Durno, Calgary, was auctioneer.

Northern School On Double Shift

GOLDFIELDS, Sask., June 5.—G[illegible] school operates on double shift these days. The building being too small to accommodate all the pupils, Mrs. George M[illegible] devised a plan by which all could be taught. School opens at 8 a.m. with senior classes until 12 o'clock noon. From 1 to 4 [illegible] holidays.

If sufficient funds can be raised the school board will construct a [illegible] be employed.

FOUNDER WAITED FOR HIS IDEAL

LONDON, June 5.—Overseas Magazine felicitates Sir Evelyn Wrench, founder of the Overseas League, on his marriage to his cousin, Lady des Voeux.

"It is not an open secret that Sir Evelyn has never married because for 25 years he has waited [illegible] to attain his ideal of happiness. He has been working for [illegible] greatest sympathy with his aims.

"To those of us who for many years worked in close and daily contact with Sir Evelyn and the future Lady Wrench, the news came not so much as a surprise as a most welcome fulfilment and completion of a wonderful friendship that has existed for many years, a friendship to which the League owes much more than members realize. Since the days of the Great War, when Lady des Voeux first began her honorary work for the 'Overseas Club' superintending the war funds, Red Cross hospitals, for the presentation of airplanes to H.M. Government, for the Tobacco Fund and parcels for the troops, she has been unremitting in her devoted service."

Lloydminster Has Hope of Refinery

LLOYDMINSTER, June 5.—Strike of crude oil in the Lina Field just south of Lloydminster last week-end is putting the town all agog. Already there are visions of an up-to-date oil refinery here with the resultant cheaper gas and oil, as well as distillate, etc.

While the [illegible] of Dina crude oil as it is produced at the well is not very encouraging, this crude, upon the application of heat, begins to crack readily at atmospheric pressure and the reports on processing received from the Alberta government officials are most encouraging.

Cycles Bid High For Traffic Top

LONDON, June 5.—Outside London there are nearly as many cycles as passenger cars on the roads of Great Britain. In 16 busy hours of seven days, 37,202,571 vehicles of all kinds passed 4,520 points on roads [illegible] London, giving an average for each day of 5,314,653.

These are the main figures of a report issued recently by the minister of transport.

The passenger cars numbered 17,308,749 and the trucks 4,720,08[illegible] horse-drawn vehicles totalled 460,551. There were 14,363,188 pedal cycles, giving an average of 2,051,884 cyclists between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. each day, compared with an average 2,514,107 passenger cars.

Particulars for only 3,679 points are available for the preceding census in 1929. Compared with these, pedal cyclists show an increase of 89 per cent and passenger cars one of 55 per cent and trucks 72 per cent. Horse-drawn vehicles have fallen 51 per cent.

Had Twin Colts

STARTFORD, Ont., June 5.—Twin Percheon colts born on the farm of Charles Lupton, West Zorra, Coronation Day, were named George and Elizabeth, but lived only five days.

POISE NEEDED TO BUILD HOME

TORONTO, June 5.—Every woman should build up a personality [illegible] quite poise, charm and understanding as easily as one could learn that two and two make four, said Dr. Ruth Franks, speaking to the Queen's Alumnae Association.

[illegible] in this respect had been very much neglected, unfortunately, she said. Women made a great mistake in allowing differing opinions of other women to affect their friendship with them.

Dr. Franks, first in Canada of her sex to obtain a Ph. D. in psychiatry, and who manages to combine a career and a home which includes three-year-old twin [illegible] frankly confessed she was "no good at making cakes and pies."

But she believed that women whose chief interest was in that direction should make the very best possible cakes and pies.

Discussing husband and wife, Dr. Franks said certain barriers that indicate respect for each other's personalities, should never come down even in the intimate family circle.

"I don't think any husband ever knows his wife well enough not to stand when she enters the room. I don't think any son knows his mother well enough not to touch his hat when he meets her on the street.

"In the same way, the bride of a few months cannot afford to appear at breakfast with her hair undressed or wander about the house in her bedroom slippers. It's the little niceties of life that help us to get along together."

Dear Sirs:
Just a few lines in appreciation for the wonderful condition our furniture arrived in. The man who unpacked the china said he never in all his time had seen china packed so well. Some things we valued very highly and were pleased to find them all O.K. You are to be complimented on the type of men you have working for you. They were courteous and pleasant to have around.
Thanking you for the way everything was handled,
Yours truly,

TODAY'S MARKETS

At Toronto

TORONTO, June 5. — Moderate strength marked industrials and Western oils on the Toronto Exchange while golds and base metals were irregular.

Imperial and International Petroleum as well as Canadian Oil ruled higher by fractions and gains of 3 to 12 cents were boarded for Calgary-Edmonton, Home, Okalta, Calmont and Highwood-Sarcee. Royalite came out at 39 for a [illegible] of a point.

At Montreal

MONTREAL, June 5.—The stock market stuck to firm ground today in active trading.

National Steel touched 52½ for a gain of two points, followed by Foundation up one at 27 and Canada Cement. Dominion Steel and Gypsum holding even.

C.P.R. was steady at 13½. McColl and International Pete eased ⅛ and ¼ respectively as Imperial gained the minimum at 21⅛.

At New York

NEW YORK, June 5.—Stocks got off to a good start in today's brief market session but, aside from favored specialties, most fell back under week-end profit selling.

Some steel issues lost advancing vigor. Farm implements achieved considerable popularity for a time, but they failed to hold at the best. After a fairly active first hour the volume dwindled. Transfers were around 400,000 shares.

THREE DEATHS IN SHOOTING AFFRAY NOW EXPECTED

HAMILTON, Ont., June 5.—Death toll of a shooting affray that arose out of a lawsuit reached two today and the doctors at the bedside of a third wounded victim said it probably would mount to three within an hour.

A bullet in the spine and paralyzed from the shoulders down, George H. Jackson died in hospital early this morning. His business partner, John E. Anderson, was fatally wounded yesterday. Anthony Anderson, brother of [illegible] was [illegible] and was given no chance to [illegible].

Joseph C. Lee, 36, restaurant owner and formerly associated in business with the victims, appeared [illegible] He did not plead. Lee surrendered after the shooting before Jackson's [illegible] yesterday with the [illegible] "I [illegible] just shot some [illegible]."

Orillia Scrip For $9,840 In Bonfire

ORILLIA, Ont., June 5.—Almost $10,000 in redeemed scrip went up in smoke here today when 40,000 pieces of paper representing Orillia's venture into municipal scrip were burned by a caretaker in the presence of civic officials and bank representatives.

The scrip, weighing about 55 pounds and representing $9,840.55 out of an original issue of $10,000, was destroyed according to a by-law passed when a new mayor was elected the first of the year. The remaining scrip of the issue was believed lost [illegible].

EDMONTON STOCKYARDS, June 5.—Report from Edmonton stockyards, week ending June 4th:

Receipts:	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Saturday	82	137	148	13

There was no material change noticeable on the market [illegible] men were able to make a good clean-up on all their offerings of grain-feds, particularly the better grades, although at the close of the week some of the plainer kinds were somewhat slow in moving. Prices on the whole on grain-feds remained about steady and unchanged with last week's close. Grass cattle, however, particularly the plain kinds [illegible] were showing [illegible] tone and selling at from $1 to $1.50 per cwt. below grain-feds of similar grades, with [illegible] grading. The following are the quotations on grain-feds.

Good fed calves $7.50 to $8, other kinds from $7 down. Bulk of good steers $7.50 to $8, odd ones making up to $8.2[illegible] [illegible] common to fair $4 to $6. Good to choice heifers $6.50 to $7, odd tops up to $7.50, common to medium $4 [illegible]. The bulk of good cows $4.50 to $5, odd especially choice kinds bringing up to $5.50, common to medium $2.50 to $4. Canners and cutters $1.25 to $2.50. Bulls $2.50 to $4.

There is only fair activity noticeable on the stocker and feeder market. The better grades of stockers are selling generally at $3.25 to $3.75, odd ones making up to $4, other kinds from $3 down.

The calf market throughout the week has been unsettled and showed another decline of $1 per cwt. with common calves decidedly hard to move. At the close of the week the bulk of good calves were $5 to $5.50, odd choice making up to $6, fair to medium $3.50 to $4.50, common kinds down to $2.50.

Hogs kept at a fairly steady level. At the close on Friday trucked-in bacons sold at $8, with selects bringing a premium of 50c per cwt., and butchers discounted 50c per cwt.

This week's receipts of sheep and lambs were again insufficient to establish values. In the middle of the week three spring lambs arrived and sold at $10, the balance of the prices remain the same with lambs from $[illegible] down, yearlings $[illegible] [illegible] $4 [illegible] [illegible] $1 to $2 per cwt.

Brother And Sister United By Injury

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, June 5.—"I thought she was dead."

Zamie Moragin, 50-year-old Carenage laborer, uttered these words as he learned that his sister, unheard from in 20 years, was still alive and well.

And it all happened because Moragin was injured while at [illegible]. The item appeared [illegible] Moragin's sister, Albe[illegible] and wrote her long-[illegible]. She was living in San F[illegible].

Flax Growers Aid

CANBERRA, June 5.—A [illegible] $1,000 to finance [illegible] gation is to be made by the Australian government toward [illegible] velopment of the flax-growing industry in the Commonwealth.

Under Two Flags

ST. THOMAS, Ont., June 5.—To mark the Coronation a resident here hung two flags on his house, one that of the Irish Free State and the other the Italian flag.

SILVER FUTURES

MONTREAL, June 5.—Silver futures closed steady today 8-13 points higher. No sales. Closing bids: June 44.95, July 44.90, Aug. and Sept. 44.75, Dec. 44.80.

PUNISHMENT - - - BY FREDERICK JACKSON

A Bulletin Short Story Complete On This Page Every Saturday

CUNNINGHAM was sitting in the library of the club looking over the newspapers, when two men behind him got into conversation.

"Funny about this Amber Leigh," said the First Man.

"Yeah—darned funny," said the other.

"You'd think it would be practically impossible to disappear nowadays—with the radio and sending photographs by telegraph—and what not. Yet this girl seems to have done it—and right under the noses of the police, you might say."

"The question is," said the Other Man. "Did she mean to disappear or couldn't she help herself? I mean—if the police wanted her so badly as a witness—Eagan's gang [illegible] had good reason to see that they didn't get [illegible]."

"You think they kidnaped her?"

"Maybe. I shouldn't even put it past them to have [illegible] ped out if it suited their book."

"I wonder if we'll ever know?" mused the First Man [illegible].

Cunningham rose casually and strolled out of the [illegible] without speaking but he could have told them the [illegible].

He [illegible] care for night clubs, as a general thing, but [illegible] promised to pick Hoagland up at Chez Poupette's [illegible] to the Westervelt's on Long Island where they were both going to spend the week-end. So he had his new saloon car which was a pet of his at the moment, and which he was therefore driving himself.

His destination was, of course, in 52nd Street, but he approached it from the wrong direction and had to go around the block. And as he was proceeding slowly [illegible] 51st Street, it occurred to him that it might save [illegible] if he parked the car there and walked to the entrance of the place which was bound to be blocked by [illegible]. Moreover, there was a parking space conveniently at hand.

He maneuvered into the available space and had his [illegible] car suddenly opened and a girl threw herself in behind him, closing the door swiftly behind her, and crouching down on the floor where she was completely [illegible] view.

"[illegible] please—for God's sake," she begged in a [illegible].

He [illegible] jewels. Then almost [illegible] cally and asked without turning his head—almost [illegible] g his lips:

[illegible]

He [illegible] either ahead, or in the mirror before him, their departure [illegible] thought.

[illegible]

"[illegible] was a near thing, though," she murmured gratefully. "Heaven must have sent you at just that [illegible]."

[illegible] asked whimsically. "I devoutly hope [illegible]."

For he was beginning to realize he had done a fool- [illegible]

[illegible] were you quick on the uptake? . . . Where are we now?"

[illegible] to go?"

"That's just what I don't know," she murmured helplessly. "I can't go back to my own place or they'll nab me. That's the first place they'll look, of course."

"Who?" asked Cunningham quietly.

"The police."

[illegible]

"Don't be downcast," she said laughing a little. "They only [illegible] a material witness. At least that's what [illegible]."

Hides At His Place

She was silent, then, thinking. He let her think. [illegible] another name, it would be too risky. They're [illegible] got to go somewhere where Milly [illegible]

He gave her the number in East 67th Street, quietly.

"[illegible] apartment house?" she asked, then.

"[illegible] my man. He usually waits up for me."

[illegible]

[illegible] a worry in the world?" If nothing more could be said for her, he thought, at least she had a game spirit and that appealed to him.

"Very well. [illegible] take you there—only—God knows what I am letting myself in for."

"Honey," said she, "it's a mystery to me, too. But if it will be any comfort to you, I'll tell you all that I know about it as soon as we can talk comfortably."

They drew up before his house and he turned off the engine.

"Take a good look about," she advised, "and let me know when the road is clear. I know this isn't the only ermine coat in Manhattan. And I'll try to keep my face hidden. But this blonde head is bound to show. And you never know, do you?"

He assured her that the street was empty so far as eye could see—except for a woman in the distance walking with a dog.

"Going. There. She's turned into one of the houses further down."

"Run for it, then. Get your front door open and don't [illegible] about me. I'll get there."

[illegible] the pavement and under [illegible] most suitable. [illegible]

"Forgive me for staring," said Cunningham. "It's just that I recognized you. You're Amber Leigh, aren't you?"

"Yes," she admitted in tones of surprise. "But I've never met you, I'll swear."

"[illegible] remembered your name—it's so charming."

"[illegible] you approve of my taste," [illegible] myself. But can't we go somewhere less formal and be more intimate? I need a telephone. And then I need a drink. And then I need a chair. And then I'll tell all as the papers say."

Calls Milly For Help

[illegible] keep her telephone conversa- [illegible]

[illegible] asked, when she had dialed [illegible] get up again. I need you. Don't ask questions, just listen and do as I tell you, and I'll satisfy your curiosity when you get here."

Milly, then, quite naturally must have asked, "Where?" because the girl gave her Cunningham's address and added, "Bring a suitcase with my brown suit, hat, shoes, everything I need to change. And take a taxi. . . . That's all right, I'll pay you back when you get here. . . . Because if I could have come there, you idiot, I wouldn't have wasted time calling you up. I'll tell you when you get here. Got the address? All right, Ducky, speed does it!"

She hung up the receiver and turned eagerly to seize the drink he had waiting. She downed it, and crossed to the couch, throwing off the ermine coat carelessly and revealing herself in a sheer satin creation of powder blue. There was a diamond clip on one shoulder. There was a row of diamond bracelets on one arm. There was an enormous diamond ring on one hand and an enormous emerald on the other. She was rather small and young to be so bedecked.

"Well—?" she said, in her pleasant throaty voice, as she drew up her feet and cuddled comfortably into the corner of the couch. "I'm dangerous but not infectious, so it's safe to sit down." She nodded invitingly toward the other end of the couch and Cunningham sat, murmuring:

"Thank you."

"Cigarette?" she asked, extending a gold case.

"No, thanks . . . I'll smoke my own if you don't mind."

"I'd give you more leeway than that," she answered, smiling.

Decides To Trust Him

He lighted their cigarettes. She leaned back inhaling luxuriously.

"But, will he want to marry you when you tell him the truth about yourself?" asked Cunningham.

"To save time, what do you know about me?" she asked.

"Only what any one might know," he admitted. "That you are known as Amber Leigh at all the night spots. That you have an apartment somewhere on Park Avenue, and—er—an association of some sort with a man named [illegible]."

She nodded. "An—er—association of some sort is [illegible]

She nodded again. "That's practically all I know, myself," she said, "besides his personal [illegible] a few of his funny stories—and his bad habits. He never talked [illegible] to me, you see. I was his recreation. He visited me at my flat but never stayed there. It's funny, but I never dreamed there was anything crooked about him."

[illegible]

"Then," said the girl, "they turned to me and said, [illegible] We're going to hold you as a material witness.'

"And then I said very meekly that I'd be delighted [illegible] It's safer. So—they said, 'O.K., but step on it, Sister.' and I went into the lady's room. And there's a fire-escape just outside the window in there. So I got my coat and [illegible] the other way and stepped out of the window and tripped down the fire- [illegible] Street, so I ran down the passage and who should I find [illegible]

[illegible]

"Now," said the girl slowly, "I am going to disap- [illegible] feel safer. [illegible] up the instant I got in the car. And you've earned my complete confidence. [illegible] Besides I may need your co-operation. . . . Yes, for many reasons I think you had better know the whole story."

* * *

Story Of Predicament

She leaned back, pressing out the end of her cigarette in the ash-tray near her.

"In a way," she went on, suddenly serious, "I'm what you might call a dizzy dame. I'm in the night clubs and restaurants and theatres a lot. I live for a good time and take everything I can get. I've got a flat on Park Avenue—all these things!" She jangled the diamond bracelets on her arm.

"You see I've been kind of engaged to Lew Weston for over a year now. I don't love him. You can't love a man like Lew Weston. He isn't real. I mean—if he is real, I never saw that side of him. What he felt, what he thought, I never knew. He was always quiet and smiling. He thought I had no brains. I let him think so. It made everything easier. Whenever we went [illegible] gave a party—or went out. We had [illegible]

"Well?"

[illegible] he could put his hand on his matches.

"I started out," said the girl presently, "as a stenographer—and a darned bad one. I got jobs, all right but [illegible] met Lew. He [illegible] apply for the job. He has an office downtown—or had, at least—I don't know if he's still got it—with his name and 'Investments' painted on the door. He engaged me without a trial as his personal stenographer, but after [illegible] I had gifts but not for stenography and typing. And he told me it was foolish for a girl like me to work for a living, any- [illegible] Park Avenue [illegible] and anything else my little heart desired. So—well, I was darned sick of looking for jobs—and all the rest of it. I made certain conditions. And I must say for Lew—he promised—and never broke his word."

"[illegible] conditions?" asked Cunningham, as he was plainly meant to do.

"I was to use the Park Avenue flat as often as I pleased but I wasn't to stay there all the time. My maid and the rest down there understood that I had a place in [illegible] know where it was, because it never existed. When I [illegible] Park Avenue flat, I was at home."

"At home?"

"At my mother's house in Brooklyn. You see, my mother doesn't know."

"What?"

"She'd kill me if she ever suspected. She never heard of Amber Leigh. She's poor and hard-workng and religious—and she likes it that way. My father left her with three children to bring up and she's done her duty. The two younger ones are still in school. They don't know, either, of course.

Not Worth the Price

"You see, whenever I used to leave the Park Avenue flat, I used to go to Milly's. Milly is a girl I know from the first office I worked in. Milly's not pretty, but she's got a good level head on her and she's respectable, too. My mother likes Milly. Once or twice a week, Milly comes over to Brooklyn and spends the night with us. And two or three nights a week, I go to Milly's. Do you see? Milly covers me. She has never liked the idea but she does it for mother's sake. I keep my Brooklyn clothes at Milly's and change into my Park Avenue clothes, there."

"Yes—I see," said Cunningham slowly. "So Milly is bringing you your Brooklyn clothes, now, and you'll change and go home?"

"Tomorrow. Not tonight. My mother would give it to me hot if I walked in at this hour."

"And how long do you think you'll be able to stick it out in Brooklyn?" he asked. "Away from the bright lights?"

She laughed softly. "That's the gag. I'm sick of the bright lights. I have been for a long time. I may be a [illegible] but it didn't take me long to see there was nothing in the life I was leading here. And these things—?" She rattled her bracelets. "Once you've got them they feel just the same as the ones in Woolworth's! Oh, it's nice to have a colored maid to run my bath and bring my [illegible] a tray. And I like silk stockings. And fur coats are mighty comfortable. But all those things aren't [illegible] And I [illegible]

Intends To Be Married

"There's a boy in Brooklyn," she went on presently. "He makes twenty-five dollars a week. I paid my colored maid thirty-five. But he manages to save a little of [illegible] takes me to the movies [illegible]

"[illegible] got it all figured out. When I go home [illegible] going to tell my mother I've lost my job [illegible] be surprised. She's got used to my losing my jobs. And in the evening, when Steve drops in, I'll be depressed and blue and maybe cry a few tears—and he'll ask me to marry him. And I will."

Cunningham sat gazing at her in frank astonishment. [illegible]

"If I have to," said she. "It won't be for long. He's bound to make good."

"But will he want to marry you when you tell him [illegible]"

"Oh," she said, sitting up to stare at him. "You don't [illegible]"

"It isn't honest—not to," he said.

[illegible] kind of fellow that has got to respect and [illegible] ashamed of what I've done. Of course I'm not proud of it either. But—it's just [illegible] enough to know that what he has to offer is worth a hundred times what any of your Lew Westons can give a girl. So—well—even though he wouldn't approve of what I've done, if I hadn't done it, his dreams would never have come true. Do you see?"

He nodded slowly. "But do you think for a moment they won't find you? Do you really think you can keep this secret for the rest of your life? Just consider for an instant the modern police organization. They'll have police all over the country looking for Amber Leigh. Your photograph will be flashed on the screen in news reels."

"Oh, no it won't," she said, grinning, "because there are no photographs of Amber Leigh. I never even had a snapshot taken."

"Even then—they'll flash your description over the radio—print it in the newspaper."

"Let them."

"They'll search your flat for evidence. Cross-question your maid."

"They'll find out nothing about me," she said confidently.

"But there must be hundreds of men who've met Amber Leigh—and quite a number of women. Women are pretty sharp. Suppose you run into one of these people in the street?"

"They won't recognize me. You'll see," she assured [illegible]

Milly arrived then with a suitcase, a rather dispirited looking young woman. Milly was a type, the victim type. People had taken advantage of Milly all her life and Milly was used to it. One could see that at a [illegible] would obviously never have any interests in her life if [illegible] of Milly's.

The two girls went off into Cunningham's bedroom with the suitcase. He mixed himself another drink and sat thinking it all over. And presently two girls with a suitcase came back into the room. But certainly not the same two girls. At least, Milly was the same. But Amber Leigh had disappeared. All that remained of her was in the suitcase. Grinning at Cunningham was an- [illegible] shrewd if not intelligent. Her clothes were like Milly's, from her artificial silk stockings up. Her glamour had vanished. Gone were the rosy-pink nails that had matched her lipstick. The sleek coiffure was no more. The eyes—so carefully made-up before—were now as God had made them. The eyebrows were untouched by artifice. She was chewing gum.

It was all very clever. The differences were in themselves so slight. Yet, here was a pretty young stenographer [illegible] the ravishing Amber Leigh was gone without leaving a trace.

She read his astonishment in his eyes and laughed joyously accepting it as a tribute. And then, she thanked him and shook hands and Milly thanked him and shook hands. And the girls with their suitcase—declining his escort or assistance—departed into the night.

Girl Returns For Favor

Chiefly because she had vanished so mysteriously, the police made every effort to trace Amber Leigh, thinking no doubt, that she possessed knowledge most incriminating concerning Lew Weston. And Cunningham watched the papers, but the days passed, and no single clue to her whereabouts was forthcoming.

And on the fifth day, while the hounds were still hot on the scent, Fletcher came in softly while Cunningham was tying his white tie and announced that Miss Dorothy Shoemaker was waiting to see him.

"And who," cried Cunningham impatiently, "is Miss Dorothy Shoemaker?"

"I don't know, sir," responded Fletcher. "I've never seen the young woman before, sir. She says she has a message for you and it's important, so she'll wait. I told her you were dressing."

Cunningham slipped on a dressing gown and went into the drawing-room to find the erstwhile Amber Leigh seated demurely in a very big chair, with her knees together and her hands clasping a somewhat worn handbag in her lap. But there was an impish light in her blue eyes that seemed to say, "Pretty good characterization, don't you think?"

"Well?" he asked, by way of greeting, and sat down opposite her.

"Hope I haven't intruded at an inopportune moment," she said.

"Not at all. Will you have a cocktail?"

"No, thanks. I don't drink."

"Cigarette?"

"No, thanks, I don't smoke."

Her mocking eyes drifted from his face to the door.

"Can we be overheard?" she asked.

"No."

"Well, then," she went on serenely, "I'll tell you what brought me here as briefly as I can."

"You want me to do you a favor of some sort?" he hazarded, nodding.

"Yes. No reason in the world why you should, of course. Except that you're the only person I can think of who could do it and you're already in on the secret."

"Yes—?"

"It's about Amber Leigh's jewelry."

"Ah. You want me to try to pawn it or sell it—and have the police down on me in two winks?"

"No. I've already disposed of it, thank you. I did that the first thing—the morning after poor Amber disappeared, and before the police could have thought of watching the pawn shops. I got about two-thirds of its value, I think, and destroyed the pawn-tickets. Here's the money."

She opened the rather worn brown handbag and drew out a sheaf of bills.

"Fortunately I had everything of value on that night. Only clothes and things were in that Park Avenue apartment. Even my silver foxes were at Milly's. That was a bit of luck, eh? Of course, I sold them and my ermine coat, too."

"And you want me to take charge of the money?"

"For the moment, if you would. You see, there's no way I can account for it. I've been racking my brains. But there is simply no way that might arouse Steve's suspicions or my mother's."

He nodded. "What then?"

"Well, this is what I've thought out. Down on Wall Street, they're always having sweepstakes of one kind or another and often we get a chance to take tickets. They're against the law, of course, so they've got to be run very quietly but a lot of them are run straight and people often win quite big sums of money. There was one about a month ago, and I took tickets for myself [illegible] I got them [illegible] take them as evidence I was [illegible]

"The drawing [illegible] won anything but naturally my mother and Steve don't know that. Well, Steve is to win this money, do you see, and you are to give him the check. Here is his number and his name and address so you can write to him. And I won't know anything about it until he tells me."

She sat beaming at him, waiting for his approval. He shook his head, marveling.

"You are engaged to Steve, I take it?"

"Of course."

"Very well." He took the money and the slip of paper.

Stevan Knew the Truth

He wrote, asking Mr. Stevan Macklin to be so good as to call at his earliest convenience to discuss a little matter of business and on the day that Mr. Stevan Macklin received the letter, Mr. Stevan Macklin called.

He looked exactly as Cunningham expected him to look—like the illustrations in the advertisements of home-courses of instruction. Not handsome, but alert, keen-eyed, square-jawed.

"Mr. Cunningham?" he asked, as he advanced into the room. "I had a letter from you, asking me to call."

He was evidently a young man who wasted no time.

"Yes," said Cunningham smiling, pleasantly. "It was in reference to a ticket that you hold, I think, in a Wall Street sweepstake."

"Oh," said Steve, noncommittally. His gray-blue eyes were fixed intently on Cunningham.

"It is my very great pleasure," went on Cunningham smoothly, "to hand you a check for nine thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars."

"Oh," said Steve again, and then he smiled. "I was wondering how she was going to manage it. Pretty cute."

Cunningham stared. "I beg your pardon?" he said.

Steve looked at him. "I didn't mean to say that," he said. "You won't tell her, will you?"

"Tell her? Tell who? What?" asked Cunningham.

Steve shook his head. "It's no good," he said. "You see, I know all about it. I mean—about this man We[illegible] I happened to see her going into a night club with him once. And I recognized her and followed her. But she doesn't know I know and I don't want her to know until she tells me."

"So—you know," said Cunningham, and breathed a little sigh of relief.

"Yes. . . . Maybe you think I'm some kind of a scab because I know all that and I'm going to marry her just the same. Well, it doesn't matter to me what you think. I know her. I know her family. I know the kind of life she was up against. At first—I was sick. Just sick. No use denying that. And I wanted to kill her for a lying little hypocrite. But it was none of my business then. I'd no right to interfere. It was her life to live as she pleased. And as time went on, I began to see things from her point of view, too. And I thought maybe it was a good thing for her to make her mistakes and get all that stuff out of her system before settling down. And the man didn't make any difference. I know just what he meant to her. And I know what I mean if she's willing to give all that up and marry me on twenty-five a week."

He pulled out a packet of [illegible] "Smoke?"

"Thanks," said Cunningham, accepting one. They lighted up.

Punishment To Follow

"Naturally, she was afraid to tell me," he went on, slowly. "She was afraid of losing me. Maybe that was not very straight of her to hold out on me—but in another way, it shows how much she cares for me. And now wanting me to have this money . . . From her jewelry and stuff, eh?"

"Yes," said Cunningham.

Steve nodded. "That makes things a lot easier, turning it over to me. I can give it to her mother. It'll be a Godsend to her. And she won't know how it was come by. And Dodie won't be able to object. Not that she'll want to."

Steve rose. "I don't know how you come into all this," he said, "[illegible]"

Cunningham told him. Steve listened, with his eyes fixed steadily on Cunningham's face.

"She's cute," he said at the end rather [illegible]. "Darned cute. But there are a lot of things she doesn't know yet, poor kid. She thinks she's going to get away [illegible] without paying. [illegible] mighty hard to keep a secret [illegible] with—day in and day out—especially [illegible] love. She's going to cry many a tear over that before she's through. And she's going to have many a bad moment when some one looks at her in the street and she wonders if she's been recognized. The longer she holds out on me, the meaner she's going to feel. [illegible] going to carry a weight on her heart, poor kid. . . . But then, you don't ever get away with anything in this life without paying. That's going to be her punishment."

Our Old Country Letter

By J. E. Norcross

LONDON, May 25. (By Mail):—Within the last few weeks the country has been privileged to observe one of the early stages in the process of the manufacture of a British Statesman.

J. E. Norcross

The Hon. Charles Wood was de- [illegible] politics at his birth. It could hardly be otherwise with [illegible] of the House of [illegible]. His father has been [illegible] parliament since 1910 and in and out of the government since 1921. The "cut" period is recounted [illegible] by the [illegible] he served as Viceroy of India, when he was raised to the peerage as Lord Irwin, preceding Lord Willingdon and carrying [illegible] very difficult period during which Mahatma Gandhi was particularly troublesome. Now, as Viscount Halifax, having succeeded to the higher title, he is Lord Privy Seal and leads for the government in the House of Lords.

As if this and the family history were not enough to mark out the line young Mr. Wood must follow, he married the granddaughter of two great statesmen, Lord Derby and the late Lord Rosebery. This was only a short time ago and the wedding was one of the smartest ever seen in London.

Clearly Mr. Wood must go into parliament in accordance with the traditions in which he and his wife were brought up. It was, in fact, only a question of finding a seat for him. It had to be a fairly safe one, as Mr. Wood is only 25 years of age and not yet accustomed to political platforms. They would have made mincemeat of him in some of the hard-bitten industrial constituencies.

AS luck would have it the member for York retired the other day on being appointed Governor of Bombay. Now York is a lovely old city with a very good record from a Conservative standpoint. True, Labor managed to capture it in 1929 but it has never failed since to return candidates of the kind expected of it.

So Mr. Wood and his lovely consort went to York. Labor thought it saw a chance of making a killing and sent down a veteran, Mr. J. Durdale, private secretary to Mr. Attlee, leader of the Labor opposition in the house of commons. Mr. Durdale also thought it was time he got into parliament.

[illegible] quite a little fun with Mr. Wood. They found for instance that he knew nothing about the Means Test and other matters in which Labor is vitally interested. It looked, indeed, as if the opposition were having it all their own way so far as argument went.

Mr. Wood could get no help from his distinguished relatives. His father, as stated, is a cabinet minister and cabinet ministers do not take part in by-elections. His [illegible] might have given him little aid, but she is a lady-in-waiting to the Queen and must keep out of active politics. His predecessor, Mr. Lumley, as Governor-designate of Bombay, was quite unavailable.

But he did have his charming wife. She became his chauffeuse and drove him everywhere in the constituency. York took the young couple (she is only 21) to its heart and Labor could make little or no headway against them. Mrs. Wood's maiden name was not Primrose for nothing.

So when the votes were counted Mr. Wood had a majority of 4,000, not as many by 2,000 as that of Mr. Lumley. But, then, Labor, too, did not poll as many as at the general election.

Mr. Wood is now in parliament, therefore, and learning the game. But the rest is in his own hands. He must make good by virtue of his own abilities and hard work. Should he do so he may be regarded as a rising young statesman in, say, another twenty or thirty years.

ALTHOUGH the Cunard-White Star liner No. 552, known in the yards as the "Queen Elizabeth" will be launched six months earlier than was expected she will not be completed any sooner. She has to be off the stocks in September next year to enable construction to proceed on the 34,000 ton battleship Anson.

When the 552 is launched she will not be as far advanced as was the Queen Mary when she came off the ways and will be longer in the fitting-out basin. She will leave [illegible] three years hence.

THE reticence of the press of this country in the period preceding the constitutional crisis of last December was entirely voluntary and in no sense organized.

This was made clear by Mr. John R. Scott, of the Manchester Guardian, chairman of the Press Association at the 69th annual meeting of that body.

"Both in this country and, more generally, abroad, one still hears references to the 'influences' which restrained our newspapers when week after week this topic was convulsing the press of the world," he said.

"From first to last that restraint was entirely self-imposed," he declared; "it was also unorganized. With all its faults our press may fairly claim that that chapter stands to its credit."

Motives no doubt varied from case to case, Mr. Scott continued, but one might safely mention respect for the constitution, something warmer than respect for the Royal Family, and a desire not to embarrass the prime minister, in whose courage and good sense there was very general confidence.

"Some time in the future," he [illegible] remarkable episode may also find significance in the fact that it was the country rather than the London newspapers which opened and led the [illegible]."

MR. CHAMBERLAIN has decided to do away with the fees and stamp duties paid to public funds when honors are conferred.

It has always seemed rather anomalous that when the state honors a man it should charge him for doing it. It was all very well when only the well-to-do received peerages and other [illegible] that members of the Labor party are being made members of the House of Lords it is another matter. It is only fair to say, however, that when the recipients of honors have been persons of small means the prescribed fees have usually been remitted.

Incidentally, the announcement of the abolition of the fees has revived curiosity in one feature of the charges. The fees are given as follows: Duke, 1730 2s; marquis 1630 2s; and so on down to a baron, 1330 2s. Why the odd two shillings in each case? it has been asked.

Possibly it is the charge for sealing-wax or perhaps [illegible] emolument of [illegible] sealing-wax or something of [illegible]

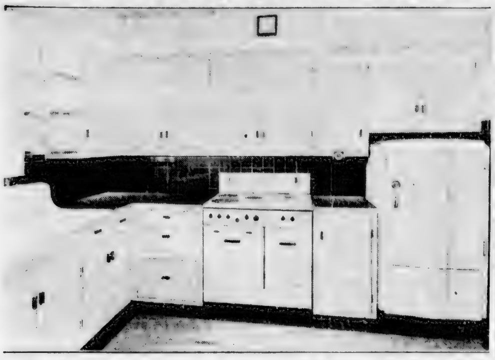
HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN CAN TRANSFORM KITCHEN



Illustrated above is a typical example of a modeern, well-planned kitchen which brings the biggest dividends in happiness to the whole family. Many home owners are taking advantage of the government Home Improvement Plan to modernize their old kitchens.

By ESTHER PETERS

There comes a time in the affairs [illegible] we'd give up the ghost rather than put up with things any longer.

We [illegible] a shrinking new range, a mechanical refrigerator large enough to look [illegible]

We've a [illegible] We're in open rebellion against dowdy surroundings and outworn equipment. And we take a united stand for women's right to a cheerful, efficient kitchen.

Nor are we going to wait forever, while we pinch and save the money bit by bit. We're going to enjoy it while we pay for it. And we're going to have it now before prices mount higher and skilled workmen are busy elsewhere. Who said a woman has no head for business?

The Home Improvement Plan, sponsored by the Dominion government, is a boon and a blessing to such as I, with a good deal of equipment to buy and a lot of tearing-out and building-in to do. It's a project to give employment, improve property [illegible] three years. Of course we cannot [illegible] five hundred dollars and we'll work wonders [illegible] ideas of efficiency, comfort and charm.

Dependability Of Brick Important

Every so often someone, appreciative or resentful of our championship of the dependability of brick, sends in a clipping of a story in which a brickbat has been used effectively as the concluding argument in a heated dispute.

Yet these are instances where brick's dependability is least to be relied upon. Not every man has the throwing arm or the accuracy of a baseball player.

The patrolman's club is a constant reminder that there are other materials more adapted to a hand-to-hand conflict.

Love is for Tomorrow

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

Sandy and Marcia meet [illegible] accident near the home of the girl's grandmother in southern California. He is an advertising executive who has [illegible] established his own firm and she [illegible] a talented commercial artist. Both are on vacation. A week later it's romance and love. When they go to tell Grandmother of their engagement, Marcia learns her office has been trying to reach her. Sandy is hurt when she calls Los Angeles before telling her grandmother of their love. When Marcia [illegible] on returning to her office—a rival advertising agency—at once, as a result of the phone call, Sandy leaves in a huff.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 8

HER crying ended after Sandy had made his hasty departure Marcia picked herself up, gathered her bags, and went downstairs slowly.

"A cup of coffee before you go?" Grandma was waiting for her.

Marcia raised it high and said, "We who are about to leave, salute thee. Don't worry, Grandma. Everything will turn out all right. If it doesn't I'll send for you to come post-quick and fix it up. And that's a promise."

With last minute embraces, she was gone in the [illegible] taxi that had chugged up the hill to the house at La Cresta. Gazing back she wondered if all that had happened in the last fortnight was really true, if she, Marcia Madden, had found love and lost it all in the space of those few days. A philosopher at heart, she decided to let things work themselves out, hoping [illegible] that Sandy would forget his stubborn pride and come back to her.

She reached Los Angeles by 4:30 when the tall skirted palms were casting long shadows over the roadway and the first early light of evening glimmered here and there. It was the favorite time as far as Marcia was concerned, for usually it signaled the finish of a day's work and the beginning of her own private life, either in [illegible] and fascinating planning at the office or in personal entertainment. Marcia never counted the hours after 5 as real work, for it was then old Abe took her into his confidence, asked her advice on new campaigns, or discussed copy angles in the late hours.

When the office telephone had stopped its perpetual jangling, and when the [illegible] workers had gone home, then it seemed to Marcia that the serious business of the day was accomplished. The young girls who did typing and filing would pity Marcia when she stayed late, but Marcia pitied them [illegible] they found no real [illegible] their work.

Marcia decided to stop only briefly at her apartment, then take a cab downtown and surprise Abe. [illegible] she hopped on a double-decker bus, checking her bags to be sent home. On top of the bus she took off her hat and let the cool breeze ruffle her hair, then sat back and watched the rest of the world go by. Ahead, the rush of traffic [illegible] office workers [illegible] heading for home after the day's labor.

"Well, maybe if I had something [illegible] waiting for me I would be anxious to hurry back [illegible]" she thought [illegible]. But it never occurred to her even then that [illegible] a time she might not want to go to work at all, or that Sandy was not the type to wait for her to walk [illegible] into his heart after her [illegible] was finished.

Across the [illegible] bridge at the park, past the [illegible] and [illegible] Women shopping [illegible] the bus lurched and [illegible], stopping only occasionally to discharge passengers.

Familiar landmarks [illegible] Marcia out of her reverie and she [illegible] down the winding bus stairs. A brisk five-minute walk brought her [illegible] Santa Monica [illegible] Avenue [illegible] Marcia [illegible] lighted apartment [illegible] real life [illegible] Marcia [illegible] pillows and [illegible] Grandma's thoughtful giving [illegible] fireplace [illegible] These two points of interest were the highlights of the room.

In the beautiful bay window that was meant for a luxurious chair [illegible] practical Marcia had placed her drawing board and in back of that a typewriter on [illegible] stand. [illegible] she spent her few [illegible] sketching and planning till she was tired, then [illegible] firelight cast strange shadows on her face, and maybe stirred up new [illegible] for designs and copy.

Breathing [illegible] Marcia went into the [illegible] bedroom [illegible] ed her sports clothes for a suit of more appropriate for work. A dash of powder, a comb flicked through her hair till it gleamed coppery in the lamplight, and she was ready.

"Taxi, hey taxi!" she called, spying a yellow cab a minute later. "To the Fine Arts building," she directed, then sat back to collect her thoughts before re-entering the maelstrom of her office. For even in her sanest moments, Marcia could not deny the hectic existence of the agency.

Run by harum-scarum old Abe [illegible] detestable tightwad, it was known throughout the city for its roughshod methods and excellent results. Abe [illegible] he had good contacts and knew just when to put [illegible] He was [illegible] producing results with Marcia on the job, but he never tired of telling her that "without me, you would be no-thing, nothing."

Marcia lived and worked for the day when Abe would give her a partnership and interest in the Acme firm, as he had promised on that first day three years ago, when she started to work for him, at a pitifully small salary and a "promise." Fortunately for him he had early discovered that Marcia had a knack with copy as well as undeniable ability as an artist, which had well suited his plans when he could afford to hire only [illegible]

The taxi drew to a quick stop [illegible] looking Fine Arts building, and Marcia stepped [illegible] as she remembered [illegible] its inhabitants, for Marcia always thought of the [illegible] atmosphere of Art, with a capital A. Every day she saw them; Felipe, the middle-aged tenor with the [illegible] bay window, nostrils that [illegible] with hard, deep breaths, and a voice that shook the elevator when he gustily greeted everyone with "Good day, my friend, and a beautiful day it is!"

And there was Miss Adamson, the little graying secretary whose [illegible] evoked a strange feeling of pity in Marcia. Her faded eyes brightened if Felipe chanced to address her, even though she tottered as his voice thundered around her. Marcia liked to feel a romance in the air about these two. Then, the old maestro, Donevski; the [illegible] whose name she never knew, and dozens of others who worked into the rickety elevator [illegible] reluctantly [illegible] and the [illegible] applause of their public.

[illegible] Abe should have [illegible] his office in this atmosphere of music and drama,

DOROTHY DIX Says:

DEAR MISS DIX—In pre-depression days I had a good business and supported my family consisting of myself, wife and one child, in comfort. We had a maid and my wife had no work to do. Then came disaster. We had to let the servant go. My wife refused to do any laundry work for me, or to sew on a button, so I had to learn how to wash, starch and iron my own shirts. She refused also to cook my breakfast, so I had to learn to do that, too. Thanks to the soldiers' bonus, I have been able to go back into business in a small way, but when I suggested to my wife that she help me she refused, saying that when a woman once started to help her husband in making a living she had to keep on at it, so she was never going to begin it. What kind of a wife do you think she is?

C. K. R.

Answer:

I think she must be a fascinator, or else you wouldn't stand for her. Maybe she is so beautiful that you are content to regard her as a living picture and a parlor ornament without expecting her to be a household convenience. Perhaps she is like Schcherezade—such a spellbinder that she keeps you always interested and amused. Perhaps she is one of those sweet, useless, helpless, clinging-vine women that men support just because they haven't the courage and backbone to tear away the parasitic tendrils that have wrapped themselves around them. There must be some reason.

Goodness only knows. What it is, I don't. I have wondered over the situation thousands of times when I have seen men putting up with wives who enslaved them, who were lazy, selfish and so no-account that they couldn't have held any other job in the world except the wife job for five minutes.

When a woman marries she takes upon herself certain obligations and duties. She becomes her husband's working partner and she is just as much bound to pull her weight in the boat as he is. She is just as much bound to do her best to make him a comfortable home as he is bound to do his best to support her. If she refuses to do this, she is a quitter.

Yes, plenty of women do it. Plenty of women think their husbands should work their fingers to the bone to provide them with the comforts and luxuries of life, but that they are not called upon to make any return. They think they should take all and give nothing. I get hundreds of letters from men telling me that they have to get up and cook their own breakfasts before starting to work, and that when they return their wives demand that they help get the dinner, clean up the house and take care of the children.

I have no words strong enough to express my contempt for the able-bodied wife who doesn't get up in he morning and give her hard-working husband a good breakfast and a cheery smile to sustain him during the hours he toils for her. But I have an equal contempt for the poor boob of a man who will let his wife put over such a raw deal on him. Every henpecked man gets exactly what he deserves, because all he needs is just spunk enough to make his wife understand that she has to do her part, or else she goes back to Mamma.

Every woman makes the kind of a wife her husband demands that she shall be. The reason women are slovenly around home, the reason they nag, the reason they are poor cooks, the reason they don't sew on their husbands' buttons, the reason they treat their husbands with the [illegible] is because [illegible] they get away with it. For proof of this you have only to note that business women, who know that they will get fired if they don't make good, are trim and tidy. They don't talk back to their bosses and they do the work properly that they contracted to do.

Women can get divorces from their husbands for lack of support. Men should be able to get divorces from their wives for lack of good housekeeping.

Your Children

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

People with inferiority complexes like to sleep late in the mornings.

I have lived long enough and observed sufficiently to know that this is true. The day, you see, instead of promising more victories merely threatens defeat. If there is no actual threat the dread is there just the same.

O. R. Barton

In brief, fear or dread IS inferiority.

It cannot be cured and this is the worst part of it. But if understood and acknowledged by the parent, early in a child's life, certain compensations can be given that answer quite well for courage.

One is to help the child to look forward to the sunrise.

He goes to bed living over the mistakes of his day. He lost the place in reading and they all laughed. He forgot to get butter, brought home the wrong kind of coffee, and was told that he hadn't any wits at all. He let slip to Aunt Mary about [illegible] going away, when it was to be a dead secret. He couldn't catch the ball his father threw, and was jeered down.

Every day is like this. Tomorrow will be just the same. He'll be last in the race, or miss more

DEATH ENDS LONG CAREER OF MARINER

Prince Edward Island Sea Captain Dies At Gloucester, Mass.

CHARLOTTETOWN, June 5.—A long and adventurous sea career was ended with the death of Capt John Campbell, one of Gloucester's hardy master marines. The 85-year-old captain was born in Little Harbor, near Souris, P.E.I

As a youth on his father's farm he met many of the Gloucestermen when their vessels dropped anchor at "Yankee Cove" for shelter and the crews came ashore for recreation. While digging potatoes or felling trees as a boy his thoughts turned to the less stable, but more thrilling life on a vessel's deck.

It was not long before he found his way to Gloucester and obtained his first "sight" on the schooner Rattler in command of Capt. Chris McPherson for a trip to the North Bay after mackerel. It was the beginning of an eventful and successful career that was to continue for more than half a century.

However, his first voyage was more eventful than anticipated. The Rattler was one of several boats caught in the great gale of 1868, a storm that took the greatest toll of vessels and lives in the history of the fishing industry. But the Rattler was one of the craft to ride out the storm. It was months before the complete toll of lives and ships taken by the gale was fully known.

The young man "stuck" and sailed out of Gloucester for many years as a halibuter and in other branches, including the freighting of herring from Newfoundland during the winter season. After receiving his master's papers he built the schooners Eliza B. Campbell and Georgia Campbell, named after his first wife and eldest son.

His other commands were the schooners Argo, Catherine, Burke, J. J. Flaherty and Pinta. He sailed during a time when banks and "spots" were still being discovered, one by himself, "Johnnie Campbell's Spot," which is still being fished today.

She's the wife of a man known the country over, yet seldom is she photographed—Mrs. Homer Cummings, wife of the United States Attorney General. The rare picture was made at the Senate hearing on Supreme Court reform proposals, when Cummings was the star witness.

WAR EPIC IS REVIVED WHEN ROGERS PASSES

TORONTO, June 5—One of the amazing stories in which Canadians played roles in the Great War was recalled with the death Friday of Capt. Harry George Rogers, veteran of the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles and once a prisoner in German camps.

Rogers and other Canadians secretly cut a tunnel through rock from a German prison but in which they were held. It cost them six months of labor and they believed they were on the eve of escape when a fellow-prisoner betrayed them.

Capt. Rogers, a civil engineer, had directed the cutting of the 100-foot long tunnel, carved five feet deep from solid rock.

Wheat Millions Are Sought by Cutten Creditor

CHICAGO, June 5.—A creditor seeking $156,605 from the estate of the late Arthur W. Cutten, "little giant of the wheat pits," and native of Guelph, Ont., asked the probate court today to authorize a search for the grain trader's missing millions.

Although Cutten's fortune at one time was estimated at more than $100,000,000, his assets were fixed at approximately $350,000 when his will was filed for probate last year.

Harry A. Ash alleged in a petition filed today he was informed by Cutten shortly before his death June 24, 1936, that the grain trader "still retained most of his vast fortune, but not in his name."

Mackenzie King To Be Freeman Of Aberdeen

ABERDEEN, June 5.—The freedom of this Scottish city will be conferred upon Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada on June 19 in recognition of his public services to Canada and the Empire and his achievements in promotion of industrial relations and on behalf of international peace. Prime Minister Joseph Lyons will be similarly honored.

BOARDER DIES, FUMIGATOR IS UNDER ARREST

TORONTO, June 5—W. A. Chapman, a fumigator expert, was arrested last night and charged with manslaughter after a boarder was found dead in a rooming house Chapman fumigated. Alex C. Anderson, 52, died, police said, from potassium cyanide used to rid the house of vermin.

Chapman, according to police, failed to take out a city license for this particular job on St. Mary's street in mid-town Toronto, although he was a properly licensed fumigator. City regulations, passed after previous fumigation accidents, call for individual permits for each job.

Anderson, who had been boarding in the house for only a week and about whom the householder could tell police little, had apparently died in his sleep.

Burly Betty Jailed For Police Attack

TORONTO, June 5—Burly Betty Dawson, who slugged a police officer over the head with a beer bottle during a liquor raid, was sentenced to two years in penitentiary today.

Betty hit the policeman so hard he was in hospital three weeks.

Elephant Gets Tight, Wrecks Native Village

British United Press

SALISBURY, June 5—Alcoholism among elephants is on the increase in the Zambezi valley.

A well-authenticated story records that to mark the gathering in of the harvest, natives placed eight large pots of beer in a hut in the middle of their lands. Before the festival could begin a herd of elephants arrived. The natives fled and the elephants took their place in the harvest field to make a leisurely meal.

The leader of the herd, when investigating a hut, saw the beer, took a taste, and found his palate so pleasingly tickled that he drank six of the eights pots dry. Much refreshed, he returned to his lunch on the harvest lands, but shortly afterwards he was seen frisking and lurching about in a most unseemly and alcoholic manner.

Evidence that the elephant suffered from a "hangover" the next day was seen in the havoc played by the herd at a native village in a neighboring district, where the damage to property and lands was so extensive that a whole village had to be rebuilt on a new site.

Luther At Coast On Journey Home

VANCOUVER, June 5—Dr. Hans Luther, former chancellor of Germany and once president of the Reichbank, arrived here today en route to Germany by way of San Francisco and Tokyo.

Dr. Luther, who recently resigned as German ambassador to Washington, described himself as a "traveler student." He said he "meant" he had retired permanently from the service of his country.

Frog Farmer Buys Land Near Border

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., June 5.—T. H. Barbaree, New Westminster real estate agent, said today he had sold 20 acres of land near White Rock, B.C., 19 miles south-east of here near the international boundary, to a French-Canadian "frog" farmer.

Mr. Barbaree said the purchaser intended to stock the ranch with eastern frogs for foundation stock of western Canada's first table-frog farm.

Debt Write-Off In Saskatchewan Big

REGINA, June 5.—Write-off on first mortgages and agreements for sale in southern Saskatchewan drought areas totalled $13,437,000 during the first four months of 1937 Hon. J. W. Estey, in charge of the Saskatchewan voluntary debt adjustment plan, announced today. The plan applies to 174 municipalities.

China Executes A Total Of 970 Drug Addicts

NANKING, June 5.—China's anti-opium commission announced today that 970 narcotic addicts had been shot in the country since Jan. 1 under the new anti-narcotics code. A nation-wide study has been undertaken to determine an accurate listing of addicts, arrests and executions.

MALAYA—PROTECTED AND NON-FEDERATED STATES

There is little or no record of the early postal history of this group of states, but they were originally dependencies of Siam. They are ruled each by a Rajah with a British adviser and there is one director of posts for the whole group. In August, 1909, these states joined the local Postal Union, in November of the same year the Imperial Postal Union, and the Universal Postal Union on the first of January, 1916.

JOHORE: British interests in this state date from 1856 when various overprinted stamps of the Straits Settlements appeared, and from 1892 the definite type of stamps have been used. Throughout the whole of the period the P.O. was under control of the Straits Settlements. The relations between Johore and Great Britain were defined by a treaty in 1885 wherein the Sultan agreed to accept and act on the advice of a British officer, known as the general adviser.

KEDAH: The East India Company established a factory in 1786 but were driven from the state by the Siamese in 1821. From 1887 stamps of Siam were used postmarked "Muang-Sai." Control was transferred to Great Britain 10th March, 1909, and there were five P.O.'s at Kedah, Kuala, Kulim, Langkawi and Perlis. From July, 1909, stamps of the Federated Malay States took the place of the Siamese, shortly afterwards, four more P.O.'s were opened at Changlun, Jitra, Yen and Baling. There are now about twenty offices. Owing to the shortage of low values, from the middle of March to the middle of June, 1919, the 1, 3 and 4 cents stamps of the Straits Settlements were used, which are known by the postmark before the definite issue postmarks.

KELANTON: There was a local postmark before the definite issue of stamps but it is not known definitely whether stamps were used. In 1909 there were but two P.O.'s at Kota Bharu and Mengke, and the rate was 3 cents an oz. to the Straits Settlements, having been reduced from the previous rate of 9 cents to conform with the local P.O. rates. The first stamps were issued in 1911.

TRENGGANU: A British agent was appointed on 25th April, 1910, and a postal system was inaugurated under his direction. There were four P.O.'s by 1913. Owing to the shortage of the 2, 4 and 6 cents stamps during 1921, stamps of the Straits Settlements of the same denominations were used. The first definite issue of stamps appeared in 1910.

The issues of these states are not numerous and are interesting. Quite a few of them are rarities but there are sufficient of the low priced items to make a representative showing of the issues of each state showing of the issues of each state.

It might be well to mention that the P.O. at Perlis (Kedah) is a native state of that name but no issue of stamps have been made.

The Federated Malay States issues will be dealt with at a later date.

Little Orphan Annie
THANKS TO AM, WARBUCKS AND THE ASP ARE WELL ON THE ROAD TO COMPLETE RECOVERY--- THEIR ERSTWHILE DEADLY ENEMIES, TRANSFORMED TO GIBBERING APES, PLAY HAPPILY AND HARMLESSLY IN THE FOREST--- SOON OUR LITTLE BAND WILL LEAVE THIS JUNGLE AND RETURN TO CIVILIZATION--
GEE, "DADDY"- IT ALL SEEMS LIKE A TERRIBLE DREAM- I'LL BE GLAD TO GET BACK WHERE THINGS ARE REAL- IT'LL BE LIKE WAKIN' UP-
YES- IT'S BEEN A PRETTY TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE- I DON'T WONDER IT HASN'T SEEMED REAL TO YOU, ANNIE-
BUT WHEN YOU'VE LIVED AS MUCH AS I HAVE, NOTHING WILL SEEM ENTIRELY IMPOSSIBLE- NOT EVEN OUR FRIEND, AM- OR WHAT YOU SAW HAPPEN TO SIROB AND HIS PALS, WHEN THEY OPENED THAT OLD, FORBIDDEN CHEST-
BR-R-R----- THAT WAS TERRIBLE! ONE MINUTE THEY WERE MEN--- THE NEXT THEY WERE GRINNING, CHATTERING BABOONS-
TERRIBLE? HM-M- ONE MINUTE THEY WERE MURDERERS WHO PLANNED TO KILL US ALL---
THE NEXT, HARMLESS AND HAPPY ANIMALS- A VERY KIND-HEARTED WAY TO DISPOSE OF THEM, I SHOULD SAY- AM IS A MOST RESOURCEFUL CHAP-
WHY--- WHY, "DADDY"- HE'S TH' MOST DANGEROUS MAN ON EARTH, I BETCHA-
GRANTED- ALONE HE COULD WIPE OUT AN ARMY- HE'S DONE IT- BUT HE IS JUST- HE'S A FINE FRIEND TO HAVE IN CASE OF TROUBLE-
LEAPIN' LIZARDS! WHAT'S THAT?
HO! HO! HO! GAVE YOU QUITE A START, EH? IT'S HAD THAT EFFECT ON QUITE A FEW PEOPLE-
THAT'S ONLY AM'S YACHT, ANNIE- IT'S A SUBMARINE, BUT THE RIVER IS TOO SHALLOW FOR IT TO SUBMERGE-
PRETTY FANCY-LOOKING CRAFT, DON'T YOU THINK? HA! IT'S SCARED OUR SIMIAN FRIENDS INTO HYSTERICS-
G-G-GEE! IT SCARED ME, TOO, ALMOST AS BAD!
USED TO RUN ON THE SURFACE A LOT- SAILORS WOULD TAKE HOME TALL TALES OF THE SEA SERPENT THEY'D SEEN- FEW PEOPLE EVER BELIEVED THEM-
BUT THE PAST HUNDRED YEARS OR SO, WITH SO MANY BIG SHIPS EVERYWHERE, IT'S BEEN SAFER TO STAY DOWN PRETTY DEEP- ATTRACTS LESS ATTENTION, TOO-
B-BUT A SUBMARINE! AND HUNDREDS OF YEARS OLD- WHY, I THOUGHT---
GEE! I DON'T KNOW WHAT TO THINK---
SURE- YOU CAN'T HELP THINKING AM IS EITHER CRAZY OR A CHAMPION LIAR- I DON'T BLAME YOU- I'VE FELT THE SAME-
MAYBE HE'S BOTH; OR MAYBE LIFE IS ONLY A DREAM, AS SOME SAY- FACT IS, WE ALL HAVE A LOT TO LEARN- KEEP AN OPEN MIND, ANNIE, AND YOU'LL BE HAPPY, NO MATTER WHAT-I'M HAPPY ENOUGH- AND I'M WILLIN' TO LEARN- BUT SOME THINGS SURE DO GET ME AWFUL MIXED UP-
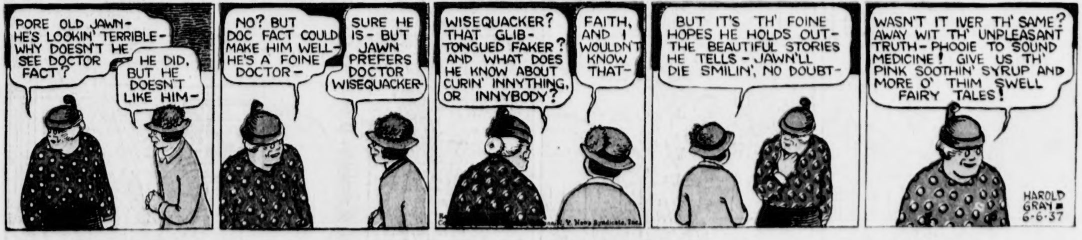
HAROLD GRAY 6-6-37

Maw Green



PORE OLD JAWN- HE'S LOOKIN' TERRIBLE- WHY DOESN'T HE SEE DOCTOR FACT?
HE DID, BUT HE DOESN'T LIKE HIM-
NO? BUT DOC FACT COULD MAKE HIM WELL- HE'S A FOINE DOCTOR-
SURE HE IS- BUT JAWN PREFERS DOCTOR WISEQUACKER-WISEQUACKER? THAT GLIB-TONGUED FAKER? AND WHAT DOES HE KNOW ABOUT CURIN' INNYTHING, OR INNYBODY?
FAITH, AND I WOULDN'T KNOW THAT-
BUT IT'S TH' FOINE HOPES HE HOLDS OUT- THE BEAUTIFUL STORIES HE TELLS- JAWN'LL DIE SMILIN', NO DOUBT-WASN'T IT IVER TH' SAME? AWAY WIT TH' UNPLEASANT TRUTH- PHOOIE TO SOUND MEDICINE! GIVE US TH' PINK SOOTHIN' SYRUP AND MORE O' THIM SWELL FAIRY TALES!

WELL, THAT'S ENOUGH OF THAT! SOMETIMES IT'S GOOD, BUT TONIGHT IT'S TERRIBLE!
LISTEN YOU!
WERE YOU CALLING ME? I THOUGHT I HEARD YOU, BUT THE RADIO WAS TURNED ON YEAH. THAT NEW COUPLE NEXT DOOR WERE THROWING THINGS, BUT I DON'T HEAR 'EM NOW. THEY'VE QUIETED DOWN
DO YOU KNOW WHAT I THINK? I THINK YOU WERE HALF ASLEEP AND YOU HEARD THE HAMMERTONGS FAMILY ON THE RADIO. WHEN I TURNED IT OFF, YOU DIDN'T HEAR THEM AGAIN
THAT'S YOU! ALWAYS TAKING THE JOY OUT OF LIFE!

CASPAR, THAT TRIPLE ACTION ELECTRIC EGG BEATER I BOUGHT FROM THE GOOFUSS COMPANY IS ABSOLUTELY WORTHLESS. I'VE WRITTEN TO THEM AND PHONED THEM TO CALL FOR IT, AND THEY PAY NO ATTENTION
I THINK YOU OUGHT TO ATTEND TO IT. MAYBE IF A MAN TELLS THEM WHAT'S WHAT THEY'LL SIT UP AND TAKE NOTICE. WHEN YOU GET TO THE OFFICE I WANT YOU TO WRITE THEM, AND MAKE IT STRONG
ALL RIGHT, MADGE
I DON'T LIKE TO DO IT. MADGE IS MUCH BETTER AT THAT SORT OF THING
LET'S SEE NOW. WHAT SHALL I SAY?
GENTLEMEN: YOUR EGG BEATER IS NOT ALL THAT COULD BE DESIRED-
GENTLEMEN: YOUR EGG BEATER, WHILE EXCELLENT IN MANY RESPECTS, IS SOMEWHAT DEFICIENT IN OTHERS-
ONE OF THE DEFECTS, IF I MAY BE SO BOLD, IS THAT MY WIFE HAS CONSIDERABLE DIFFICULTY BEATING EGGS WITH THE MACHINE
NO DOUBT THIS TRIFLING FLAW CAN BE EASILY REPAIRED IN YOUR FACTORY. I WOULD APPRECIATE IT VERY MUCH IF YOU COULD ARRANGE TO HAVE SOMEONE STOP AT OUR HOUSE AND PICK UP THE EGG BEATER. SINCERELY-
